

HONORS FOR THE KAISER

King Edward Makes Him a Field Marshal of the Army.

The insignia of the Order of the Garter, set with diamonds, also given to him on his birthday...

EAST POWERS, Jan. 27.—Today is the forty-second anniversary of the birth of Emperor William. His presence here was made the occasion of personally conferring on him two of the highest honors that the English sovereign has to bestow.

King Edward, in congratulating the German Emperor, appointed him a field marshal of the British army and also presented to him, with his own hands, the insignia of the Order of the Garter, set with diamonds.

It has not yet been decided at exactly what hour the funeral of the Queen will begin on Friday next, but it will probably be about 10 o'clock in the afternoon.

The train that will convey the body to London will move slowly, to enable the people of the countryside to have a good view of it.

The outline of the naval part of the funeral, which is the first of the kind in British history, shows that the ships of the channel and reserve squadrons will be stretched in a line from Cowes to Spithead, and thence to Portsmouth, keeping the northern side of the route.

The procession will be preceded by the torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers of the Portsmouth division. Then will come the royal yacht Albion, bearing the body of the Queen and her aides-de-camp.

The Alberta will be followed by the royal yacht Victoria and Alberta, with King Edward on board, and then will come the royal yacht Osborne, with the other royal mourners.

KILLED BY MOONSHINERS

Two Members of a Revenue Party Shot From Ambush.

A Desperate Fight With Kentucky Mountaineers on Elk Horn Creek—Deputy Marshal Captured and the Rest of His Party Wounded—Fugitives Flee Fearing Serious Trouble.

JACKSON, Ky., Jan. 27.—Perhaps the bloodiest battle in the history of Kentucky moonshine raids occurred at daylight January 25 between a revenue party of five and a strong force of moonshiners on Elk Horn Creek, on the line between Pike and Knott counties.

Elk Horn Creek is ten miles from Hindman and thirty miles from Jackson, the nearest railway stations, and this, added to the fact that the entire posse of the deputy United States marshal was captured, prevented the news from reaching the revenue officials sooner.

The fight took place where Russell Wireman was killed in 1889, in a desperate contest of the same character. Deputy Marshal James Hollifield, who led the posse in the fight on the 25th, was present in that battle, and the moonshiners learned to fear him. It is thought that a deliberate trap was laid for him and his party.

The posse consisted of Hollifield, Simon Combs, Rufus Wooten, Ambrose Ambury, and Blaine Combs. Hollifield and Wooten were on one side, and Ambury received flesh wounds, and Blaine Combs is held a captive.

The moonshiners had evidently been informed of the proposed raid. The still was located at the head of a blind ravine, which ended in a rocky precipice about thirty feet high. The operations were carried on in a half cave, made by large boulders falling away from under the cliff.

The posse, at daylight, saw thin lines of smoke swell up from beneath the cliff, which told them that the moonshiners were at work. They approached the head of the ravine, stealthily, and crawled to within thirty feet of the cave. There was a clear space to be crossed and the posse, with rifles raised, started toward the still on the run.

They were shot with shots from the rear and from the top of the cliff, and at the first volley four of the revenue force fell. Blaine Combs was one of the men who fell, and he was taken to the hospital at Hindman, where he is now recovering.

The British Government has purchased a magnificent block of buildings in the centre of Lourenco Marques for consular and office purposes.

FOSBURG STILL SILENT

The Young Man to Be Released on $12,000 Bail Today.

No New Light on the Pittsfield Murder Mystery—A Local Paper Intimates That Father and Son May Have Fought—Miss Sheldon Persistently Ignores the Case.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Jan. 27.—Robert Fosburg, who was arrested on Saturday, charged with killing his sister, Miss May L. Fosburg, in this city on August 20 last, will be released on $12,000 bail tomorrow. The Stanley Electric Manufacturing Company, for which the contracting firm of Fosburg & Co. is building a plant, has agreed to deposit $12,000 in cash or certified check.

Young Fosburg refused to see anyone today, and sent word to all reporters that he had nothing to say. The indictment found against him by the grand jury says: "Fosburg did assault, shoot, and beat May L. Fosburg, and by such assault, shooting, and beating, did kill the said May L. Fosburg."

The story told by Miss Bertha Sheldon, according to Providence despatches, was interesting reading here. The intimation that she is hard of hearing and that she did not hear the noise of a struggle caused a deal of comment. It is declared by those who met Miss Sheldon in a social way that they were not aware that she was deaf, and that they had no trouble in carrying on a conversation with her.

Chief Nicholson said today that Colonel Whitney, of the State detective force, went to Providence to see Miss Sheldon, and he had no trouble in carrying on a conversation with her in ordinary tones. It is hinted that a good deal took place during the time that Colonel Whitney was in Providence that has not been told.

It is believed here that there was an intimate acquaintance between the murdered girl and Miss Sheldon. Her flight on a train leaving this city about 5 o'clock on the morning of the crime is another strange incident.

A local paper prints the following: "The theory has long obtained credence and popularity in this city that there was a quarrel between the father and the daughter, and that Miss May L. Fosburg was killed, and that the trouble was between members of the family."

It has been an open secret that the relations between the father and daughter, and the son, who is now under arrest, were not always pleasant. The differences are said to have been marked, and not by any means confined to the family circle, at least, that there was trouble in the house that night between members of the family, perhaps between father and son, in which a revolver and perhaps two revolvers may have figured. The police have at least one of these revolvers, and the bullet found in the unfortunate girl's body. It is believed that when Miss May L. Fosburg received the fatal bullet on the morning of August 20, or on the night of August 19, she was in the act of separating the contestants, and so received in her own person the bullet which was meant for another.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 27.—It is doubtful if Miss Bertha Sheldon, daughter of F. P. Sheldon, who lives at 47 Harvard Avenue, this city, will give any testimony that will throw any light on the mysterious affair took place.

It is asserted that Miss Sheldon knows absolutely nothing about the tragedy, or about the circumstances leading up to it, and that is the reason why she has not gone to Pittsfield to give testimony in the case. She is asked to go, but her father refused to let her do so. He declared that Miss Fosburg was dead when his daughter found out what had happened, and she was asleep when the shooting occurred.

"CRAZY SNAKE" A PRISONER

The Creek Indian Lender Taken in a Raid on His Camp.

HENRIETTA, I. T., Jan. 27.—Deputy United States Marshal Grant Johnson, in command of a well-armed force of deputized Creek Indians, west of Buffalo, this afternoon, captured their leader, Chitto Hailo, who is known as "Crazy Snake."

Marshal Johnson then made a fast ride to this place and delivered his prisoner to Lieutenant Dixon, in command of Troop A, Eighth United States Cavalry.

The troops and a force of deputies under United States Marshal Bennett will descend on "Crazy Snake's" followers tomorrow, which, it is believed, will end the insurrection.

DEFEATED BY REBELS. Venezuelan Troops Put to Flight Near La Guayra and Carapana.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Jan. 27.—Pierce fighting took place last week in Venezuela, near La Guayra and Carapana, ending in severe defeats for the Government forces. The engagements resulted in the killing of several hundred men.

Carapana has been taken again by the rebels, who have also secured plenty of arms and ammunition. They have also taken possession of Irapa and Carapana, on the Gulf of Paria. Serious conditions are shown by reports from Caracas. It is said that a battalion commander of the Government forces in Caracas has joined the insurgents.

An order by President Castro ordering some well-known persons suspected of complicity with the insurgent forces to be shot caused the revolt. The orders were sent to one of the military commanders, who refused to obey them.

The principal fighting occurred near Irapa and Los Cuevas, not far from Irapa. Many atrocities occurred in Los Cuevas and Irapa, at the hands of the Government troops, refugees say. It is asserted that the soldiers disregarded the rights of foreigners and of women. They are said to have paraded through the streets with arms threatening to put everyone to the sword. Many, it is said, were compelled to pay large sums in order to save their lives.

VERONA SEES DANGER AHEAD. The Proposed Cuban Constitution Viewed With Alarm.

HAVANA, Jan. 27.—Senor Verona has written an open letter to the press regarding the project for a constitution now being discussed. He sees dangers which frighten him. When examined with more care it becomes clear, he declares, that the project is dominated by a principle which is of no other than clique rule by local chiefs.

Senor Verona says that if this constitution prevails Cuba will be divided into six chiefdoms, and sub-divided into smaller chiefdoms, corresponding to the municipalities. He says that he is indignant in reality by a local clique will consider himself independent, and will also the mayors, and will not be satisfied with the income of the property of the taxpayers. A few years of this will cause ruin or rebellion.

He asks the convention if it does not know the history of Cuban municipalities set up to meet recent times. Until Cuba has four times its present population, fiscal autonomy in the provinces and municipalities is a chimera. He asks the convention to understand that the independence of Cuba depends on their getting the constitution before Congress before the middle of February. It is believed, however, that this statement comes from unreliable interested persons, who have guided the delegates in order to rush the constitution through.

A previous step in this project is a statement to the effect that serious unrest would be caused in the island by the constitution. Every government official, from Havana to the effect that there will be an extra session of Congress to deal with the constitution are not credited by these conservative writers, who regard them as unwarranted.

A procession of 200 mounted peasants visited General Wood today with the object of expressing satisfaction with the administrative reforms which have been called at the Palace, asked General Wood to remember that others had horse racing and such amusements, whereas the poor received nothing. The peasants were cock fighting, which has been suppressed. Fifty per cent of the export duty on tobacco has been removed.

JAMES DONE WITH POLITICS. The Ex-Bandit Feels Humiliated Over His Defeat in Missouri.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 27.—Frank James, the ex-bandit, was a candidate before the Missouri Legislature for doorkeeper of the House, but he failed to get the place. He says:

I feel deeply humiliated over my defeat. I have decided that the people of Missouri are, at least, very ungrateful. I asked an endorsement of the vote as a general and honest citizen and I received condemnation. I have fulfilled every promise I made to Governor Crittenden at the time of my surrender, carried out every compact of the letter. I had pledged from fully two-thirds of the Republican vote, yet when the caucus was held, I received only thirteen votes. Revenge? No I am not seeking it. I have fought my first and last political battle and lost."

FATALITY WOUNDED IN A DUEL. A Dispute Between Kentucky Men Results in a Death.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 27.—Deputy Sheriff James Stockdale, who was shot by William Morton in a pistol duel at Mount Sterling yesterday afternoon, died here as the result of his wounds this morning. While Stockdale was hit in the head the wound which caused his death was through the abdomen.

The trouble occurred over the candidacy of J. B. Jones for sheriff of Montgomery County. Stockdale was thirty-seven years old and leaves a widow and four children.

MRS. NATION'S CAMPAIGN

Resting in Topeka, Preparing for a Busy Week's Work.

All the Saloons in Town Close, and Police Will Guard the Drug Stores—Other Cities to Be Visited by the Hatched Reformer—Expected to Call on Governor Stanley Today.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 27.—Mrs. Nation is resting today, preparing for a week's active campaign. After she finishes with Topeka she is going to Kansas City, Leavenworth, and Atchison, where hundreds of open saloons are running.

Mrs. Nation said today that she did not believe in heralding her descent upon any town, for the reason that the liquor sellers would lock up their places.

"I just want to drop down on these modern Sodomites," she said, "and introduce my modern argument." As she made this remark she pointed to her fine hatched, purchased at Wichita for this purpose.

Mrs. Nation declares that she came to Topeka to be present next week at the annual meeting of the State Temperance Union, but the officers of that organization, who make up the programme, deny that Mrs. Nation has been invited, and suggest that they go so far as to say her plan of action will not receive the sanction of the union, and that she will not be permitted to speak.

Every saloon in Topeka is closed tight tonight. They will remain closed while Mrs. Nation is in town.

"If they are opened it will be by Mrs. Nation's hatchet," said a leader tonight. The Topeka drug stores, it is feared, may also be attacked, and in anticipation will be detailed to guard these places.

Mrs. Nation's first visit tomorrow will probably be to Topeka's stylish club, where well-known men meet to talk and drink. She will find there some very expensive pictures and mirrors, but a guard on the door has been ordered to keep her out.

All day workers in religious and temperance organizations visited the Rev. Dr. Collier's home to meet Mrs. Nation. The Salvation Army, with drums and flags, marched to the house and sang and prayed for the cause for which she is hatching.

Mrs. Nation appeared at the United Brethren Church this evening and made a short address. She declared that she was a convert and sympathizer with quakers and drunkards made.
