The cleanup movement was given a good boost this afternoon, when the pupils in the public schools were dismissed at an early hour to enable them to assist in the good work. The juvenile brigade, equipped with rakes and other weapons, made a vigorous assault upon accumulations of rubbish and debris, and set an example that merits emulation by some of the older folks.

Copies of the session laws of the Twelfth legislative assembly have been received by public officials from the secretary of state. There are about 600 pages of law in the books, the length of some of the measures being responsible for the unusual bulk of the volume—the military code occupying 63 pages. The contents include 48 general acts, 40 general and special appropriation measures, and 22 resolutions and memorials.

Death of Joseph Milligan.

After a lingering illness from a cancerous growth, from which there was no hope of recovery, Jos. Milligan died Wednesday afternoon at St. Clare hospital. The deceased was about 52 years old, and was unmarried.

Mr. Milligan came to northern Montana from Michigan about 35 years ago, and was a resident of this city until the late nineties, when he removed to Gold Butte and became interested in mining and other pursuits. While living here he worked at his trade of carpenter and builder, and enjoyed the reputation of being an industrious and worthy citizen.

The funeral services were held Thursday morning at the Catholic church, and were attended by a number of old-time neighbors and friends. The pall bearers were Messrs. Joseph Sullivan, James Bartley, M. J. Joyce, S. F. Allen, Thomas Coatsworth, and Thos. J. Todd, of this city.

On Trial For Murder.

The trial of George Klass, on a charge of murder, was commenced in the district court Wednesday, a jury being secured at the morning session. The following were selected as jurors in the case: P. Burnett, J. D. Wolf, A. C. Strode, C. L. Toole, G. D. Johnson, W. C. Thompson, W. R. Early, O. Johnson, H. S. Demarest, Jos. Kohler, John J. McGraw, Hans Rudolph.

The defendant, who is familiarly known as "one-armed George," is accused of killing Herman Pagel, on or about February 6, during a quarrel at the Pagel ranch, about twenty miles northeast of Chinook. The prosecution is being assisted at the trial by Attorney R. E. O'Keefe, while the defendant is represented by Attorney F. E. Stranahan.

Several witnesses called by the prosecution in the Klass murder trial were examined at the Wednesday and Thursday sessions of court, but very little evidence that had a direct bearing upon the shooting was forthcoming. There appears to have been no eye-witness of the trouble.

Rudolph Ramann, who lives near the scene of the shooting testified that he loaned the defendant a 22-caliber rifle with which to go rabbit hunting, and the shooting appears to have been done with this weapon.

The defendant, upon taking the witness stand, related a story to the effect that Herman Pagel came at him with a shovel, and to protect himself from injury he aimed the gun at the aggressor without any intention of killing him. The defendant, after the shooting, went to the Ramann ranch and told Mr. Ramann what had happened, and remained there awaiting the arrival of a constable from Chinook.

KILLED BY MISTAKE.

Search for Kidnapper Results in Death of Joe Hamilton.

News of a sensational hunt for a kidnapper and the accidental shooting of one of the men who took part in the search, was brought to town Wednesday morning by W. F. Willford who returned from the scene of the tragedy. The victim of the shooting was Joe Hamilton a former sheriff of Cascade county, an old-time resident who had a wide acquaintance in this part of Montana.

The death of Hamilton was a tragic incident in the search for a despicable criminal who stole the dead body of the Harfield Conrad baby about a year ago, for the purpose of extorting money from the grief-stricken parents. Mr. Conrad received a letter Tuesday morning from the kidnapper, advising that the remains of his child would be returned if he paid $1,500 to the writer. Instructions were given that the money was to be left at a designated spot about a mile west of Floweree, where a lantern would be found burning at 10 o'clock Tuesday night, and Mr. Conrad was notified to be there at that time accompanied by not more than one other person.

The matter was placed in the hands of the Cascade authorities by Mr. Conrad, and the sheriff's office in this city was also advised of the situation. A local posse was organized here, consisting of Under-Sheriff Crawford, Merritt Flanagan, Geo. Wackerlin, W. C. Byers, Chas. Crepeau and W. F. Willford, who left for Floweree by automobile after sundown Tuesday evening. When they arrived at the place there was nothing in sight except a saddle horse near the road and examination of the animal showed that he had been recently ridden and that an empty gun holster was attached to the saddle.

After waiting around a short time however, the Fort Benton posse discovered the headlights of an automobile coming from the direction of Great Falls, which followed the road down to a nearby coulee where it stopped. A member of the Fort Benton posse, W. C. Byers, went down the coulee to reconnoiter, the identity of the arrivals being unknown, and he was immediately covered by six or seven guns in the hands of the visitors. He soon satisfied them that he belonged to the Fort Benton posse, and the latter was informed that the party came from the sheriff's office at Great Falls to assist in trapping the kidnapper. Then the story of the accidental shooting was told.

It appears that Harfield Conrad and a friend left Great Falls for the place named by the kidnapper, but could find no lighted lantern there. The searchlight of their automobile, however, showed the figure of a man lying down on a knoll about a hundred yards distant, and as the man rose up and made motions toward them, they took quick aim with their guns, feeling sure it was the kidnapper, and shot him.

The victim proved to be Joe Hamilton, who left Great Falls horseback in advance of the Conrad automobile, to assist in trapping the kidnapper. Arriving at the place, Mr. Hamilton is supposed to have turned his saddle horse loose and secreted himself to await developments, but with a most deplorable result. The kidnapper was apparently hiding in a coulee close at hand, in which a new lantern was found by the searchers, but the appearance of Mr. Hamilton before the appointed time, and his mysterious actions, apparently warned the kidnapper that there was something doing, and that he had better seek safety in flight. No trace of him, except the lantern, was found but the search is being continued by the authorities.

BOZEMAN, May 10.—John Charles, at one time famous in the Black Hills in South Dakota for his daring capture of "Deadwood Dick," a much feared bad man of those early gold-seeking days, died at the county poor farm near this city. The venerable old pioneer suffered from a general breakdown of the system which had resisted the hardships of early days in the west. John Charles came from Deadwood to Bozeman in 1872 and opened a shoe store in this city maintaining it for more than 20 years. Ill health then compelled him to retire and without relatives or powerful friends, he went to the poor farm.

Is there anything in all this world that is of more importance to you than good digestion? Food must be eaten to sustain life and must be digested and converted into blood. When the digestion fails the whole body suffers. Chamberlain's Tablets are a rational and reliable cure for indigestion. They increase the flow of bile, purify the blood, strengthen the stomach, and tone up the whole digestive apparatus to a natural and healthy action. For sale by all dealers.
