

BRIGHTWOOD'S NEW FLAG

Engine 13's New Banner Unfurled to the Breeze.

A NUMBER OF LUCKY MEN

The Presentation of a New Emblem to the Suburb's Fire Department Made a Civic Event—Col. Stone Presents the Flag—Commissioner Wright Receives It—A Banquet.

The presentation of a handsome new flag to the fire department of Brightwood last evening was an interesting affair. It was an event in which all the residents of that beautiful and thriving suburb of the National Capital are deeply interested, and they were all there to do honor to the occasion, not only the male portion of the population, but the ladies in great numbers, their presence lending additional charm and interest to the ceremony.

The exercises preceding the raising of the new flag over the new engine-house were held on the beautiful lawn of the Emory mansion, immediately opposite the engine-house, on Brightwood avenue. The mansion is now exclusively the property of C. Cox, the president of the Brightwood Citizens' Association, who kindly loaned the use of the grounds for the occasion. Near the center of the lawn, which was illuminated by hundreds of Chinese lanterns, was erected a large platform on which the exercises preliminary to the raising of the flag were held. The stand, which was profusely decorated with the national colors in flags and bunting, was brilliantly lighted by electric lights, and a hundred or more Chinese lanterns.

Across the avenue, immediately in front of the stand, was the new engine house, handsomely decorated and brightly lighted. It was, indeed, a gala occasion, one which will long be remembered by the residents of Brightwood. Everything that could be done for the arrangements, committee for the entertainment of the home folks and visitors was done. This feature of the evening's entertainment was, of course, a most decided success.

In front of the platform were chairs and benches for the accommodation of the audience, but 500 seats did not accommodate 1,000 or more persons, the overflow being quite content to stand.

The exercises were opened with prayer by the Rev. H. M. Reed, pastor of Emory Chapel, before which, however, was a display of fireworks. An interesting and wholly unexpected incident was the exhibition drill by the fire department, which took place on signal from Mr. William C. Cox, the chairman of the meeting. It was given just after the speech of acceptance by Commissioner Wright, and attracted great credit on Foreman Sherman and his corps of fire ladders.

Following the prayer by the Rev. Dr. Reed the choir of Emory Chapel sang several patriotic airs.

On the platform with President Cox, Stanley of Soldiers' Home; R. F. Howard, deputy governor Soldiers' Home; Col. Devoe, L. P. Shoemaker, Dr. A. P. Ford, Thomas O'Brien, superintendent Brightwood Railway Company; Charles F. Williams, general manager of the Brightwood Railway Company; Andrew Loeffler, Ed. A. Newman, Capt. Townsend, H. L. Egan, M. A. Ballenger, president Columbia Heights Citizens' Association; Austin P. Brown, Dr. W. B. Thadde, Mr. Brock, Mr. King, Dr. John Lowndes, Mr. E. E. Easley, Mr. C. C. Lancaster.

The address of welcome was made by Mr. W. C. Cox, president of the Brightwood Citizens' Association, who, in a few appropriate remarks, extended a cordial welcome to all.

Mr. T. F. Bates, who spoke of "Our New Engine-house," gave a brief history of station No. 13 and the erection of the building.

The pupils of the Brightwood public school, under the direction of Prof. W. E. Nalley, principal of the school, accompanied by the band of the Second Regiment, National Guard, sang "Red, White and Blue" in splendid style.

Mayor Emory Cox, son of President Cox, recited the "Star-spangled Banner."

The honor of presenting the flag devolved on Dr. E. Stone, one of the most prominent and active members of the Brightwood Citizens' Association. It was the gift, he said, of the residents of the northwest section of the District.

After commending the Commissioners for all they had done for Brightwood, in behalf of the residents of the District, Commissioner Wright, representing the District authorities.

A POLICEMAN'S DAY OFF

Peace Officer John Shipley Becomes a Peace Disturber.

DRUNK AND VERY DISORDERLY

He Enters the House of a Colored Family, Smashes Furniture and Assaults an Old Lady—Has Trouble With His Landlady and Finally Lands in Jail.

Patrolman John Shipley took a day off yesterday, and while very drunk entered the home of Mrs. Ellen Lyles, a colored woman, No. 423 Seventh street northeast, and, after demolishing quite an amount of furniture, assaulted Rachel Brown, a woman nearly 100 years of age.

Shipley was stationed in the Ninth precinct but a few weeks, and formerly was at the Fifth precinct, but when Detective Sutton was transferred from the First precinct Shipley was assigned to duty at the Ninth.

The patrolman was in citizens' clothes when he went into the house, and was seen going upstairs by a young daughter of Mrs. Lyles. The girl ran to her mother and informed her that a man was in the house. Remaining from the room where she was washing clothes, Mrs. Lyles found that Shipley had gone into an upper room, where her mother, Mrs. Rachel Brown, aged twenty-seven, was sitting in a chair.

As she arrived at the door Shipley was aiming a vicious blow at the old woman. The young girl in the meantime arrived, and made strenuous efforts to protect the aged woman from the attack of Shipley. In trying to get out of the way the girl slipped backward and fell down the entire flight of stairs.

After throwing over chairs and tables, Shipley started down stairs, following Mrs. Brown, who was almost paralyzed by fear. Mrs. Lyles called to a man who was passing to go into the house and protect her mother while she went for an officer. Shipley had in the meantime drawn his blackjack and was flourishing it in a threatening manner. He then proceeded to slow his police whistle vigorously. Muttering to himself, he walked softly into a room on the lower floor and sifting a collection of glassware on the table demolished the whole by a few well-directed blows with his blackjack. He attempted to overturn the buffet, but failing in this took his revenge on the furniture.

When the policeman was summoned by the white and by Mrs. Lyles' cries to the Ninth precinct station, Shipley was trying to wreck the flower garden in the backyard, and Sgt. Wagner and Patrolmen Tracy and Flatlers, who had reached the house, were much surprised to find that Shipley was the offender, but soon apprehended him and carried him to the Ninth precinct station.

Lieut. Heffer promptly suspended Shipley for drunkenness and conduct unbecoming an officer, while a charge of assault was preferred against him by Mrs. Brown.

Shipley started on his rampage early in the morning. He went to 619 H street and engaged rooms and board. He soon returned and frightened Mrs. Brown, his landlady, by persistent demands for his dinner. He left there and showed up next at the home of Mrs. Hopkins, No. 703 H street. He insisted that he had engaged rooms at the house and informed them that he would have his furniture sent up.

Mrs. Hopkins' son ordered him away, and Shipley made a dive for him, and he fled upstairs. The women in the house set up a shrieking, and Shipley threw his whistle vigorously. Policeman Tracy responded, and he tried to get Shipley out of the house. He rushed through the house and went up Seventh street telling the women that he was alright.

Shipley next visited the Davis' grocery store, corner of Seventh and F streets northeast, and ordered the proprietor to move his wagon from in front of the building. Mr. Davis refused to comply with the order, and was assaulted by Shipley. Shipley was wounded in the encounter, and went off on his disastrous trip to the Lyles' house. He has been on the force but five months, and up to this time has been exemplary in his conduct.

His Capture Thought to Be a Matter of a Few Days Only—Disguised as a Woman.

HE SOLD LOTTERY TICKETS

Geo. Prender Arrested Charged With a Serious Crime.

HONDURAS COMPANY'S AGENT

Seen to Pass the Coupons to Customers—Claims They Were Given Him by Another Man Who Found Them—Once a Well-Known and Popular Citizen.

The old Louisiana State Lottery has again shown its head in Washington, doing business under the name of the Honduras National Lottery Company. It has been four years since the local police have been called upon to enforce the law in respect to the Louisiana State Lottery, and it was supposed that the business, which flourished here to such a large extent, had been effectually blotted out.

The first arrest for violation of the law in this respect was made about 11 o'clock yesterday morning by Detective Watson, who apprehended George Prender, who is alleged to be the company's agent in this city, and locked him up in No. 6 station. Prender is ostensibly a life insurance agent, and has an office at his residence, No. 533 Tenth street southeast, but the detectives found in his possession the tickets, and the corresponding names of the Honduras Lottery Company in this city, and has been acting as such for some months past.

The lottery business had just begun to flourish again. Detective Watson, who has special charge of police cases, and who has succeeded in breaking up all the schemes of the lottery business the facts some time ago, but has heretofore been unable to fasten a case upon Prender. Yesterday he slipped him passing two suspicious-looking slips of paper to two men, and immediately placed him under arrest. The two men at once surrendered the slips, which proved to be regular lottery tickets in the Honduras, formerly the Louisiana State, Lottery Company.

In Prender's possession was found a paper containing the names of twenty-five persons to whom he had sold tickets, and the corresponding names of the Honduras Lottery Company in this city, and has been acting as such for some months past.

The tickets which Detective Watson secured were Nos. 80,363 and 92,346, and read that the drawing will take place on Saturday, August 14, at Puerto Cortez, Honduras, under the direction of the Honduras National Lottery Company, governed by the Louisiana State Lottery. The 3,434 prizes noted on the slips range from 999, of $8 each, to one grand prize of $30,000.

Prender has been accustomed to transacting his business with the company by means of express to avoid sending his money through the mails. He was locked up in No. 6 station on the charge of promoting police lottery. The penalty for the offense is quite severe, being both fine and imprisonment. The case will come up in police court this morning.

George Prender was at one time well known and well liked in Washington. He is of English birth and is fifty-five years old. He came to Washington forty years ago. He has held many excellent positions in this city, and has always given satisfaction to the people with whom he has come in contact. Many years ago he resigned a $1,500 position in the Treasury Department and started a stationery store on Thompson's drug store. This business was bought out by the Breantons.

A reporter for The Times called on Mr. Thompson yesterday afternoon and asked him about Mr. Prender. "Yes, I know George Prender very well," he said. "He kept the more next door to me for a long time twenty years ago, and we were very good friends. He was very punctilious about his ordinary obligations, and I remember that five years ago that he asked me that store he came to my place and paid me $4 or $5 that he had borrowed, and that I had entirely forgotten. I have seen him at intervals of two or three days to a few years ever since that time. It was a few days ago that he asked me in the insurance business. I do not believe, from my knowledge of the man, that these charges against him will prove to be true."

Several years after this time Mr. Prender was employed in the sixth auditor's office. He resigned from this place of duty, and was transferred to the War Department. Two years ago, in a general reduction of force in the War Department, he was one of the several who had to give up their places.

Inquiry at the Treasury Department and at the War Department, where he was well remembered, showed that his reputation in these places, both for his work and for his personal character, was excellent. Several people spoke of his generosity and of many acts of kindness that had signified his work in the office.

After Mr. Prender left the War Department he did not succeed so well in a business way as formerly. He became the agent for a silver-plated ware firm, and for a soap establishment. Later he gave that up, and with the aid of some gold, and the help of the War Department, he has been ostensibly an agent for the Royal Life Insurance Company. It cannot be learned, however, that Mr. Prender has done any insurance business.

Prender does not deny the lottery ticket sale. He was seen by a Times reporter yesterday, and gave a full account of what he alleged to be the facts of the case. "I sold the tickets," he said. "I sold three of them. I didn't deny this to the detective nor refuse to give my correct name and address. The tickets were given to me by a man named Thorpe, who lives in my neighborhood, for a debt he owed me. I don't know how he got them, but that he sold them I found them."

The two men who bought the tickets from me I never saw before. I got to talking with them about the tickets and gold, and they never said a word to me. I remembered the tickets in my pocket, and having no use for them, said to the men: "I've got something better than the tickets." I showed them the tickets Thorpe had given me, and they immediately offered to purchase them.

him, which had not been taken away from him by the station officers.

Mr. Prender said Mr. Thomas J. MacNamee, of Rhode Island avenue, is his brother-in-law, and that he is rich and will undoubtedly go to his home as soon as he hears of his trouble. He expressed no doubt of being present in person of carrying on the lottery business, and said that he had never sold any tickets before.

He accounted for the slip with the numbers of other tickets and names on it. It found in his possession by the detective by saying that this also had been handed him by Thorpe.

In the neighborhood where the Prender family lives nobody has ever known of any lottery business, and Mr. Prender has a good reputation.

FOUGHT FOR THE WAGONS

Maryland Politicians Pummel Each Other Over a Disputed Wager.

Re-Assemblyman Holmes, of Prince George County, Assailed by Levi Simms, Colored.

The first personal encounter, resulting from the factional fight among the Prince George Republicans, took place yesterday between George Holmes, of Landover, Md., and Levi Simms, a colored politician, of Hainesburg.

Holmes was a member of the last general assembly of Maryland, and is also prominent in business circles of Prince George county. He owns the large store at Landover, and is said to be a partner in the Washington store, corner First and E streets northwest. In the recent primaries and convention in Prince George's, Mr. Holmes supported Spry E. Mudd, in his effort to control the convention, and further to elect to the Senate George's successor, Levi Simms is an adherent of the opposition, that desires Mudd's defeat at any cost, and incidentally favor Gov. Lloyd Lowndes' candidacy for the United States Senate.

The battle was waged over the name of Capt. C. G. Gordon, who it is claimed, was the State senate will vote against Mudd.

Holmes and Simms waged their wagers on the result of the primary elections. The convention split into two bodies, who held separate sessions and made different decisions. Both sides were determined to win the wagers. The vehicles had been locked up and the key given to a friend. Simms got the key and started to take the wagons away. Holmes arrived on the scene, and the dispute resulted in a fight. Simms planted a blow on Holmes' face, and it is said, broke his nose. A gentleman who was present states that while Holmes was lying unconscious on the ground Simms carried off the wagons. Holmes is a powerful man and trouble is expected to ensue from the assault.

Holmes has a number of friends in Washington, and the story of the fight, as published in The Times yesterday afternoon has caused quite an amount of comment.

GUSTAV STAHL AS THE HOST.

The Proprietor of Glen Echo Dines the Press and Ad- Writers.

Mr. Gustav Stahl, the boss of the Glen Echo property, invited the Washington press and Ad. Writers' Club to a banquet at the grounds last night. When the evening was over the opinion was unanimous that Glen Echo was a most pleasant place, and that Mr. Stahl was a gentleman eminently qualified to manage the grounds.

Inquiry at the Treasury Department and at the War Department, where he was well remembered, showed that his reputation in these places, both for his work and for his personal character, was excellent. Several people spoke of his generosity and of many acts of kindness that had signified his work in the office.

LOTTE TEMPLE'S FATE,

Believed to Have Been Murdered by Her Lover Garrison.

Rock Island, Ill., Aug. 6.—Mrs. Thomas Temple, of Rapids City, Ill., mother of Lotte Temple, who mysteriously disappeared from her boarding-place, in Chicago, where she had been induced to live with a hater named William Garrison, has received the following letter:

"Defiance, O., Aug. 3. "Mrs. Temple, Rapids City, Ill.: "Dear Madam—I read in regard to a body that was found in a naked condition in a well in Wayland county, Iowa, July 23, and it is my opinion that that body is your daughter's. That man, William Garrison, is the lover and murderer. Any more you would like to know, address Christian Winkler, Defiance, O."

When questioned regarding Lotte's disappearance, Garrison said she had been kidnapped while in a room with him. Garrison cannot be found.

NEWS FROM ALEXANDRIA

Mrs. Henrietta Petry Falls From a Second-Story Window.

Alexandria, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Henrietta Petry, wife of Mr. John Petry, of 702 North Columbus street, met with an accident yesterday afternoon, and that she escaped serious injury is almost a miracle.

Mrs. Petry is a bride of a few weeks, and was engaged in arranging her new home and went to a rear window in the second story to shake a dress. The wind caught the garment and carried it from the lady's hand. As she made an effort to grab it she lost her balance and fell head foremost to the yard below. Those who witnessed the accident thought that the lady had been killed. She was attended by Dr. Jones, who does not regard her injuries as serious.

An attempt was made at an early hour this morning, near St. Asaph's Junction, by three men to hold up Mr. William Clanchester, who was on his way from Washington to this city. When the ruffians attempted to grab Mr. Clanchester's horse he whipped the animals and succeeded in making his escape.

John Campbell, the man who was shot at the city jail on Tuesday night while attempting to saw through the bars, became very violent last night and it is reported that he has been held. Campbell flogged himself and today pretended that he knew nothing of what had taken place last night. His wound is rapidly healing and he will be turned over to the Maryland authorities in a few days.

At a meeting of the Board of Road and Ladder Company tonight, Vice President Trisner presided. One applicant was elected to membership, and one member retired from active membership and was placed on the honorary roll. Chief Petrey addressed the meeting and requested the co-operation of the members of the company in an effort to improve the efficiency of the department.

William Saunders, colored, who was arrested yesterday with Mary Petrix, also colored, for fighting, was fined $5 in the police court this morning. Mary was released. Jerry Horney, colored, for being drunk and disorderly, was fined $2.50. The charge against Samuel Marble, of the larceny of $6 from Charles Shepherd, was not sustained.

Mr. William Grillo, of West End, was generally injured by being kicked by a horse yesterday.

Supplement Keuper concluded the examination of teachers for the public schools today.

Walter Harris, colored, was brought to jail this evening from Alexandria on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. He was sentenced for thirty days by Justice W. S. Sellers for carrying concealed weapons.

An interesting sermon was delivered tonight by Rev. J. E. Thacker at the tent meeting at the corner of Payne and Oak streets.

W. E. Staples, of King George county, who was sentenced at the July term of the United States court to pay a fine of $1,000 for violating the pension laws, was released from jail today. Staples had served thirty days in jail, and through the efforts of his attorney, was taken before Commissioner Fowler today and proved that he was unable to pay the fine.

The Columbia Fire Company has petitioned the board of fire wardens for 1,000 feet of new hose. They have also called the attention of the board to the fact that the company has not been supplied with a hose to replace the one which recently died of lockjaw.

Frank Hobbey, while riding a bicycle near the corner of Pitt and Queen streets this evening, was run over by the team of Mr. Gray, which was driven by a colored man. The young man was thrown violently to the ground and badly bruised, and the bicycle was run over. Mr. Hobbey narrowly escaped being seriously injured.

It is stated that a movement is on foot to establish a new city in the different sections of the city, and that the police will be requested to ring up police headquarters every hour.

The dog which bit the little son of Mr. John Langley yesterday, and which was ordered by Mayor Simpson to be killed, is still alive. The dog was observed to be the mutt being executed, and in fact, the animal could not be located this evening. A warrant was issued, and the case will be heard in the police court tomorrow.

A GOVERNMENT BY COURTS

Right to Free Speech on Public Highways Denied.

JUDGE JACKSON'S INJUNCTION

The Sweeping Character of Its Inhibition—It Applies to the Monongah District, Upon Which the Success or Failure of the Strike in Large Part Depends.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 6.—While the majority of strike leaders has been attributed to the Columbus conference of labor leaders, it is assumed by many that the injunctions issued by Judge Mason, of the Marion circuit court, and Judge John Jay Jackson, of the United States district court, are the sole causes of apparent suspension of the arranged program of President Hatchford and his fellow officials of the Mine Workers' Union.

Two writs are entirely responsible for the full in strike affairs in the big Monongah district. Both injunctions are intended to prevent agitators from entering the Monongah fields, but it is said the intention of the United States court was sought because it was recognized that the Government would have more weight than the State, should a clash occur.

Another reason was the fact that James Sloan, jr., one of the stockholders of the Monongah Company, is a non-resident, and consequently his application for an injunction would be upon the Federal court. Judge Jackson's injunction would be the one enforced in the Monongah fields should occasion require. It will be determined September 20. In the meantime, however, it is in full force, enjoining Eugene Y. Debs and his associates from speaking on the subject of strikes in and about Monongah mines.

They are not permitted to intercept miners on their way to and from work; they cannot speak in any of the public highways leading to the mines of the petitioners; and, lastly, they are ordered to hold no public or private meetings whatsoever in the vicinity of the mines in question. Judge Jackson's injunction does not in any way interfere with the operations of the State, but the Monongah district is the seat of war in West Virginia, and the injunction might as well extend to coal centers within the jurisdiction of the United States court for the district of West Virginia.

Another fact the Monongah Company had in mind when they asked for the intervention of the United States court was that should trouble occur all of the employees of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company would be brought against the strikers as company employees, and the strike would be in the hands of the Federal court. The railway companies are, of course, subject to orders of the United States court, and consequently they would not be in a position to render service to the strike cause.

The injunction which ties the hands of the strike leaders who have been working in the Monongah field is capable of enforcement on the slightest notice. It went into effect yesterday, when the petitioners filed the amount of bond, $5,000, required in injunction proceedings. Since the injunction was issued, the strikers have been working in the Monongah fields as taken an active part in the fight. If the Monongah miners and others in Marion county strike it would be by their own free will.

Since Judge Jackson took hold of the strike matter Judge Mason's injunction has practically dropped out of sight. It is claimed that Mason prepared and granted the injunction, acting as petitioner and judge, because he was interested in one of the local coal companies. Judge Mason denies the charge, however.

ILLICIT LIQUOR AND TROUBLE.

Eliza Johnston, of Goat Alley, Convicted Before Judge Scott.

Eliza Johnston, colored, living at No. 12 Goat Alley, was tried in the police court before Judge Scott yesterday morning for selling liquor without a license.

The principal witness for the prosecution was Benjamin Proctor, Proctor, who was a subtenant of the Brown woman, accused her of maintaining a "speakeasy," and on his complaint Policeman Bartley made the arrest.

The testimony of the prosecution tended to show that the Brown woman, who is employed as a domestic during the day, repeatedly sold liquor. The defense was equally emphatic in its denial of the alleged facts, and directly accused several of the persons who had taken the stand of perjury.

After hearing all the evidence the court imposed a sentence of $250 or two months in jail.

MR. SHERMAN HOME AGAIN

The Secretary of State Browne and Benefited by His Jaunt.

WILL NOT TALK POLITICS

He Explains the Whitelaw Raid

Visit as Heretofore in the Times

The Wily Statesman Evades All References to Cuba or Hawaii or Anything Interesting.

Secretary Sherman arrived in this city late yesterday afternoon looking brown from exposure to the sun and much benefited by his brief sojourn at Annapolis.

L. I. He talked pleasantly about his recreation, but declined positively to discuss Japan, Hawaiian, and Cuban affairs, or any other matter relating to the State Department.

"I have repeatedly refused during my vacation to be interviewed on these subjects," Mr. Sherman said, "and I shall not begin now."

When asked what he thought of the political situation in Ohio, Secretary Sherman said he had no doubt that the Republican party would carry the State this fall. He said the ill-fated Gov. Bushnell might prove to be a drawback, but by no means such a one as would defeat the party.

In reference to the Whitelaw Raid episode, the Secretary remarked that Mr. Debs' call on his State this fall for the President, for the President and Mr. Sherman appointed him special ambassador to London during the Queen's jubilee, and Mr. Debs' call was purely one of recognition of that fact. Mr. Sherman said he had declined to visit Whitelaw Reid because such a visit would interfere with arrangements that he had made. He did not know whether he would go away from Washington again this summer, but was inclined to think he would not if the weather remained cool.
