BAND DANCE A "HUMMER"

Ball Given By the Harlowton Band Proves Successful Socially and Financially.

The Easter season had its observance in Harlowton Monday night, when the band gave its first dance in the Harlowton opera house. There were more pieces in the orchestra than ever played for a ball in Harlowton before, and the music given was especially good. The large number present demonstrated the heavy support the band will get, whenever it asks for aid.

The proceeds of the dance places the band on a firm financial footing. With the push and energy of some of the members already in the organization, most gratifying results may be expected. Under the leadership of Anthony Dreyer the band is progressing nicely, and when the warm weather comes evening practice will put it in shape to play to "a queen's taste."

One noticeable feature of Monday evening's entertainment was the excellent manner in which Ward Bealey led the grand march. There was no entanglement as on former occasions, and the march was absolutely devoid of embarrassing episodes. Two couples took part in the grand march.

Sam Hodges went to Martinsdale the first of the week on business.

Leo Stevens made a business trip to Judith Gap the first of the week. He thinks that Judith Gap is a good town.

The bunch of Scotchmen that were in town last week have taken their departure for Lewistown and other points in the Judith Basin.

Sandow, the strong man paid us a visit Monday. He thinks it is likely that he can arrange a wrestling match with some local Hercules. Sandow sustained a reverse at the hands of a Sampson at Forsyth.

Thomas Cummings was in from his ranch north of Cruse Monday. He says everything is fine and dandy out there, but the backward spring is not just what the homesteaders would like.

Dr. E. F. Ross arrived from Armingtton Saturday to visit his brother H. L. Ross who has been ill for the last two weeks. Mr. H. L. Ross has been suffering from a bad attack of pneumonia, but he is rapidly recovering.

County Surveyer Fred Spach, while in town a short time ago stated that the road from the brow of the hill to the depot was to be surveyed and would thereafter be maintained as a county road. This will be good news to the bus men and the traveling public.

The Harlowton orchestra came in from Judith Gap Wednesday morning where they played for an Easter ball Tuesday evening. The members of the orchestra report a most enjoyable time, and say that a large crowd attended the dance, after which a sumptuous supper was served.

A great many homesteaders would like to get possession of some chickens but there is a great scarcity of poultry in this section, and it is difficult to obtain chickens at any price. The older ranchers refuse to sell what they have, and hence among the new settlers there appears to be a poultry famine. If some enterprising person would ship in a car load of chickens, he would realize a big profit on it.

A LITTLE HYSTERICAL

Jones—What ha, you been doing to your face?

Smith—Nothing, o... nan; the wife only gets a little hyst. cal at times, that's all!"

"Very few people live to be a hundred years old."

"Yes," replied the philosopher. "It's another wise provision of nature that prevents a famous man from taking note of the altercations which occur when people get up a centenary in his honor."—Washington Star.

Jessica—When the judge asked you how old you were, what did you say? Margery—I told him if he were a good judge he wouldn't ask.—Judge.

Blobbs—Is he rich? Blobbs—He has more money than he knows what to do with. Blobbs—Ah, then, he has no wife.—Philadelphia Record.

PASSED ON TO HISTORY

Two young men came to town, (to do some trading.)
And were looking around
They were strangers to all, but had the "dough,"
And to the very best place, were anxious to go.
They met a fellow who was slender and pale,
And by the looks of his clothes, knew that he had been to a sale,

They passed him by with a grin and a sigh,
And one said to the other,
"If I looked that shabby I'd crawl off and die."
A little farther up they met a nice young man,
When asked if he could tell the best place to trade,
answered,

"Well I should say I can,"
Go right up there to the Urner Block,
For they sure have an elegant stock.
They keep everything known to the trade,
And have the very best prices, on the very best grade.
One wanted a hat, suit and shoes, and told us that the brands we had
Was what he had always used.
All the brands we keep are so well known,
That even the Missourians don't have to be known.
