Sunday Services.

At St. George Tabernacle.

Sunday, July 12, 1896.

Bishop James Andrus presiding.
Elder Wm. H. Thompson said he is always willing to perform his duty in trying to benefit his brethren and sisters in the gospel in trying to teach them the truths of the gospel, as, by so doing he is benefited the most of any, for the spirit of God instructs both speaker and hearer. He desired to so live that he will be worthy to receive the blessings of the gospel continually. He gave some good advice to the Latter-day Saints in relation to doing the work in the Temple for their dead friends that they too may be placed in a condition to be judged as men in the flesh.

Elder George F. Whitehead desired the spirit of the Lord to bless him in his endeavors to speak to the people. He spoke of the law of tithing and shewed that the law of tithing was a blessing as also a privilege to the Saints of God. Read the promise of God given to his people anciently as recorded in the Book of Malachi, and also the law of tithing as given to the prophet Joseph Smith in the latter days, and showed that God does bless those who are prompt in paying their tithing.

Elder Isaac Hunt said it would be good for us, as a people, to examine ourselves and see if we attend to our prayers, pay our tithing and attend to all the duties that are required of us, and so live worthy to receive the blessings that God has in store for his people.

Bishop Andrus was pleased to hear the subject of tithing spoken of and hoped we would all be benefited by it. Referred to his visit to Salt Lake City and to the great celebration. Said it was a great advertising scheme for all that had anything to sell. Said that in some of the counties north the crops are good while in Beaver and some of the other counties they were short of water and the country dry.

Although we are in this dry, parched country, we should live our religion and God will bless us as he has promised.

OLD MEMORIES.

The last of February and the month of March was the time for making maple sugar and when there was a good run of sugar water or sap from the sugar trees, the camp kettles were kept boiling day and night, making from 10 to 25 pounds daily. Children and everybody present were made welcome to eat all the new sugar they desired.

In the winter the farmers were up early, breakfast eaten by candlelight, the stock fed and at an early hour the children were off to school and the men to their clearings, chopping down trees, trimming up the brush and piling it into great brush heaps and when it became dry it was burned, mainly in the evening when there was but but little or no wind. It was fine sport for children to witness the flames shooting up so high as to make it almost as light as day.

In summer time, men, women and children went barefoot and this was called "turning feet out to grass."

In my day schools were poorly provided for. There were no nice seats with backs, no blackboards, and to learn to read, write, and cipher, as far as the rule of three or proportion, was considered a finished education. I cannot call to mind that geography and grammar were ever taught in any of the schools which I attended. School houses were built of rough unhewn logs, and to admit light into the room an opening was made between two logs nearly the whole length and breadth of the building. This opening was papered up with greased paper. In the winter the school house was warmed up by a huge fire being built between the jambs which were 6 or 8 feet apart, and in front of this fire a dozen children could stand and get warm at the same time.
