RUSSIA'S POLICE TRAPS.

The System That is Most Dreaded by the Secret Societies.

One of the favorite devices of the detective department of Russia is the police trap. It is a method known to all criminal investigation departments, but its complete efficiency is attained only in those countries where the police have an autocratic control. The essential object of this method is to secure all the accomplices of a suspected criminal.

The plan as practiced in Russia is to enter the house of the suspected person at an early hour in the morning and remove him to the police headquarters. No guard is put on the outside of the house, but the interior is taken over by the police. The house remains in appearance as usual. Every person who goes to the door is permitted to enter, but once inside he is arrested and held.

The officers in charge of the trap have one inviolable order—to arrest and hold everybody who enters the house. So inflexible is this rule that members of the ruling house of Russia, generals in command of the army and persons of the highest civic distinction, if they should happen to enter the door of one of these traps would be held by the officers in charge precisely as though they were porters or women from the market.

Stories abound of the efficiency and also of the absurdity of these police traps.

Almost a whole regiment has been taken up by the police as they entered one by one to look for their disappearing companions.

Of all the systems used by the Russian detective centers the police trap is the most dreaded by the secret orders. The hidden place of meeting of any of these revolutionary groups may be discovered by the police and turned into a trap on any night. Only by the most extraordinary system of signals is it possible for these groups to be certain that the police have not turned their place of rendezvous into a trap. — Melville Davison Post in Saturday Evening Post.

The Birth of Reform Schools.

The first reform school for juvenile delinquents was probably the one organized at Metray, near Louvre, France, about the year 1839 by M. de Tetz, a noted counselor of Paris. M. de Tetz found in some wealthy noblemen the financial assistance he needed to materialize his idea, and the school was started with the most beneficent results. The idea was taken hold of in other quarters not only of France, but of other continental countries, and the enthusiasm created by the work resulted in the grand "conference of the reformatory union," the real beginning of our present day work in behalf of juvenile delinquents.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Viles on Alkali creek was made happy Wednesday evening by a new baby and at that a girl.

As will be noticed elsewhere in this issue the people in and around Webster are going to hold a big 4th of July celebration and lot sale.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dillon and family who have been spending the winter in Chicago returned to Ekalaka for a visit Wednesday. Mr. Dillon is now representing the French horse buyers and has been doing considerable traveling.

Owing to the unheard of raise in paper stock, we were compelled this week to strike off those names on our subscription list which were remaining on the unpaid list. As a result many former readers of the Eagle will not receive the paper until a remittance is received at this office.

John A. Wells of Chalk Buttes visited in town Wednesday and had his name entered upon our subscription list. Mr. Wells came to this section last fall after a homeseeking tour through Canada and says this section looks better to him than anything seen in the northern country.
