Necessities of the Poor Going Up in Price.

THE RICH DO NOT FEEL IT

An Interesting Schedule Showing How the Prices of the Things Which the Poor Must Buy Have Been Raised by the Increase of the Burden of Taxation.

The ink of the President's signature to the tariff bill was scarcely dry before the prices of goods affected by that instrument began to ascend the scale all over the country.

Prosperty, which was promised on every stump from which a Republican candidate spoke, has not put in its appearance.

The laboring man who voted the Republican ticket in the expectation that the sunshine of good times would shed its benignant rays upon his head is disappointed.

White lead and other lead products—Increase 25 per cent. Putty—Increase 25 per cent.

Medicines—Increased 30 per cent. Soap—Rates doubled. China and crockery—From 35 to 60 per cent.

Engraved glassware—From 40 to 60 per cent. Window glass—Increased all the way from 25 per cent to 100 per cent.

Lithographic plates for cheap forms—Largely increased, so the plate-glass trust can force the purchase of plate glass.

Speculatives—Increased almost a cheap pair of spectacles can not pay less than 65 per cent, and from that up to over 120 per cent.

Marble—A duty of $1.30 per cubic foot for gravestones. This is nearly double the present law.

Steel coils—$7.84 per ton, when contracts are being made to supply rails in England for less than English iron-makers demand.

Iron plates—Increased, notwithstanding importations decreased one-half under the present law and the domestic output has risen from 125,000,000 pounds in 1894 to 307,000,000 pounds in 1896.

Card clothing—Used in all Southern mills for carding cotton—the rate is advanced to 35 per cent ad valorem.

Sporting guns—Rates more than trebled. The duty on a sporting rifle valued at about $10, is 95 per cent, as against 30 per cent at present.

Granite ware is 35 per cent and importations have fallen from $66,000 to $51,000. The rate is increased to 40 per cent.

There were $4,000 worth of burrhead nails imported in 1896, under a duty of 35 per cent; yet the duty is made over 35 per cent.

Iron nails—The rate is made 25 per cent, notwithstanding only $143 worth were imported in '96.

Wire nails—Increased from 25 to 60 per cent, while there was only $25,000 imported in 1896—not enough to stock one week's demand.

Tacks—Twelve thousand dollars worth imported at 25 per cent. The increased duty is commingly concealed by making it 1 1/4 cents per 1,000, which will treble existing rates.

Saws—There was a revenue of $29,700 derived from mill saws in '96, with a duty of 10 cents per foot. This rate is continued. It amounts to over 50 per cent ad valorem.
