BELIEVES PARTY'S PROSPECTS BRIGHT.

Senator H. L. Myers writes the Herald that after a few weeks in Montana in September, he will return to Washington to look after department matters for constituents and attend to other public business, and will remain in Washington until the convening of congress in Washington.

The senator is pleased to say the democratic prospects are considered good in the capitol city. The democrats in congress feel that they have made a good record and one that will commend them to the country. Democrats are very hopeful of success in the next presidential election and the prospects are most encouraging.

Sixteen Years Ago this Week

(Items culled from old Troy Times.)

The U. S. grand jury at Helena has found a true bill against Geo. Bassett, who was in the saloon business at Troy in the 'early' days. Bassett is put on trial for taking a registered letter addressed to Gregoire Bassette from the post-office at Whitehall. The letter contained $41, and Bassett took advantage of the similarity of names and did not make restitution when he discovered his mistake. His bonds were placed at $1,000 and the trial set for Oct. 7.

District court convened at Kalispell Monday. The criminal cases will be tried first. The prisoners were arraigned and pleaded not guilty as follows: Peter Larson, murder; Frank Whitney, horse stealing; Robert Ellis, burglary; Michel, the Indian highwayman, and Ben Gatchell, larceny. The trial jurors are to be called on Tuesday next.

One of the Lemley brothers lost a valuable pack horse opposite Leonia. The animal was packed with powder and other things and was climbing up the Leonia trail leading to the Yakh gold camp when it lost its footing and rolled down the steep bluff and disappeared into the Kootenai river. The horse was probably dead before it stuck the river, as it was two-thirds way up the mountain when it fell. The pack broke loose from the horse and was partly recovered, but most of the powder was scattered about.
