BURNED TO DEATH IN LODGING HOUSE

A Butte Horror Which Resulted in Two Victims. Some Lodgers

JUMPED FROM THE THIRD STORY

Many Miraculous Escapes Were Recorded. A Missoula Man One of the Victims of the Midnight Blaze. There Was No Insurance.

Special Dispatch to the Bee:
Butte, July 2.—Two lives were lost and perhaps more in a lodging house fire at 1:30 this morning. Most of the roomers awakened from their sleep had time to escape, some of them miraculously, but Sam Mix, a waiter in a restaurant and Ole Berg, a paper hanger, were suffocated. The fire started in the saloon on the ground floor, it is said, by the explosion of a lamp. The flames spread rapidly and when the department arrived were reaching far up into the air. For the most part the inmates of the house kept their presence of mind, but a few jumped from the windows. James Ryan, prize fighter, who had been here but a short time, and who trained Kid Ormsby in his last fight, roomed with William W. Murphy, who says Ryan completely lost his head. At any rate Ryan jumped from the third story, but escaped with apparently slight injuries. Miss Cristal made a successful escape from her room in the third story by coming down on wires attached to the building. Her hands and feet were badly blistered but otherwise she was not hurt. Another woman, said to be Mrs. Dempsey, jumped from the second story window, but was caught by a man whose name is unknown and received only trifling bruises. As soon as the flames were under sufficient control for the firemen to enter a part of the building two of them groping in the thick smoke on the third floor, came across the prostrate form of a man. When removed to the open air there was a faint fluttering of life, but before the physicians arrived he breathed his last. William Murphy, a roomer, identified the body as that of Sam Mix. Mix had lately arrived from Missoula and had also been employed in the Buffet at Anaconda. He had no family. Adolph Jadin, a nephew of Mr. Nadru, owner of the building, had a most thrilling escape from the roof of the house where he had gone to escape the dense smoke and rapidly approaching flames. A ladder was brought by the firemen just as Jadin would have been forced to jump for life and saved him. William D. Campbels was nearly overcome by the terrible heat, and finding no avenue of escape, jumped from the third story, but escaped with only a sprained ankle. Many other similar escapes were made. Possibly some ghastly discoveries will be made, as there are no means, at present, of telling how many inmates may have escaped or perished, but it is thought there were only the two deaths mentioned.

The lodging house was on West Galena street, and known as the Pullman House, conducted by Mrs. Kendall. The insurance policy had recently lapsed and was not renewed. The loss is not yet known.

FISH IN THE LAKES AND GAME IN THE HILLS

All Along the Picturesque Line of the Great Northern.

The Great Northern has just issued a handsome publication concerning the shooting and fishing along the route in Montana.

The most interesting part of the book to Montanians is that devoted to the hunting and fishing points in this state along the line of the road. One is surprised that they are so many, and the detailed information given about them will be found as valuable to the resident of the state as to the visitor. In addition to telling about the best points for hunting and fishing, it tells how to get guides, and who to get at many of the points, so that if a person desires an outing no better guide for one along the line of the Great Northern can be found than this pamphlet. Here are some of the hunting and fishing points described in the book which are within reach of Kalispell and familiar to most of the sportsmen of the Flathead:

Belton is the station for the famous Lake McDonald country. East-bound and west-bound transcontinental trains on the Great Northern are met at Belton station by stage to take tourists and sportsmen three miles north over a good wagon road to Lake McDonald. Experienced travelers who have visited this lake pronounce it equal, and in many respects superior, to some of the famous Alpine resorts.

The lake is situated on the crown of the continent in the heart of the Rocky Mountains. It is 16 miles long and five to six miles wide. The water is so clear that the bottom can be seen when the surface is calm to a depth of 60 feet. The lake is full of trout of several varieties. Flowing into the north end of Lake McDonald is McDonald creek, and about a mile up the creek are located a series of falls. All along the creek and immediately below the falls may be had the finest of trout fishing with either line or bait. It is not uncommon to catch to the lakes in the summer season. The upper St. Mary's lake is fourteen miles long and two wide, and a steamer will soon be placed upon it. The scenic attractions are magnificent, and the mountains and glaciers are not surpassed by those of the Swiss Alps. The great Blackfoot glacier, at the head of St. Mary's is a wonderful mass of ice and worthy of exploration by mountain climbers. The fishing in all the lakes and streams is excellent, and consists of three varieties of trout, namely, the black spotted, lake and Dolly Varden, varying in weight from one to 35 pounds. Big Eagle lake, eight miles from the foot of Upper St. Mary's lake, is especially noted for the fine fly-fishing it affords. Big game is plentiful in the mountains back of the lakes, and comprises elk, grizzly bear, mountain goat and bighorn. There are five varieties of grouse, including the ptarmigan. Water fowl are also abundant in season at Duck lake, three miles from lower St. Mary's lake.

THREATENED DESTRUCTION

Of Huntington, West Virginia. The Town in Flames

A WATER FAMINE

Prevails and the Fire Cannot Be Checked. Pumps Are Broken and Reservoirs Empty.

By Associated Press:
Huntington, W. Va., July 2.—This city has a water famine. The pumps at the water station are broken and the reservoirs empty. Thousands of laborers are idle, as the factories are unable to run. The Adelphi hotel is burning in a thickly populated part of the city, and because of the water famine the destruction of the entire town is threatened.

NO THIRD TERM FOR THE PRESIDENT

Grosvenor Reiterates a Former Expression With an Explanation.

By Associated Press:
Kansas City, July 2.—General Grosvenor of Ohio, speaking of utterances regarding the third term question imputed to him said, "I was misrepresented. The interview published was a distortion of mere statement of his torical facts regarding Washington's reasons for not accepting the third term. In my judgement no man will ever be elected to a third term."

POSTMASTER AT BALLARD.

The Browning district embraces the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains. It is an ideal location for large game. Elk, deer, bear, mountain lion, mountain sheep and goats are abundant. Goose, duck and chicken shooting is good in season. St. Mary's lake 40 miles distant, is reached by stage tri-weekly. Around St. Mary's lake is some of the finest mountain scenery in the world. The whole country is one of great beauty and attractiveness and sportsmen who visit this locality can rely upon a memorable trip.

Butte, July 2.—The Hebrew congregation of Butte will build a synagogue. This movement is a result of Rabbi Friedlander's efforts in that direction, the rabbi being from Oakland, California, as a representative of the order of Bnai Brith.

FOR THE MINERS.

And Other Bachelors Who Run Their Own Laundries.

F. V. Liebenow, the Spokane man who made himself famous by the invention of the full dinner pail, has come forward with a new invention on which he has secured a patent. A company has already been formed to own the patent and place the invention on the market.

The new invention is another pail, but very unlike the full dinner pail. It is a combination boiler, tub, bucket and washboard all in one, with no joints, no separate parts to be put together but all in one.

The new invention, which looks like a bucket, stands one foot high. Across the top it is 15 inches, and from there narrows down to a diameter of about eight inches about four inches above the bottom. This top portion is of ordinary tin. From the narrow diameter the base of the bucket again widens to one foot across the bottom. The lower portion is of galvanized iron. With the galvanized bottom it can with safety be placed on the stove to boil water. The sides of the upper portions of the bucket are corrugated like an ordinary washboard. This makes possible the boiling of the clothes in the bucket and their washing and scrubbing as if an ordinary washboard were used, or the bucket can be used also as an ordinary pail.

Mr. Liebenow has his invention patented in both the United States and Canada, but he has already sold his rights to Canada and the manufacturers up there have sent a large consignment to Alaska, where the article is said to be selling well to the miners, being an excellent equipment for mining camps as well as for the army and navy. The bucket will sell at $1.25 retail.

The company which has been formed has a capital of $25,000 and will simply handle the patent, leasing the rights for a certain length of time to eastern manufacturers. The company will also have space at the Buffalo exposition and exhibit the new invention.

HIDE BEHIND THEIR GOLD.

This shows how some of Chicago's millionaires evade payment of taxes and compel the poor man to bear the burden. All these have offices and residence building in Chicago.

Levi Z. Leiter, worth $12,000,000; no schedule. Claims residence in Washington.

Samuel W. Allerton, wealth estimated at $5,000,000. Filed schedule at $23,000; claims legal residence in Lake Grove.

Helen Culver, worth approximately $2,000,000; filed schedule with nominal amount, claiming residence at Lake Forest.

John V. Farwell, worth $10,000,000; filed schedule for $13,000, pleading residence in Lake county.

Charles B. Farwell, worth $12,000,000; no schedule filed; residence sworn to in Lake county.

Harlow N. Higginbotham, wealth estimated at $6,000,000; no schedule filed; claims residence in Joliet.

William M. Hoyt, worth $3,000,000; filed schedule of $30,000, claiming residence at Lake Forest and in Florida.

Tax dodging millionaires must face the grand jury and answer a few pertinent questions as to their belongings and place of residence.

The board of assessors is going to take the matter of tax evasion to State's Attorney Dineen and proceed against some of the prominent citizens who escape payment of their just obligations to the county and municipality. Claiming legal residence outside of Chicago and for that reason scheduling little or no property in Chicago is a new-fangled method adopted by the millionaires.

Living like leeches on the money paid for support of government by the poor people, the millionaire has taken his schedules of fact that he owns a summer home and has in his schedules filed with the board of assessors—if he has any filed at all—made the plea of permanent residence there.

Still others have deliberately ignored the notifications and schedules of the assessor's office and have blatantly refused to make any schedule. Many of the reformers who have been crying "tax legislation and reform" and who have been shouting to citizens to pay their taxes are among the worst offenders, the defrauders of law. With but few exceptions they have failed utterly to file schedules, or if they have made any valuation it is always so low as to fall below the taxable limit.
