

ble sources. At the same time Mr. Pulitzer is doing everything to disprove these statements. His attacks on Jay Gould are so outspoken and so vigorous as to disarm almost every suspicion. At the same time, it must not be forgotten that Wall Street methods are very devious.

The retired editor of the World goes to Europe shortly, and that will result in the breaking up of one of the most curious, and at the same time most luxurious bachelors quarters in the city. Few people ever saw it, but it was filled with curios, bronzes, bric-a-brac, books and out of the way things to such an extent as to eclipse even Dion Boucicault's famous snuggery. Mr. Hurlburt resided in the old University building. This is a curious structure. It is built in the quaint architectural style prevalent in the early part of last century. Its exterior is chiefly Gothic. Its interior is made up of antique looking rooms, with high old fashioned windows and floors. These rooms are divided by corridors which seem to run everywhere and end nowhere. You meet stair-cases at every turn, but unless you are intimately acquainted with the building, you are bound to lose yourself. For some years one wing of the building has been let to lodgers, and Mr. Hurlburt occupied a suite of rooms in this wing. It had three entrances, and only the occupant and his sable valet knew how many stair-cases led to it. Thus the occupant could go in and out at will, and nobody could follow him.

May 22. The raids against the opium dens have ended on account of the unwillingness of the police to aid the Young Men's Catholic Association in their good work. What Chinamen have been arrested were discharged on their own subsequent trials because the police had failed to procure proper legal evidence. The society however has produced one good effect. It has called public attention to this sickening phase of metropolitan life, and the dangers to which young girls of the poorer class are subject. They mean to keep a watchful eye, and any overt act will be promptly brought to the attention of the courts. Tom Lee, the ex-deputy Sheriff and whilom "boss" of the Chinese colony, has become tired of the struggle waged against him and has left the district, leaving the Chinese colony practically without a head, so it will now be more easy to impress upon it the necessity of obeying the laws of the country to which they have come.

Jenkinsdom has buried itself during the past few days with the Duke of Newcastle, who after making an extended trip through the West went back to England on Saturday. He is but twenty-two and very juvenile in appearance.

When Jay Gould sold the World, it was currently expected that Cyrus W. Field would follow suit with the Mail and Express. This expectation is likely soon to be verified. Mr. Melville D. Stone, of the Chicago News has been negotiating with him for some days, and as I am informed the bargain is likely to be closed early this week, unless differences of opinion should arise over minor details. Mr. Field has been unable to make the Mail and Express. It is well edited, and its news pages and departments are ably conducted and well written. Yet it seems the name of Field has always acted like a damper on the financial success of the venture. Should Mr. Stone buy it, I think he will make a success of the paper, for it is beyond doubt the most valuable afternoon newspaper property in the city. I believe Mr. Field asks $750,000.

Interesting to Ladies.

Our lady readers can hardly fail to have their attention called this month to the latest combination of improvements in that most useful of all domestic implements, the "sewing machine."

As we understand it, a machine for family use should meet first of all these requirements: It should be simple in its mechanism; it should run easily; it should do a wide range of work; it should be as nearly noiseless as possible; it should be light, handsome, durable, and as cheap as is consistent with excellence throughout.

These conditions the "Light-Running New Home" certainly meets. It has also several very important and useful attachments and "notions" of its own, which go far to make good its claims to popular favor.

Now a great many families have been and are still using the old machines—waiting for the times to improve; waiting for the latest improvements in designs and mechanical excellence.

But why delay longer? Considering the low prices at which good machines are now sold, and the improvements that have been made, now is a good time to buy, and the "New Home," specially recommends itself to purchasers on account of its superior mechanical construction, ease of management and reasonable price. Nearly half a million have been sold in the last three years, all of which are giving universal satisfaction. This unrivalled machine is manufactured by the NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE CO., 30 Union Square, New York, who wish us to say that all who will send for their new illustrated catalogue and enclose their advertisement (printed on another page), will receive a set of fancy advertising novelties of value to those collecting cards, &c.

Worth Reading.

From the Marquis de Leuville of England, at present residing at the Windsor Hotel, New York.

TO DR. CLARK JOHNSON.

SIR: I think I should tell you something about your Blood Syrup, and I will do in my own autograph. My doctors in Europe decided together to send me to America for the sea voyage, and I am afraid it did me no good; and being very ill indeed on this side of the ocean, some of my people brought me your Indian Blood Syrup. This I have taken, and although I did not like the taste of it at first, I continued it, for the bitterness soon wears off, and it has done me so much good, that now to my great joy, I am enabled to send you this note, to say that I am another man. Day after day I have improved until I am at present really quite well. I shall be charmed to allow you to make any use of this that you please, and my private secretary shall moreover answer any letter of inquiry that may come.

I am your obedient servant
LEUVILLE.

As an autograph this document is interesting as Le Marquis de Leuville is the young Longfellow of the other side; his poems and those of Tennyson having about the largest circulation in Europe.

A Word to the Wise, &c.

As there will likely be a celebration of the 4th and 24th of July, we wish to remind the committee on celebration of said events that there is one item of great importance that should not be overlooked.

We have been connected with bands for some years, so we speak by what we know. We consider that the musical talent of St. George, generally, have been poorly dealt with always being requested to play but never receiving as much as a copper for services rendered.

Now, if any of the community at large are requested to do a day's work they must have pay for the same—and why not pay the Bands! for their day's services? One is as reasonable as the other, yet the latter is more so, for bandsmen have to spend weeks in practicing before they become proficient; and then, after spending so much time without "remuneration," surely they ought not be requested to play for your benefit without paying them for their services. A working animal must be fed and cared for, so bandsmen should be "remunerated," for in this country it is laborious enough to have to work for what we get without being obliged to labor forever in a band capacity gratuitously. Reason and Justice should prevail, and a "word to the wise" ought to be sufficient.

Millet.

From the information we have been able to gather from various sources, we believe that the Arabian Evergreen Millet is going to prove a valuable acquisition to Southern Utah.

Messrs James A. Miller & Co., of San Francisco, sent us a small sample package of millet, and also milo-maize,—they promised us larger samples but we never received them. They will please accept our thanks for what has been sent. We planted the few seed we had, and it is up and looking well.

C. A. Terry, St George, we are informed, has planted an acre, but as the seed is hard to germinate, he complains of having a poor stand.
