The President Entertains the Members of the Supreme Court.

The season brought to a brilliant close by Mr. and Mrs. Hill—Secretary and Mrs. Root's Reception for Resident Army Officers—Mrs. Logan's Tea for a Famous Sculptor.

The President and Mrs. McKinley gave a state dinner last night in honor of the judiciary, there being invited to meet them other distinguished guests. The white and gold dining room was tropical with palms. Gardens of smilax swung from the ceiling, and were caught in graceful loops at the base of the chandeliers. The mirror walls were set with jardinières of scarlet hyacinths, and the mantels were banked with roses, tulips, and ferns. The candles in the massive chandeliers burned under red shades, and the floral decorations were meteor roses in tall crystal vases alternating with plaques of English primroses, lilies of the valley, and ferns.

The President escorted Mrs. Fuller into dinner, and Mrs. McKinley was attended by the Chief Justice. The full list of guests was as follows:

The Chief Justice and Mrs. Fuller, Mr. Justice Harlan, Mr. Justice Gray and Mrs. Gray, Mr. Justice Shiras and Mrs. Shiras, Mr. Justice White and Mrs. White, Mr. Justice McKenna and Mrs. McKenna, the Attorney General and Mrs. Griggs, Senator Elihu Root and Mrs. Root, Senator Spooner and Mrs. Spooner, Senator and Mrs. Fairbanks, Senator and Mrs. Teller, Senator and Mrs. Lindsay, Senator Bacon, Senator and Mrs. Pettus, Senator Haro, Senator and Mrs. McComas, Senator and Mrs. Tillman, Senator and Mrs. E. H. St. John, Senator and Mrs. Wetmore, Representative and Mrs. Ray, Representative and Mrs. Alexander, Representative and Mrs. Wheeler, Representative and Mrs. Lister, Representative and Mrs. Littlefield, Representative and Mrs. Kahn, Representative and Mrs. Ellor, Representative and Mrs. Representative Taylor, Representative and Mrs. Morris, Representative and Mrs. Joy, Representative and Mrs. Representative and Mrs. Mercer, Representative and Mrs. Hixey, Representative and Mrs. Russell, Representative and Mrs. Newland, Representative and Mrs. Stevie, Solicitor General and Mrs. Richards, Representative and Mrs. Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Allen, Miss Harlan, Miss McKenna, and Miss Taunt.

To the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Hill belong the honor of closing the official program of 1901. Their selection of Shrove Tuesday night for their costume ball gave fashionable Washington the privilege, for probably the first time in its social history, of enjoying the time-honored revels of Ash Wednesday eve without going to the Mardi Gras at New Orleans or to the Carnival at Rome. The ball room at Rauscher's was decorated with grotesque confetti from Paris, together with posters, paper flowers, and colored lights. The cotillon favors, which were both dainty and unique, were in conformity with the spirit of the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Hill and their friend, Mrs. Steele, of Elmira, N. Y., who also shared the gracious duties of hostess of the evening, welcomed the guests into the ballroom door, assisted by a receiving party, among whom were General and Mrs. Miles, Commander and Mrs. Cowles, and Mr. John Stenochfield. Mr. Hill looked as if he might have stepped out of the court of Louis XV, so gorgeously he was costumed in the dress of that period, and Mrs. Hill made a Parisian who would spare himself might have dreamed of Mrs. Steele, as a Greek matron of the way-back classic days, were a picturesque robe on her shoulders with the pattern "boy" pattern in gold, and Mrs. Steele was gowned in the splendid toilet in which she was presented at the Court of St. James during Queen Victoria's jubilee. Mrs. Stenochfield chose for her character Wilkie Collins' famous woman in white.

Countess Cassini was as pretty as a picture in a Katie Greenaway frock of white chiffon, made baby-fashion, and bedecked by a wide, blue satin sash. She wore blue silk mitts and carried a blue bag. Her plumed face was shaded by a wide-rimmed white hat trimmed with baby blue ribbons. Miss Hay, who led the cotillon with Baron Herman, wore a Louis XV court costume of cerise satin with a bodice and puffed skirt of pompadour silk. The beauty of her dark eyes and dainty coloring was enhanced by powdered hair. Miss Alice Hay wore a Swedish peasant. With a green skirt she wore a black velvet jacket opening over an under bodice of white swiss. Senora Perez in white gown of blue satin and brodered in gold; Mrs. Hitchcock, Priscilla; Miss Flora Wilson, an captivating Spanish peasant; Miss Margaret Hitchcock, Russian peasant; Mrs. Root was ideally charming in a white Watteau gown embroidered with pink roses. Miss Lilla Griggs, a black and gold butterfly; Mrs. Peter, a black and gold butterfly; Mrs. Miss Dupue, of the Mexican Embassy, an elfin gypsy in the vivid colors of her tribe; Mrs. Von Mahoff, Louis XV court costume; Mrs. McKenna, a black and white gown with gold and spangles, with bodice and puffed skirt of pale blue velvet lined with rose pink silk.

Mrs. E. J. McCormick, Bavarian peasant costume of purple, white and gold; Mrs. Dabell, a de Medici costume of white satin with a sweeping train and faring collar studded with pearls. With the splendid toilet was worn a cap of white satin and pearls and an old family pearl necklace. Miss Paulding, a bewitching duplication of "The Poster Girl." Miss Peterson of Pittsburgh, a blue costume of white wool trimmed with bands of blue and a jaunty white hat and blue ribbon. A merry quartette was composed of Miss Ruth Ransome, Miss Merriam, and Mrs. Messrs. Merriam, the latter representing that laughable theatrical couple, the Rogers Brothers. Miss Hanna and Miss Corbett figured as the "Ladies of the company," the former wearing a pink silk skirt, crepe de chine bodice and black stockings. Miss Merriam was arrayed in the same fetching style, but in contrasting colors. Miss Edith, a blond girl, about skirt of light blue crepe trimmed with white velvet, red-heeled slippers, yellow cap and a corsage bouquet of red and yellow roses. The Ministers from Guatemala and Uruguay and Mr. Astor, of the Mexican Embassy, were in riding costume; the Minister from Nicaragua, Megalithophiles; Representative Jefferson Levy, royal hunting suit, English pink coat and black satin knee breeches; Mr. Samuel Dalzell, colonial costume, purple velvet coat, white satin knee breeches, silk hose and jeweled buckles; Mr. Henry Rochester, "Uncle Sam." Other guests present, only a few of whom were in conventional ballroom dress, included:

The German Ambassador, Judge and Mrs. Davis, Senator and Mrs. Hanna, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Edkins, Mr. Thomas F. Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Willis L. Moore, the Secretary of Agriculture, Misses Gandy, Gordon, and Mrs. Alfred F. Hopkins, the Brazilian Minister and Mrs. Brazil, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Andrews, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Bell, Mrs. and the Misses Foster and Mr. Benson Foraker, Colonel and Mrs. Andrew, Mr. and Mrs. and Mrs. Spaulding, Mrs. Hearst, Miss Apperson, the Chinese Minister, Mrs. Wm. W. West, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mr. and Mrs. Needham, Major and Mrs. Hoxie, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, Mrs. Flookie, the Bolivian Minister, the Minister from the Netherlands, the Misses Jackson, Miss Canby, Honore, Grant, Mrs. and Mrs. G. W. Brown, Miss Errol Brown, Miss Wetmore, the Misses McKenna, Miss Mary Ella Thompson, Mrs. Tucker, Miss Edith Newland, the Misses Patten, Miss Harlan, Miss Burdette, Miss Hagner, Miss Curtis, Miss McKenna, Miss Gandy, Miss Gordon, Miss Satterlee, Miss Bell, Miss Ward, Dr. and Mrs. Chantard, Surgeon General and Mrs. E. J. McCormick, Mrs. G. W. Callahan, Miss Rochester, Miss Dierling, Miss Cockrell, Miss Thepke, the Misses Cowell, Miss McLaughlin, Mr. McGraw, Mr. Duane, Lieutenant Herron, Mr. McFerron, Count Hacke, Mr. Robert Winthrop, Mr. Chung of the Chinese Legation, Mr. J. S. Brown, Mr. Louis Barton, Lieutenant Comby, Mr. Wirth, Senior Riano, Mr. G. Blair, Mr. DeWitt, Lieutenant N. H. Houshous, Mr. S. M. Reginald Huddeker, Mr. Carigman, Mr. Pulido, Baron Ambray, Mr. Martin Jones, H. Houshous, Mr. Cuthbert Brown, Mr. Randall Hagner, Mr. Murray Cobb, Mr. Del Vito, Count Montegali, Lieutenant Macfarland, Mr. Captain Gibson, Mr. Keeling, Lieutenant Arnold, Mr. de Anamar of the Brazilian Legation, Mr. Young of Williamsburg, Mr. James Parker of Boston, and Mr. Charles Van Voorhis of Rochester, N. Y.

It does not seem possible that any ball outside of Gaiety, or any charn less potent than a magic wand, could have brought together so many wonderful people arrayed in such a kaleidoscopic lot of still more wonderful costumes. It was all either beautiful or grotesque—sometimes both—and with the exception of those medieval costumes that showed the gleam of garter and the glint of the lilette, and some other up-to-date productions of the twentieth century, the dressings of the various characters was historically correct. They all seemed as the pictures a child sees in the bubble it sends floating in the sunshine, and as evanescent as a dream that the same child might have of self-floating in the bubble and a dream, for—is not this a world of sashelot and penance and does Queen Fashion wear ashes on her brow?

Mrs. Logan is suffering from a relapse of the grip and was unable to attend yesterday afternoon at the tea for which she had invitations issued some time ago and which she did not care to recall. The entertainment was given in honor of Mr. Franklin Simmons, of Rome, the sculptor who made such a realistically successful statue of General Logan, and Mrs. Simmons, who are making a visit to Washington, and Mrs. Tucker presided as the hostess of the occasion in the absence of her mother. She wore a beaming and toilette of white silk, and John of Chicago, Mrs. Logan's house guest, assisted, and among others of the receiving group were Mrs. Henderson, wife of the Speaker, Mrs. Wetmore, Mrs. Cockrell, Mrs. Satterlee, Mrs. Berger, and Mrs. A. W. Dunn. A pot of pink azaleas adorned the centre of the tea table, and the room was beautifully decorated with roses.

Mrs. John Taylor Arms gave a pretty luncheon yesterday afternoon for the friends of her young daughter, Miss Arms. The table was ablaze with white blossoms, rising from a plaque of fern and decorated with green ribbon leaves, and the young people gathered around it were Miss Satterlee, Miss Austin, Miss Thayer, the Misses Webb, Miss Gale, Miss Bell, Miss Mauro, Miss Kerr, Miss Satterlee, Miss Mills, Miss Kerr, Miss Hyatt, Miss Curtis, Miss Annie Phelps Brown, Miss Worthington, and Miss Arms. The souveniers were in the form of a green ribbon, the under side containing a list of the guests. Each guest also wore a corsage bouquet of violets. After luncheon Mr. Zook Kenilworth, the artist, who came to Washington several weeks ago to interpret the hands of a number of prominent clients, and who returned to New York yesterday, read the palms of each of the young ladies present.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Root held a reception yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6, when their 700 guests were resident officers of the army and their families, the former wearing the full uniform of their rank. Assisting in receiving were Mrs. Miles, Mrs. Sheridan, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Sanger, Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Bingham, Mrs. Follisworth, Miss Wilson, the Misses Hill, Miss Griggs, Miss Hitchcock, Miss Erwin, and the Misses Sheridan. The drawing rooms were decorated with flowers in vases and palms.

Mrs. U. S. Grant entertained at dinner last night, when her guests were General Dodge, an old friend and brother officer of General Grant, the Secretary of War and Mrs. Root, Senator and Mrs. Doolittle, Representative and Mrs. Iltis, Senator and Mrs. Cockrell, Mrs. Sartorius, Mrs. Frederick Gray, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Depew, and Adjutant General Corbin.

THE ALLIES IN CHINA.
Captain Leonard's Lecture at the Assembly's Presbyterian Church, corner of Fifth and I Streets northwest, was crowded last night with people anxious to hear Capt. Henry Leonard lecture upon "The Visit of the Allies to China in 1900." Captain Leonard is a well-known Washington boy, who recently returned from China, after losing his left arm as a result of fighting at Pekin.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. F. J. Willis, the President of the Men's Club of the church, who, in a brief speech, complimented the young officer upon his gallant services in China.

Captain Leonard paid a glowing tribute to the American soldiers who participated in the many engagements around Pekin and narrated incidents of the fighting, suffering and bravery of the American soldiers. The exercises were brought to a close by the rendition of a tenor solo by Mr. McElaine, a French boy, who was served with light refreshments.

Upon the motion of Judge Kimball, the speaker was tendered a rousing vote of thanks by the audience.

AGAINST THE SUBSIDY BILL.
The Anti-Trust League issues a Letter of Protest.

The American Anti-Trust League, with headquarters in this city, has issued the following letter with regard to the Ship Subsidy and Anti-Trust bills:

"By the resolution offered by Senator Jones, that the Anti-Trust bill be taken up in place of the Ship Subsidy bill, the issue is now squarely made in the United States Congress between the people and the trusts.

"There are two bills now pending in the Senate, viz: The Anti-Trust bill (H. R. 10223) and the Ship Subsidy bill (H. R. 10224). The first proposes much needed amendments to the existing anti-trust laws of 1890. These amendments are very important, and are made absolutely necessary to meet the evils arising from the enormous growth of the trust power during the past few years.

"The second bill is a measure which proposes to make a gift of over two hundred millions of dollars from the United States Treasury to a lawless combination of railroad, steamship, oil, steel, coal, and steamship corporations, for the purpose of helping them to form a gigantic transportation trust, covering both land and sea.

"By the aid of the Ship Subsidy bill, this world-wide transportation trust will be able to fix the price of every pound of the great staple products of the United States, and to take a monopoly, only limited by its greed upon the people.

"During the next two weeks, till the close of the present Congress, the struggle to decide whether the Ship Subsidy and the trusts or the Anti-Trust bill for the people, shall be passed, will be the main issue to be fought out in the United States Senate.

"Every good citizen can do something to help decide this contest right. We appeal to everyone who reads this letter to do his part by signing at once to the Senator from his State and urge them in the most emphatic terms to support the Anti-Trust bill and to defeat the Ship Subsidy bill.

"It was signed by H. B. Martin, National Secretary; C. T. McBride, National Treasurer; American Anti-Trust League, 1225 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D. C.

CHILE SEEKS A SEAPORT.
A Naval Station in Salvador Asked by the Republic.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The news comes from Valparaiso that Chile has asked the Republic of Salvador for the cession of a seaport in that country for a naval station. Chile announces that she is desirous of keeping in Central American waters a fleet consisting of a battleship, an ironclad cruiser and a dispatch boat.

What compensation has been offered to Salvador for this cession is not made known, but it is believed that Chile proposes to act as protector of her little sister Republic.

Chile is the strongest naval power in South America, and is adding to its navy armored ships of large tonnage. The cession of Chile in desiring a naval station at Salvador is reported to have some connection with the Nicaragua Canal plans.

Asked to Name Mr. Allen.
Senator Money and Senator-elect Blackburn and Representatives Richardson, Grosvenor, and Clayton of Alabama saw the President yesterday and asked him to appoint Private John Allen of Mississippi as Commissioner to the St. Louis Exposition in 1903. Representative Allen retires from Congress at the end of the present session and in recognition of his services his colleagues, without regard to party, have asked that he receive this honor.

The National Legislative League Holds its Opening Session.

The first preliminary meeting of the executive committee of the National Legislative League to consider the work of the league and devise plans for the coming session of the organization in this city was held yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the Oxford Hotel, with Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake, of New York City, presiding. After hearing the reports of the members of the various committees, Mrs. Blake announced that there would be two sessions of the league, the first beginning at 3 p. m. this afternoon, and the other at 8 o'clock tonight, in the Scottish Rite Hall, 91 Street, between Ninth and Tenth, northwest.

Many letters of interest in not being able to attend the first session of the organization have been received by the president, Mrs. Blake, prominent among them being one from Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, who is unable to travel any great distance owing to her advanced age, but she urges her comrades to work hard and to do their best for their laborers. Mrs. Stanton is the honorary vice president of the league. Miss Clara M. Eddy has been appointed corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake, delivered an address, outlining the work of the organization for the past year and showing the results obtained in the National Legislature, the Senate and the House of Representatives.

"The object of this league is to obtain for the women of America equality of legal, municipal and industrial rights with men, and to secure a more equitable and just distribution of the national and State Legislatures. The necessity for some such associated effort is obvious when present conditions are considered.

"In thirty-seven States a mother has no right to her own children; in sixteen States a wife has no right to her own property; in twenty States a woman has no right to her own property after marriage, and in seven States there is no law compelling a man to support his family. And in all the States in general there is a discrimination against women in the matter of employment and compensation. These are but a few of the evils under which the poor women of the country suffer, and united and vigorous action, such as we are organized for, alone can remedy the condition of affairs."

The officers of the league are: President, Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake, New York City; honorary vice president, Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, New York City; Henry Versailles, Ky.; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Margaret Holmes Bates, New York City; treasurer, Mrs. Victoria Longing-Whitney, St. Louis, Mo.; secretary, Miss Clara M. Eddy, Pueblo, Col.; recording secretary, Mrs. Margaret M. Parsons, Grand Rapids, Mich.

"DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE."
A Crowded House Witnesses Thomas E. Shea's Performance.

Surpassing audiences seem to be the rule at the Academy this week. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," which first won Thomas E. Shea a careful and intelligent consideration in the National Capital, was the hit last evening, and every part of the house was crowded.

There have been some very complimentary things said of Mr. Shea's interpretation of this trying dual role, in comparison with that of Mr. Mansfield. In short, the differentiation is that of suggestion; Mr. Shea's is that of realization. Certainly the latter is the more to the liking of the usual run of theatrical audiences, and also much more trying upon both the physical and vocal strength of the player. There is a virility in Mr. Shea's performance which Mr. Mansfield never equaled, while the pathos of the performance in the last act is as touching a bit of work as has been seen in Washington for many a day. The reception tendered Mr. Shea was noteworthy for its evident cordiality.

In the dramatization of the weird Stevenson tale, there are few parts of any considerable merit, yet all are well cared for by the members of the Shea company. Henry Testa, whose make-up is excellent, is uncommonly good as Dr. Lanyon, and plays the part with rare perception of power and pathos. Charlotte Burckett is sweet and ingenious in the leading feminine part, and Emma Southard gets quite a bit of humor from a tiny characterization. Others who are well suited are William Carney, Irving Southard, Bessie Boardley and John Gilbert.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will be repeated on Friday night by general request. The bill tonight will be "The Voice of Nature."

Dr. Rogers' Illustrated Lecture.
Dr. Rogers, a former well-known Washington minister, gave the first of a series of illustrated lectures at the Columbia Theatre yesterday afternoon, and if the initial one may be taken as a fair criterion of what the others will be a genuine treat is in store for those who will listen to the lecturer and view the splendidly illustrated scenes. "Quo Vadis" was the subject selected for the first of the series of afternoon talks, and the illustration thrown upon a huge screen, proved to be admirably colored views of some of the more prominent views of the locale of the widely read story. Dr. Rogers' efforts in the lecture held promise to be eminently successful. His introductory entertainment was in every way wholly praiseworthy and the good-sized audience was well pleased. The second lecture of the series will be given on March 12 at 4:15 o'clock at the Columbia.
