THE KINTON & CHOISSER, Props.

First class in every respect.

Rates, $2.00 and $2.50 per day.

Harry Wilkie, of the Forsyth meat market, has been on a week's visit to John Davidson's ranch, on the Rosebud, his place in the shop being filled by I. R. Church.

James Kennedy and a number of other Rosebud ranchmen shipped a carload of horses last Saturday to Pontiac, Ill., through Burt Bros., who have adopted a plan for the benefit of the shippers that insures good prices at small shipping expenses. The owners make out a bill of sale to the firm, and when enough stock is listed the shipment is made by the carload, and inspection costs thereby reduced.

The ghost dance craze is not wholly eliminated from the mind of the noble red man, as is evidenced by a slight recurrence of the malady at Lame Deer. Last Saturday Tom Crook, a Cheyenne who has been at times a disturbing element, insisted on carrying on a ghost dance to which diversion he had converted a number of his followers. The facts being reported to Maj. Clifford, he promptly placed the offender under arrest, which stopped the whole proceedings. The promoter of ghost dancing will spend six months in jail and will have time to arrive at a conclusion as to whether there is anything in it.

Porcupine Quills.

Mr. W. Granguenet and wife were visiting friends this week for the first time in several months.

Emigration has started quite early this year, two trains having already passed through here, one going east and the other west, via the prairie schooner route.

Christ Barboo is getting things in good shape on his ranch. He will leave home to shear in a few days, and expects to get a three-months' season by going to Red Water to commence work.

O. B. Jackson has returned home from Forsyth, where he has been going to school the past seven months, and from all reports has advanced wonderfully in his studies. He says Prof. Beeman is a fine teacher, and all business, and that a scholar simply has to have his lessons or be set back.

A small party of friends gathered at the home of M. Jacobi the other evening, and the night was spent playing solo, while a few soft strains on a violin caused a few of those present to dance a few steps. The party broke up at 1 a. m., and the people went home very much satisfied, having enjoyed a pleasant evening's entertainment.

M. Jacobi is busy getting his land ready for corn and other crops which he will plant this season. He will also give the Bromo grass a fair trial. This grass seems to be doing well in other sections of the country and why should it not do equally as well here. We should like to see every one that can do so give this grass a good trial, and see what can be done with it in this country.

Church Announcements.

Our presiding elder, Rev. Henry A. James, will attend the third quarterly conference of the church and preach for us Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 o'clock and Sunday morning at 11. The business session of the conference will be held immediately after preaching Saturday evening.

A program has been arranged for the Easter service Sunday evening. The illness of so many of the children has caused considerable re-arranging of the parts, and the persistent effort to make it interesting deserves success. Rev. James will speak during the evening and receive your Easter offering to the cause of spreading Christianity abroad and also in our home field. That we owe much of our present civilization and our higher moral standards to the resurrection of Christ is proven forcibly, among other ways, by the peace and power of Christian peoples in the world's family of nations. Our modern world and its advancing peace and prosperity—if we look only at the benefits of this present life—are worth much to all of us and have been bequeathed to us from self-sacrificing parents from generation to generation. As we have entered into the labors of others let us help to benefit the world for those who are to follow us in this life, as well as for our own good.

Prof. Beeman was formally elected superintendent of our Sunday Bible school by the board at its meeting Monday evening. The treasurer will be Miss Fern Clark, also elected Monday evening last.

Our appointments at Howard and Rancher will be resumed in the near future. Sickness in the family has prevented us attending to them for several weeks past.

Bedrooms and Breathing.
While no scientist, I think, will recommend less than seven cubic feet of air each minute for an adult, Dr. Reed gives ten as the smallest amount that will meet the wants of the body. All of this, of course, is not absolutely used, only needed that purity may be secured. The average room—12 by 10 and 8 feet high—even if the room is empty, will consume only 900 cubic feet, or enough to supply air for one person for about two hours. Now, when two or even four persons occupy such a room, the doors and windows closed to keep out the supposed "poisonous night air," it is not strange that the stench of vitiated air is overpowering to one who enters the room after breathing the pure air of heaven, such as the good Father intended for use.—Weekly Bouquet.

Juvenile Discouragement.
Elsie—Mamma, there's a funny old man in this Pickwick book that's always telling his son to beware of the widows. Why is that?
Mamma—Well, a widow is supposed to be skillful in catching a husband.
Elsie—Gracious! I wonder if I'll have to be a widow before I can get married.—Philadelphia Press.

Frozen In.
The making of postholes is an easy matter in Alaska. A mass of powder blasts out the hole in an instant, a telegraph pole is inserted, water is poured in, and the intense cold holds the pole secure in an incasement of ice.

A CULINARY GENIUS.

Cooked Dinner in His Home While at Business in His Office.
The ordinary man is nowhere more out of place than in the kitchen. All rules have their exceptions, however, and a correspondent sends a story of a man who might have led armies perhaps, but was certainly equal to culinary emergencies.

In the absence of his wife and family it became necessary, as he thought, for him to cook his own dinner, and in view of the fact that he was a man of business his presence was also needed down town at his office.
Now, the same body cannot be in two places at once, and this well known consideration would have settled the question for an average man. He would have either spent his forenoon in the kitchen or gone to his office and lunched out. This, however, was a man to whom physical laws do not count even as custom to great kings. The case stood thus:
He was to have a boiled dinner and would have it done to a turn, piping hot and ready to serve at his home coming. The meat, turnips and beets, therefore, which require a longer time, he put on before leaving the house. The potatoes and cabbage, needing less time for cooking, were put on the cover of the pot.
Then he dropped a string through a hole in the edge of the cover, ran it through a loop suspended from the ceiling and thence down to the sink. In the sink hole he firmly stuck a candle, to which, two inches below the top, he tied the string.
Last of all he lighted the candle and went to his business. In two hours, or about half an hour before he was to return, when it was time for the vegetables on the cover to go to their appointed place, the slowly descending flame burned the string, which released the otherwise unsupported edge of the cover, which dropped its burden into the pot and fell back where it belonged.
When the genius reached home, his dinner was ready.—Youth's Companion.
