May Form Farmers' Clubs.

The county life commission of Montana, consisting of J. H. Durston, editor of the Anaconda Standard; F. S. Cooley, superintendent of the farmers' institutes; M. L. Dean, state horticulturist; Mrs. C. E. Conrad of Kallispell and Mrs. H. B. Mitchell of Great Falls, have been considering plans for the betterment of rural conditions in the state, and among the proposed measures is the organization of rural interests in farmers' clubs.

In many states the Grange has proved a very effective, profitable and pleasant farmers' organization, and a great factor in rural advancement.

Farmers' clubs would be helpful in every farm community in Montana. By their means farmers and their families could get together at stated times during the slack season, enjoy social intercourse, discuss plans and methods for the coming season's work, receive information from the outside, read papers or enjoy a program of music or fun, partake of refreshments together, and brighten and enlarge the life of every member of the community.

Why not start a farmers' club in your neighborhood this fall? Even a half dozen families would find it a profitable venture and the more the merrier. The farmers' institute will be glad to assist in getting any community organized. When the institute meets in your town ask about it.

Two Boys Accidentally Shot.

GREAT FALLS, Nov. 9. — While hunting at Freezeout lake, near Chouteau, Teton county, yesterday afternoon, Lee and Shirley Ford, sons of R. S. Ford of this city, were accidentally shot by the premature discharge of a shotgun. Both were sitting in an auto. Shirley had just taken a shot at a swan with his shotgun and as the charge did not carry far enough to reach the bird, he picked up a rifle, leaving the second hammer of the shotgun cocked. He had just raised the rifle to his shoulder when the charge in the other barrel exploded, nearly tearing his right arm off, while several stray shot struck Lee, who was driving the machine, on the left of his forehead, inflicting a painful, but not serious injury.

Fred Couch and Tom Adams, the other occupants of the car, hastily dressed the wounds and drove the machine to the ranch of J. C. Adams, where medical aid was summoned from Great Falls.

For pains in the side or chest dampen a piece of flannel with Chamberlain's Liniment and bind it on over the seat of pain. There is nothing better. For sale by all dealers.

CHOICE CULLINGS

"Rough on Bores."

Mr. Yamakava, a Japanese engineer, has rendered a great service to humanity, for he has devised a means whereby long winded orators are "removed" painlessly and noiselessly from the scene of their labors.

The "rough on bores" apparatus consists of pipes which, starting from every seat in a hall or parliament house, meet under the floor of the pulpit from which the orator has to speak. At the beginning of every sitting every member on going to his seat receives a certain number of small lead balls. These balls are nearly as large as a shilling piece.

Now, the floor of the pulpit is fixed in such a way that it can be set free so soon as a certain number of leaden balls run down into the receiver, and the floor disappears below and takes the orator with it.

As a leaden ball can be put into the pipe secretly and as it makes no noise in its course to the central receiver below the speaker the surprise felt by a speaker who is becoming a bore is equalled only by the delight of his long suffering audience.

This new method opens up splendid opportunities in several directions.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The Leaning Tower of Pisa.

"Where will the iconoclast make his next attack?" asks a writer in the Berliner Morgenpost. "We who have visited Pisa and have written learnedly about the leaning tower and gone into raptures about the architect of that beautiful creation must now recall our rhapsodies and sit silently while learned builders tell the world that the tower leans simply because its builder was a fool. We swore by Dr. Ernst Forster, who in his guide-book tells us that one may recognize anywhere the object of the builder. The widows are of unequal size, the lines are not uniform, etc. Leaning tower opinions now lean in all directions, and we are told that the thrifty Pisa people have long known that there was something wrong with the foundation, but that strangers would never be attracted by a piece of faulty architecture as much as by a freak. I hate the iconoclast."

Must Get All.

Richard Parr, the discoverer of the sugar trust frauds, was talking in New York about the generous reward granted him by the government.

"Some folk thought I was going to get a reward of a couple of millions or so," said Mr. Parr. "They put me in the lawyer class."

"The lawyer class?" said the reporter, puzzled.

"Yes," said Mr. Parr, "the lawyer class. The junior and senior partner of a law firm, you know, once put their heads together to draft a client's bill. 'We've won the will contest for him,' said the junior partner, rubbing his hands. 'Suppose we charge him two hundred thousand.' 'But the senior partner frowned. 'Go on,' he said. 'He's worth more than that!'"—Exchange.

Beggars as High Rollers.

A pair of professional beggars were followed and placed under arrest in Chicago a few days ago. The rooms in which they lived and which were raided gave every evidence of high living. They were handsomely furnished, and from the number of champagne bottles discovered it was apparent that they were fond of choice vintages. There was a miscellaneous collection of peg legs, plaster arm casts, bandages and crutches for making cripples to order and a few bankbooks with daily entry of deposits, a substantial tribute to the gullibility of the public. "People with tender hearts and no judgment are responsible for creating these sealaws," said a detective who made the arrests. "They are plain swindlers. People ought not to give money without investigating."

A Real Restful Camp.

A New Yorker received this invitation from a friend who has a beautifully situated camp in the Adirondack mountains: "Come and spend a week with us. We live the simple life here. Bring only old clothes and heavy boots. No style." The man accepted the invitation and writes to his partner in New York: "This is the most delightful spot imaginable; superb scenery, every comfort, twenty miles from railroad or telegraph, but metropolitan luxuries—a strange mixture of primeval forest and automobiles, game and grand pianos, home and canoes and motorboats—a glorious place to rest! And how they do rest here! The first night we retired at midnight, and it was 1 o'clock in the morning when we closed our second day. No place like a luxurious camp for real rest!"—New York Tribune.

Knew Just What to Do.

A chauffeur who had just returned to the garage after taking the state's examination to determine his fitness to be licensed was asked by a fellow worker what the questions were. "One of them was about meeting a skittish horse," he replied. "They asked what I would do if I approached a horse which showed signs of being afraid of the car and its driver held up his hand to me." "What's the answer?" asked a bystander. "Oh, I had that all right!" the chauffeur replied. "I told them I'd stop the car, take it apart and hide the pieces in the grass."—New York Sun.
