

MLLE. SOREL'S HATS.

French Actress Who May Marry Lord Rosebery.

VELVET HATS WORN BY MLE. SOREL.

Mlle. Sorel is one of the best known women in Paris. Not alone is she one of the famous actresses of the French stage, but she has the distinction of being one of the most beautifully gowned women of her day.

Blouses For Every Day.

The satin blouse has taken the place occupied by the lingerie shirt waist of several seasons ago.

IN FIGURED SATIN.

The moisture of the skin from coming in contact with the outer fabric. This lining should be cut exactly like the outer one and tacked in place at the armholes.

Healthful Laughter.

The habit of laughter is one well worth acquiring. Not the habit of silly smirking or meaningless giggling over nothing, but the well developed sense of fun and humor that renders it easy to find amusement in situations and circumstances that otherwise might be mournful, or at least trying, and which bubbles forth in merry and genial laughter.

Such habit is not always easy to acquire, especially when the natural taste and temperament lie in other directions, but, once established, it more than repays the effort of attainment.

Cleanliness in the Dairy.

By R. C. Jones, Dairyman, Montana Agricultural College.

In recent years we have heard much agitation in regard to the health of the nation, especially as related to the food supply.

Dairy products have not escaped this legislation and it is perfectly right that they should not for the following reasons:

First—Milk is an ideal food for human beings and for the lower forms of organic life known as bacteria.

Second—Unless one is careful, certain forms of these bacteria which are known to produce disease in human beings may gain access to the milk.

Third—Milk is more widely consumed than any other food, with the possible exception of bread.

Fourth—Milk forms almost the exclusive diet of most infants and many invalids.

Fifth—Dairy products are consumed, for the most part, in a raw state and without further preparation than they receive in the stable or factory.

Milk as it is drawn from the udder of a healthy animal is pure and sterile, but in handling it becomes more or less contaminated by dirt and bacteria.

Dirt is unappetizing and out of place in milk. Bacteria are very closely associated with dirt and nearly always gain access with it.

and hands of the milker. Bacteria, as we have said, are very closely associated with dirt and after once gaining access the conditions for their growth are so good that they develop and multiply very rapidly.

ONE TYPE OF DAIRY COW.

The bacteria or germs in milk may be divided into three classes. The first contains a great many species or kinds that are perfectly harmless and produce no change in milk.

The second includes those which produce fermentations like the souring of milk. The third are those causing diseases like tuberculosis, typhoid fever, etc.

In the past twenty years over one hundred epidemics of disease have been traced to milk alone. One-third of all deaths of children are said to be caused by bowel complaint. The germs which cause this are often found in milk.

The following are the preventive measures to use: In the first place, keep the stable and cows clean. In the second place, keep yourself clean. In the third place, keep all utensils clean. In the fourth place, keep everything clean.

The second preventive measure means clean clothes and, especially, clean hands. The practice of milking with wet hands is to be condemned, for if there is any dirt on either the udder or the hands it is sure to be washed into the milk.

The third factor in keeping milk pure means not simply rinsing your pails in the watering trough, but calls for a thorough washing and scalding of them. The best practice is to rinse the utensils first in lukewarm water, then wash them in hot water containing some weak alkali, rinse and scald thoroughly with live steam or scalding water, and finally, set in the sun to dry, not, however, where the chickens and turkeys can roost on them.

To meet the requirements of a good farmer it is necessary to spend some of the winter weather in studying the problems of the farm.

Questions and Answers.

Replies by H. F. Patterson, Montana Agricultural College.

J. P. Z., Deer Lodge, writes: I am thinking of going into the draft horse business. I have five large, well developed grade Percheron mares.

Reply: Our reader has what might be called a gold mine. The Montana climate is especially well adapted to the production of high grade draft animals.

Fighting the Hat Spear. Germany is about to begin a vigorous campaign for the suppression of the dangerous long hatpin. With the approval of the Bavarian government, the chief of the Munich police department has already issued an ordinance forbidding its use in that city, and the Berlin chief of police recently announced his intention to take a similar step.

any market for dairy products? Could I sell my dairy animals? Would you advise the use of pure bred sires and dams?

Reply: It is very difficult to give advice regarding the method of live stock breeding or farming without being well acquainted with the conditions upon the farm.

As to the advice regarding the selection of animals, we are again somewhat skeptical. No doubt our reader is well informed upon the points to keep in mind in the selection of dairy animals.

Old and Modern Customs.

Palm Sunday in certain places is called "Fig Sunday" from the custom of eating figs on this day, as snapdragons on Christmas eve, plum pudding on Shrove Tuesday, salt codfish on Ash Wednesday, frumenty on "Mothering Sunday" (mid-Lent), cross buns on Good Friday, gooseberry tart on Whitsunday, goose on Michaelmas day, nuts on Allhallows, and so on.—New York American.

Leading the Leader. A very small boy was trying to lead a big St. Bernard dog up the road.

"Where are you going to take the dog, my little man?" inquired a passer-by.

"I'm going to see where—where he wants to go first," was the breathless reply.—Argonaut.

An Exceptional Case. "What are you doing these days?" "Playing the horses."

"No money in that."

"Yes, there is. I get $2 a night for imitating hoof beats in a melodrama."—Washington Herald.
