He cut his throat and left wrist with a razor and a penknife when in the bathroom of his home in Brooklyn and died last night at Long Island College hospital.

Maxwell, who was locked up Thursday, had felt his humiliation keenly and during his incarceration had appeared hopelessly despondent.

Widow is Penniless. Shortly after he became a bank president, four years ago, Maxwell married. When he became involved Mrs. Maxwell signed with him all the release deeds to realty that stood in his name, and his suicide has left her penniless.

Maxwell was released late Monday night from the Raymond street jail. There was some difficulty in obtaining bail and officers of the jail reported that Maxwell was greatly broken up. All Monday and the day before he lay on his bed and appeared to be oblivious to his surroundings.

Makes Ghastly Discovery. Maxwell spent yesterday forenoon quietly at his home. Yesterday afternoon he announced his intention of taking a bath and going for a walk. Shortly before 2 o'clock Hannah Scott, a colored maid, heard a sound as of some one falling on the second floor. Hurrying up stairs she discovered the banker lying on the bathroom floor, half dressed, with gaping wounds in his throat and left wrist.

Dr. C. E. Brown, the family physician, was hastily summoned. Operation Fails. The banker was bleeding so profusely that it was decided to remove him to Long Island College hospital, where an operation for tracheotomy was performed. The windpipe was found to be nearly severed and his left wrist was cut almost to the bone. Maxwell died within a short time after the operation. Soon after the physicians began work over him the banker lapsed into unconsciousness, and during the few and brief lucid periods that followed he made no statement so far as known.

CZAR IS SHORN OF PART OF HIS TITLE

DUMA MEMBERS DECREE THAT TITLE OF AUTOCRAT MUST BE CUT OFF.

WHOLE SECTIONS WITHDRAW

DRAMATIC SCENE IS ENACTED WHILE MEASURES ARE DISCUSSED.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 28.—The duma last night decreed that the title of autocrat, which has been borne by the emperors of Russia for centuries, is no longer tenable with the regime inaugurated by the manifesto issued by Emperor Nicholas in 1905. At the close of a great constitutional debate the Russian parliament, by a vote of 112 to 246, rejected the word "autocrat" and then adopted a reply to the address from the throne unanimously, amid scenes of excitement and prolonged singing of the national anthem.

The result is regarded as a fine victory for the Constitutional Democrats under the leadership of Prof. Milukoff. The final vote was taken after the demonstrative withdrawal of the extreme right Social Democrats, members of the Group of Toil and the Poles.

Dramatic Scene.

After a stirring debate which lasted until almost midnight, M. Plevokko, the deputy from Moscow, summed up the arguments on either side and urged the leaders of the October party to draft as judicious a compromise as possible.

The house proceeded to vote on the amendments to the reply, taking up first the word "autocrat," following the rejection of which there was a dramatic scene.

The members of the extreme right held a hurried conclave in a corner of the chamber. Count Dhorre declared that the monarchists could not participate in a vote on an address in which the emperor was shorn of his rightful prerogatives. Thereupon fifty of the extremists left the chamber.

Poles Are Turned Down. Prof. Milukoff on behalf of the Constitutional Democrats expressed his willingness to accede to the omission of the specified word "constitution" and the moderate members of the right followed suit, adhering to the October program.

The duma then took up a series of minor amendments that had been proposed by M. Dmowski of Warsaw which related to the aspirations of the Poles and the other subordinate nationalities of the empire, and rejected all of these by an immense majority. Thereupon the Poles declared that they would refrain from voting.

The remaining parties in the duma accepted the address unanimously.

A VALUABLE HOME RECIPE.

Will Break Up a Cold in 24 Hours or Cure Any Cough That Is Curable.

Mix one-half ounce of Concentrated oil of pine with two ounces of glycerine and a half pint of good whisky. Shake thoroughly each time and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours.

The renowned throat and lung specialist who established a camp for consumptives in the pine woods of Maine, and whose remarkable cures there attracted international attention, declares that the above formula is one of the very best remedies obtainable for an acute cold and that it will strengthen the lungs, relieve coughs and heal the bronchial tubes. Also, that it will cure any case of lung trouble not too far advanced if the patient will assist by plenty of outdoor exercise, inhaling deep, long breaths every few minutes.

The ingredients are procurable of any good prescription druggist and easily mixed at home and should take its place as one of the most valued remedies in the family medicine chest.

Inquiry at one of the leading druggists elicited the information that Concentrated oil of pine is put up for dispensing only in half-ounce vials securely sealed in round air tight cases intended to protect it from heat and light. The oils sold in bulk and the patent medicines put up and labeled "Oil of Pine," are to be avoided because owing to their impurities they produce nausea and are useless as a medicine, besides they sometimes leave permanent kidney trouble.

BABY ITCHED TERRIBLY.

Face and Neck Covered with Inflamed Skin—Doctors No Avail—Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

At last I tried Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, and to my surprise noticed an improvement. After using three boxes of the Cuticura Ointment, together with the Soap and Pills, I am pleased to say she is altogether a different child and the picture of health. Mrs. A. C. Brestlin, 171 N. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 20 and 30, 1906."

THE CAPE REVOLUTIONIST.

He Isn't Doing Business Any More in Havana and Is Discouraged.

Maj. Herbert J. Slocum of the Second United States cavalry has been detailed in Cuba for some years. It was he who brought the guardia rule in that country up to a point of efficiency, so that the island is safer now than ever before.

He and his guard have been very keen after the persons who plot insurrection, and as a result the few remaining recalcitrants have had a miserable time of it recently.

Some one commented upon the fact that there were no more parties of revolutionists to be seen about the cafes in Havana talking blood and drinking coffee.

"No, we've stopped the cafe revolutionist," said Maj. Slocum.

"How do they like the change?" he was asked.

"They don't like it at all. They don't think we play the game fairly."

"Every well conducted revolutionist thinks that a cafe is the place to plot in. But since we've driven a few of them out to the mountains in the rainy season revolutions have dropped away off in popular favor."

"It isn't such fun plotting in the wet and there's no one around to see what a hero you are."

You know how worthless are the "tips" you give out? Well, the "tips" given out by others are equally valueless.

WHAT WAS IT

The Woman Feared?

What a comfort to find it is not "the awful thing" feared, but only chronic indigestion, which proper food can relieve.

A woman in Ohio says: "I was troubled for years with indigestion and chronic constipation. At times I would have such a gnawing in my stomach that I actually feared I had a—I dislike to write or even think of what I feared."

"Seeing an account of Grape-Nuts I decided to try it. After a short time I was satisfied the trouble was not the awful thing I feared but was still bad enough. However, I was relieved of a bad case of dyspepsia by changing from improper food to Grape-Nuts."

"Since that time my bowels have been as regular as a clock. I had also noticed before I began to eat Grape-Nuts that I was becoming forgetful of where I put little things about the house, which was very annoying."

"But since the digestive organs have become strong from eating Grape-Nuts, my memory is good and my mind as clear as when I was young, and I am thankful." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little booklet, "The Road to Wellville," in packages. "There's a reason."
