Booker T. Washington's Advice to the Colored Youth.

SHOULD MAKE OPPORTUNITIES

The Best Way to Prove That the Negro Is Not Shiftless Nor Lazy Is by Each One Showing What He Can Do for Himself-Large Audience Filled the Church.

When Booker T. Washington was escorted to the platform of the Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church last night by Rev. F. J. Grimke and Prof. H. M. Browne, of the Colored High School, he looked pleased at the size of the audience. Every seat in the church was occupied, and there were nearly, if not quite, as many white people

The women connected with the church has placed palms on the platform tasteful manner, that added greatly to its appearance. The lecture of Mr. Washigton was given for the benefit of the Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church, and a very handsome sum was realized.

Mr. Washington was introduced to the audience by Prof. Browne, who explained that the delay of half an hour in arriving at the church was unavoidable by Mr. Washington. After the formal introduction, the lecturer said:

The average man usually has the idea that if he were just somewhere else, in another State or city, or in contact with another race he would succeed, forgetting too often to utilize the forces that are about him and in hand.

As bad as American slavery was, as great as was its curse to black and white man, we as a race got one benefit through the providence of God that we should not fail to utilize and take advantage of in our present condition. Every large slave plantation in the South was in a limited sense an industrial school. It had its common farming department, its carpentry, wheelwrighting, blacksmithing, brick masonry, cooking and sewing departments For 250 years God made the Southern white man do business with the negto. If a Southern white man wented a house built or a suit of clothes made he con suited a negro about the building of that house or the making of those clothes. Thus the two races got used to doing business with each other. This training and this business contact found us at the close of the war in possession of all the common and skilled labor. While I would be the last in the slightest degree to seem to apolegize for slavery, yet it is safe to say that during slavery we had more colored youths learning trades in one county in the South than there are learning trades today in the whole city of Washington. The thing that I wish I could burn into the heads and hearts of my people all over this country is that we do not want to lose this legacy in the form of skilled labor that was purchased and handed down to us by our fathers at the price of 250 years in slavery. We shall lose this element of strength unless we do two things; one is to put more brains and skill into the common occupations that are about our doors, and the other is to dignify and glorify common labor. We want to put into these industrial occupations, if we would compete with the for eiguers who are pouring into the South, the highest training of intellect and greatest skill of hand. This competition should not be left to the ignorant or to those merely with a common school education, but thus educated in universities and colleges should more and more enter industrial life.

President McKinley is a great and good man, but with all his greatness and good nesss be cannot supply places for one-tenth of those who are knocking at his door. What I would say to the black youth in this respect I would repeat to the white youth: Go somewhere in the South and start an numble business of your own, then instead of having to beg another for for a position. Start a brickyard, a print ing office, a track garden, a creamery, a stock farm, a real estate office; become a contractor and builder, an architect, or landscape gardener, and then when Mr. McKipley sees that you have made a success of your own business, started in an humble manner, he will send for you and ask you to step up to higher things all cannot secure offices under Mr. Mcpurselves. Let us utilize the forces that

The best way to knock a man down is town and says that the negro is shiftless and lazy, let us be able to show him the best farm in the county owned and culti vated by an educated negro; the best saw-mill, the best lumberyard, the best row of brick houses, the best grocery store the best horse and carriage, the best col-One object lesson of this kind is worth more to us as a race than all the fine spun theories we can produce concern ing the future possibilities of the negro We must corvince our next door neighbor of our worth, and more and more throughout the South we are doing it.

portance of our taking advantage of the we have been trying to do for fifteen years Starting on an old plantation in a small shanty and church, we have gradually built up by the labor of the students themselves and the help of friends on the outside, an institution that now has property valued at $300,000. On this old plantation there are thirty-eight buildings, large and small, and all but three have been almost wholly acres of land, 700 acres under cultivastant operation. There are more than wagons and buggles owned and used by the school. There are 52 horses and nules, and in all 480 head of live stock The annual expenses of the institution are about $65,000 a year. The students themselves supply labor every year to the have six printing presses in operation and print four newspapers. students and eighty-one instructors. Counting the families of our instructors, we have a constant population on our school grounds We not only give industrial training, but the most thorough literary and religious training in connec-tion with it. We are trying here topiant a great object lesson in the civilization and uplifting of the negro, yea, more than this, we are seeking to erect a lighthouse that shall point black men and white men everywhere to a heaven, out of the night and storm and uncertainty of the American race problem. I propose in everything that the black man take his place upon the high and and generosity in all things, and that he invite the white man everywhere to step up and occupy this position with him, and If the white man in all paris of our country cannot accept this invitation, he will thus prove that this is a white man's problem rather than a negro problem.

PICKPOCKET IN CHURCH.

Plied His Trade While Presiden McKinley Took Communion.

Pickpockets were at work Sunday in the great throngs of people who attended the Metropolitan M. E. Church to see President and Mrs. McKinley take their first communion in Washington. While the impressive services were in progress, a well-dressed young man, apparently very devout, stopped from his sham prayers ong enough to pick the pockets of Mr William T. Brown, a visitor from Roches The thief secored Mr. Brown's pocketbook containing $8 and some rea favorable opportunity arrived for him to sneak from the church. Mr. Brown re-ported the theft to Inspector Hollinberger. It is reported that a lady had her purse stolen, but she has not reported the case

Gover Haskins, residing at No. 619 D street northwest, reported yesterday that burgiars broke into his wareroom last night and stole three chickens and a lot of entables, Burglars also entered the store of Reeves, Poole & Co., No. 1209 P street northwest, last night or early vesterday morning, by forcing the lock on a rear door. The thickes broke open two money drawers in the front store and tole between $45 and $50.

"Stump's" Three-Bagger Gave the 'Varsity Two Runs.

COLLEGIANS' GOOD SHOWING

gressive Game and Gave the B.g. Leaguers an Interesting Argument-A Large Crowd Present and Rooters Were Very Enthusiastic. The plocky 'Varsity boys in blue and gray from across Rock Creek gave the big leaguers a strong argument for three innings at National Park yesterday afternoon, and though they had to eventually succumb to the experience, weight, batting strength, and strategy of their veteran opponents, yet they had the pleasure and satisfaction of minking them hostle for every run gained.

It was the first time in five years that clubs representing the capital and the university had met on the diamond, and naturally a great deal of interest was aroused among the fans. The last game preceding was played in April, 1892, the Senators of that time merely beating the college boys-the score standing 5 to 4. Al Maul pitched for the leaguers and in talking of the game he said he nearly threw his arm off in holding down the long-haired youngsters.

The collegians were accompanied from their bailiwick yesterday by a large retinue of rooters, and they availed themselves of the slightest opportunity to raise a din and make all those strange noises peculiar to the followers and shouters for a school team. Of course, their encouraging cries were perfectly unintelligible to the regular dyed-in-the-wool fans, but the enthusiasm was enjoyed, even if the language was as so much Greek or Hindoo. Things would be going along very quiet when all at once party of shouters would start off a lot of miling similar to a house falling down or the charge of a tribe of Apaches. It was a thoroughly good-humored audience, and whatever rangs the George town contingent suffered from the defeat of their favorites was more than counterbalanced by their salendid showing against the professionals. Had nothing else happened McCarthy's single in the sixth and Reardon's terrific drive to left for three bases wouldhave been glory enough. When this feat was accomplished a body of howling dervishes, wrought to the highest pitch, could not have equaled the performance on grand stand and bleachers Lungs were strained and hats tossed about as so much paper. Even the staid fathers from the university could not refrain from 'a bit of approval," and the Georgetown lady fans shricked and exulted in the way natural to femininity. As to the "Willie boy" squad of 'varsity admirers, the excitement was entirely too drastic, and they fainted away. Liberal doses of soda pop and cigarettes revived them, however, in time to witness the close of the struggle

An unfortunate accident in the second inning was the only mar to an enjoyable afternoon. The collegians had come in to take their turn at bat, after disposing of the professionals in one, two, three rder, and First Baseman Dawson, was up get his first crack at the ball. McJames had pitched two strikes, and for the third ne sent in a fast high ball right over the plate. Dawson thought it would be a curve and before McJames could warn him, he ducked his head directly in the path of the flying sphere. He fell like a dead man and was not revived for several The blow forced him from the game and his place was taken by Smith. Dawson's injury is not serious, and barriag a headache and a big bump near the right night and tell how it all happened

The battery work of Waish and Ma-loney, the third base play of McIntyre and the fielding of Kelly in left, were the outstanding features of Georgetowns exhibition, though it is a difficult matter to mention the excellence of any one player there are several candidates who voted the without giving credit to the team as a

Walsh pitched six innings and then gave way to Clancey, who finished the game This change, with the replacing of Dawson by Smith after the accident to the former, were the only ones made.

The big lenguers appeared to feel as if they had somewhat of a contract on hand, and played as if pitted against the leaders in the regular campaign. McJawes, Swaim, and Ashe officiated on the rubber and McGuire and Farrell did the receiving. Jimmy made a good showing, the school-boys not being able to gather a hit from him during the three innings he faced They negotiated with Swalm for three bingles and a triple and connected ith Ashe for one base hit, that by Capt. McCarthy.

Charley Reilly's fielding continues up to the gilt-edge standard. His catch of Maloney's high line drive to third in the sixth electrifeid the crowd and won the new mer generous rounds of applause. The Senators were blanked until the fourth. Selbach led off with a two-bagger to center and scored on McGuire's hit to right field. O'Brien bunted to first, but Smith made a bad throw to Fleming to catch McGuire, and the "Old Rehable" traveled to third, and registered run No 2 a moment later on Cartwright's long fly out to McCarthy. On a fielder's choice of Reilly's tap, O'Brien was forced from Rear don to McIntyre, and Swaim was retired posed of by Walsh to Smith, and Reardon captured DeMontreville's short fly, Selbach worked a base on balls, stole second, and tailied on McGoire's drive to left. O'Brien flew out to McCarthy, ending the inning. Two runs were added in the sixth of singles by Cartwright, Brown and Reilly, and Lush's two-bagger to right enter. On Ashe's flyout to Lamb Reilly was doppled at third, and DeMontreville's r up was squeezed by McIntyre. In the venth Farrell started the inning with a base hit to left, and scored after O'Brien shed the leather for a trio of sacks Johnny came home with the seventh and last run on Cartwright's hit to center. The 'varsity harvested their pair of tailies in the sixth. Capt. McCarthy pushed the bail to center for a base and had no trouble in traveling the balance of the circuit to home plate when "Stump" Reardon landed on one of Swaim's fast tails for a trip to deep left field. Reardon registered when Billy Lush dropped Lamb's fly to his garden.

In the remaining innings the students were retired in short order, not a runner getting as far as second base. A study of the score by innings shows that but for Reardon's three-barger the 'varsity would have been shut out. The score

"SMILING AL" MAUL ARRIVES He Reported at National Park Ye terday Afternoon.

Al. Maul, the Washington pitcher, whos 'smile' is well-known to the fans, and whose "salary arm" has been giving them great concern of late, put in appearance at National Park yesterday. Al, as is his wont, was garbed in all the glory of the season, and 'twixt the immaculate asco that stood out from his shirt front, in which snarkled a two-carat headlight. orown, strapped seam overcoat and striped trousers, creased just exactly right, he was enough of a fashion plate to remind Charley Reilly of his saind days when he traveler eck and neck with Herry Wall

The somberness of winter left none of its frigidity on Al's "smile" and his face was as open as a Waterbury watch when he greeted The Times man

"Just say," said the big twirler, "that all rumors about my retirement from base ball are mere speculation. I have informe Mr. Waguer that I intend to remain in the business five years longer, 'sliding,' or any other sort of a contract. My affairs in Philadelphia would not permit a come to Washington before now, but I have been undergoing light training an am in fair condition for the time of year. "I haven't tried my arm and until I do I am not able to say whether it has recov ered from the troubles that beset it in 1895 and again last year. DIAMOND DUST.

The Senators and Georgetown will play again at National Park tomorrow after noon.

This will be ladies' day at the park and all fair fans holding complimentary passes will be admitted free to the grounds and grand stand.

The Lafayette College team is very strong, and in view of the fact the Cath olic University boys, only organized this season, made a superb showing agains them yesterday at Colombia Field.

Jimmy McJames' appearance yesterday was a surprise, as he was not expected to reach Washington until Wednesday. But he was able to get away from home sconer than anticipated, and made a bee line for Washington, as he was anxious to get to work in the open air after the sechsion of his mouths of hard study at Charleston. Jimmy is one of the most popular players that wears a "toga," and was given a hearty greeting when he walked out on the diamond to pitch against Georgetown. This afternoon the Senators will meet the University of Vermont club at National Park. LAFAYETTES Defeated the Catholic University in an Interesting Game.

The Local Boys Outplayed the Visitors on All Points After the Third Inning.

The ball tossers from Lafayette College Easton, Pa., defeated the Catholic University team yesterday afternoon, at Columbia Field, by a score of 8 to 4, in one of the prettiest games played on local grounds

As the score indicates it was a snappy game. The home team, somehow or other, did not pull themselves together until the fourth inning, after which time they clearly outplayed the visitors at every

At the outset the representatives of La fayette went in to win and, with a single, a base on balls, and a scratch home run, by Barclay, marked up three runs. Again in the third inning, with two men out, they managed to add three more to their score. It was just at this time that McTighe, who was doing the twirling for the university boys, called a and from this on to the end, nowed down the visitors one after another. In this line he made the record of the game in the fourth inning when, after one man had reached first base, he struck out the next three batters.

Jones, of the Lafayettes, also took a hand in the strikeout feature of the game having ten deaths at the place placed to his credit.

The Catholic University team showed great improvement since their last appearnce, when they defeated Johns Hopkins, and with a little strengthening of the receiving end of the battery will have every reason to put in a claim for the college championship. There is no doubt, however, that the soppy condition of the grounds had much to do with the defeat The game was witnessed by a fair attendance of baseball enthusiasts, noticeable among which were a large number of the divinity students from the Catholic University. There were also a number of rooters who accompanied the visitors from Easton, who lost no opportunity to whoop The visitors will leave this morning for Charlottesville, Va., where they will play the University of Virginia boys three They will then return here of Friday and play the Georgetown Uni-The score Catholic University.

Capt. Schley to Fill the Office Held by Admiral Walker.

Capt. W. S. Schley was elected chairman of the lighthouse board yesterday after noon when the board met at the Treasury Department. He succeeds Renr Admiral Walker, who was retired four weeks ago Gen. J. M. Wilson announced to the board that his orgent duties as chief of the engineers, especially in the matter of fortifications, nyer and harbor work will ne essitate his resignation from the board

This vacancy will probably be filled by the appointment of Col. Gillespie, Corps of Engineers, president of the Mississippi River Commission, and also in charge of the river and barbor improvement at New York. The new honor conferred on Gol. Gillespie will not prevent him from continuing his duties as heretofore, imasmich as a portion of his engineering work was ome time ago transferred to Lieut. Col.

Inaugural Fund Turned Over. The sum of $7,000, left from the in augural fund, which was placed at the disposal of the District Commissioners for the benefit of charity, was formally ac-cepted by the board yesterday. It will be dded to the fund on hand received from a former inauguration committee, and invested in real estate, the interest to be used for the relief of the poor. check for the amount was received from the board of Commissioners.
