F. A. KRIEGER,

MONTANA NEWS.

The Mayor of Helena, on behalf of the city, has invited President Arthur to visit that place.

The dead body of an unknown man was found near Pierson's station on the U. & N. last Friday. He had evidently lain there three months, and the crushed skull and a blood stained rock near by indicated that he might have been murdered.

A heavy freight train on the Utah and Northern, drawn by two locomotives, was thrown off the track near Butte by running down some cattle. The accident occurred on an embankment twelve feet high and the engines and six cars rolled down the bank and were piled up at the bottom. Win. Cullen, a fireman, was killed.

Upon the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad Lieut. Col. Gibson, 3d infantry, has been ordered from Fort Shaw to Fort Missoula, Montana. At the same time company F, 3d infantry, Page commanding, will proceed to Fort Missoula from Shaw, and company H, 3d infantry, Hobart commanding, will be transferred from Missoula to Shaw.

The ends of track on the Northern Pacific are rapidly approaching each other. On the east end last Friday 13,000 feet of track was laid, and on Saturday 14,100 feet (nearly three miles.) Friday night the gap was twenty-two miles wide and on Saturday night it was about seventeen. It is expected that the track from the east end reached the mouth of the Little Blackfoot Monday night.

The cold wind that visited the Yellowstone valley last Saturday afternoon and whitened the mountain tops with snow was a brisk snow storm in Butte lasting several minutes. Old timers say it was the coldest day they have experienced in August since August 16th, 1869, when the snow lay on the ground four inches deep, and at Yam Hill icicles as large as your arm formed upon the sluice boxes.

The Eva Clark Tragedy.

But little of any importance has been learned concerning last week's tragedy. Coroner Hirschman received a letter on Wednesday from Mrs. L. C. Clark's brother stating that the girl's real name was Evangeline Bird; that her father, James Bird, lives at Pentwater, Mich., and is a wealthy boat owner, and abundantly able to pay all expenses incident to the girl's burial. Eva's father and mother do not live together. Her brother lives with his father and she lived with her mother, who has resumed her maiden name—Clark—by which Eva was known. C. A. Lewis, the prisoner, still maintains that the girl's death was caused by a lamentable accident, and he is confident of his acquittal. The public feeling seems to be that Lewis is innocent of the crime for which he is held, from the fact that he had no apparent reason for wishing to get rid of her. —Dillon Tribune.

John Chinnick Dead.

A dispatch reached us too late for publication in yesterday's edition of the ENTERPRISE stating the bare fact that John Chinnick had died that morning at 2 o'clock. No further particulars have been obtained. He received the wound of which he died on the night of July 23rd and lingered, suffering from its effects until yesterday, or nearly a month. Who fired the shot which caused his death is to some extent a mystery. At last accounts he maintained his original statement that he received the wound accidentally, by his own hands, though there are many who openly declare their belief that his wife shot him purposely, as she had repeatedly threatened to do. The shooting occurred in his own house and without outside witnesses. The ball entered his stomach and it was supposed some days ago that he was suffering from blood poisoning, and this may have been the immediate cause of death.

As in every instance it is the disposition of the living to condone the faults of the dead, there are many who remember John Chinnick's good qualities and are willing to bury with him the recollection of the mode of life which made him occupy during life a position in the substratum of society. He leaves a considerable property behind him.

A Vision of the Night.

Frank B. Howells the well-known commercial ambassador for the St. Paul wholesale grocery firm of Allen, Moon & Co. returned from the Park last evening accompanied by his companions Chas. Clarey of the Second National Bank of Charleston, Ill., and T. H. Cook, third of the English family who during years past have managed the Cook tourist excursions—a scheme which brought money to the managers and enabled many a person of limited means to travel pleasantly in foreign lands. These three made the tour of the Park and by their own account had some racy experiences. They had with them as guide one George Winegan a roamer of the plains who had driven a herd of horses from Idaho, and whose mind seemed to have been greatly occupied with thoughts of the trip he had just completed. One night he and Clarey went to bed under the same blanket, and George from force of habit neglected to remove his spurs which were of a pattern specially devised to arouse the sensibilities of the thick-skinned broncho. During the night he dreamed that he was astride a stubborn cayuse and according to custom began using the spurs most vigorously. They took effect, along the front of Clarey's legs causing a movement on the part of that gentleman that was highly gratifying to George who, thinking that the cayuse of his dreams was beginning to respond, followed up his supposed advantage with a roll of the spurs that sent Clarey out into the starlight followed by a volume of anathemas that wounded his feelings as much as the spurs had injured his legs. The guide woke up under the impression that he had been bucked overboard and when next he lay down he had a blanket all to himself. Clarey says he is going to become an active member of the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals and shall begin by discountenancing spurs.

The smallest plant known in nature is the Arctic raspberry, which is so small that a six-ounce vase will hold the whole, branches, leaves and all.
