"Nights of Enchantment."

To-morrow night (Tuesday) at Bingman's new hall, up stairs, on Main street, the above entertainment will take place. Being personally acquainted with Prof. Lewis, and recognizing his eastern reputation, and also to-day dropping in on him when arranging his magnificent stage setting and paraphernalia, we can safely say that he will fulfill his promises and give Livingston the most refined and laughable entertainment ever presented in this section. The hall will be seated with chairs, and, as quite a number have already been reserved, he will have a full house. Tickets are for sale at the postoffice. Notice his column advertisement.

The last meeting of the County Commissioners there was appropriated $300 to build a jail at this place. Of course we should be thankful for small favors but it strikes us that it is poor economy to keep paying transportation expenses for a lot of petit criminals who might be confined here for the short term for which they are convicted.

Next to the Almighty, in fact more than He, the roughs fear officers Conly and Metcalf. No deed of darkness but what they ferret it out and promptly bring the offenders to justice. To their efforts is greatly due the quiet and orderly state of the city, and strangers and others are as safe all hours of the night as they would be in their own homes.

The machine shops here have, so far progressed that the stone foundations are all finished and ready for the brick work, which will be commenced as soon as the brick can be hauled upon the ground. The shops, when completed, will be the largest on the line of the road, and will employ a large number of men, 1,000 of whom will be placed at work this summer.

Smith, Hagy & Co., at their new store, on Park street, have greatly improved the appearance of their store under the skillful and artistic suggestions of Mr. D. C. Detillier. The arrangement of the many colored goods on the shelves is very attractive, and the goods look tempting enough to persuade a lady to buy—even though she had to give them a stand-off to do so. Mr. A. B. Curry is still with the firm, and claims to still hold his share of the ladies' trade.

Last night a female celestial of microscopic virtue, who delights in the name of Princes Ah Sin, created quite a commotion in the part of town in which her peaceful habitation is located by blowing her whistle and making loud cries and protestations against her door being broken in. Soon a large crowd was gathered but the unknown demolishers of doors, celestial sleep and contentment had vanished in the brush and were forever lost to view to the almond-eyed heathen and the police officers.

It is not probable that the Park Branch road will be in running order before the latter part of October. At present all the iron has been used, and although a further supply of iron has been ordered it is not thought it will arrive in time to facilitate the time of opening the road before the above mentioned date. This is just what our citizens want to happen, and will be worth many thousands of dollars to us this summer, as all tourists will have to outfit here, and they consequently buy it cheaper than at the end of the track.

Hominy and Arnica.

An old darky came into an Austin drug store with his head bandaged up and groaning as if every bone in his body was broken.

"What is the matter?" asked the drug clerk.

"We have had the berry debble of a time, me and de ole woman, battering each udder wid de chairs and sich."

"Well, what do you want?"

"We needs some anarchy. Dar ain't no anarchy in de house. De bottle got smashed in de fuss, and de anarchy spilled all over de floor."

"If you had more harmony in your house, there would be less anarchy," remarked the drug clerk, smiling as he filled a small bottle of arnica.

"You am right, boss. Dat's jest what de fuss was about. De reason we needs anarchy is becase dar war no hominy in de house, and dat's why de ole woman hit me wid de chair."—Texas Siftings.
