Mr. George R. Cloud, attorney, changed his mind and went to Lingman, Arizona.

A few loads of fire wood wanted, $500 in T. O., cash, grain, flour, some cash. At J. Tye's Photo Gallery, next to Post Office.

The road leading to Bloomington, just beyond the Clara Creek, west of the Johnson land, is in a very bad condition. When those who irrigate let the water run and wash out the road, they ought to be made to put it in repair again, and not leave it to the detriment of travelers.

Coming! The Newest, Latest and Best Combination ever seen in this part of the State.

Lost. In September, 1897, while coming from Milford, Utah, a sack containing clothes, among which was a lady's Large Shawl, was supposed to have been Lost somewhere between the Meadows and Chadburns, on the Santa Clara. The finder will be rewarded by returning the same to David H. Cannon, St. George, Utah. 39-4t

Quite windy to-day as we go to press.

Hay wanted on subscription to The Union.

Father Lorenzo Clark, of Mormon Battalion fame, spoke to the people in the Tabernacle on Sunday the 18th inst. Said he had been away about a year and eight months: had visited a great many old friends, and rode around considerable. Has not done much work but has had a good time generally. He bore testimony to the truth of the gospel. He is hale and hearty and feels well, is in his 92nd year and is a well preserved veteran.

Daniels and Craven's, Saturday and Monday. Don't miss it. Popular prices. Reserve seats on sale at T. O.

Good clean wheat wanted at The Union office; who can supply it?

The Daniels & Craven's Specialty and Electric Company will be in St. George, sometime next week. See ad. Elsewhere.

Don't miss the Daniels and Craven's Combinations on Saturday and Monday evenings. No Magic Lantern,—don't get that into your head—but a First Class Electrical and Vaudeville Company.

Don't forget that wheat is wanted at The Union office.

MILFORD INDEX IDEOGRAMS.

A newspaper protects you at long range, a revolver at short range. When you subscribe for a good bright newspaper and pay the price, you have just as much money as in the first place, except the paper handles it once before you get it back.

It is a foregone conclusion that Minersville is the richest little farming settlement in the county, and now with the old workings of the long since evacuated Spanish mines near here being opened up, we predict for the good people of that village a future well to be proud of, and much to be desired.

One of the neighboring towns abused us because we spoke of one of their drunken men who passed through Milford. As an item of strange interest we chronicle the fact that one sober man has now been seen from that town.

Milford has once had the reputation of being in the soup. Come here now and we will put the soup into you.

Some people think that when a boy gets out and cuts a caper that his father and mother put him up to it, but when that same boy gets out and does a mighty good deed, they wonder where he got his good proclivities.

The Oregon Short Line is intending to put in a large steam sheep-sheering plant at Milford next spring with a capacity of 175,000 sheep.

Orson Snow, who has been connected with the Consolidated Implement company here for a long period has taken a position in Idaho Falls and is selling out his property here and will move his family to that point at once. Mr. Stoddard takes his place here with Consolidated Implement company.

Quite a valuable discovery of gold bearing rock was found at the old evacuated iron mine 10 miles north west of Milford last week.

The largest freight car on wheels—C. & St. P., No. 9559—was in Milford last week loaded with carriages. Its capacity is 60,000 lbs, is 50 feet long and 13 feet wide.

More timber has passed through Milford for the Horn Silver mine during the last 30 days than for any twelve months before.

Mr. B. F. Miller is buying out all other interests in the DeLamar stage line and by the time this issue appears will have secured entire control of the line.

Joe Fife is looking for a chance to use his new hobbles and hand cuffs.

Under Lock And Key.

There is a newly-married woman in Montgomery county, Pa., who has had more trouble possibly, in getting married than any other of her sex in Pennsylvania. She was courted three years by an ardent swain, and finally consented to set the wedding day. Three days before the eventful date the lover brought a half dozen nice spring chickens to be cooked for the wedding feast. He never helped to enjoy the provender, however, for he had stolen the fowls, and was arrested and sent to jail for the offense, says the Philadelphia Record. Number 2 started right in where the chicken thief had left off, and the lady being anxious to have a husband, soon had the other fellow getting ready for the nuptials. This new man borrowed a crisp $100 bill from his promised bride to purchase his wedding outfit, and as he was going to Philadelphia for the clothing, a sister of the bride intrusted him with another $100 to purchase an organ. He never returned. It was learned later that he already had a wife and two children. No. 3 came along in short order—a widower with two children. He was an ardent wooer, and inside of two months the wedding day was set. The bride didn't propose to be left this time, so a week before the date of the nuptials, with the aid of her mother, she placed the widower under lock and key in the garret of their farm house, and only released him after the preacher had arrived to tie the knot.—Ex.
