The Denver Festival.

Each county, city and town in the state of Colorado is interested and will be represented in the Grand Pageant of Progress on the first day of the festival, and the display will rivet the attention of the entire country. The unrivaled resources of Colorado will be illustrated on floats indicating the product of every valley and every mountain in the state. The visitors will note, and will be impressed, with the fact that the Centennial state possesses rare stores of wealth in her hills and limitless possibilities in her valleys. The product of the greatest gold and silver camps in the world will be on exhibition in the monster Pageant of Progress. In another division will be the Queen of the Plains, with her maids of honor and several score of floats indicating the value of the product of the soil and orchard. The coal, marble and other interests will also be represented in the parade. Visitors will be compelled to acknowledge the amazing development of the state. For the number of floats now assured, this panoramic representation will be over three miles long.

The Carnival of the Queen Thalia and her court, on the second day of the festival, will be the greatest affair of the kind ever witnessed on this continent, outside of New Orleans. Nearly every feature will be new, and many of the costumes will be the handsomest that can be designed by the famous costumers of New Orleans and St. Louis. The Presents to be given to the fortunate participants have already been selected, and besides their value, are exceedingly handsome.

The Chinese division of the first day and Silver Serpent and parades, will be a glittering parade of banners, bearing gold and silver dragons; Chinese costumes, pagodas, sedan chairs, and bands of musicians from the Flowery Kingdom, in such profusion as are witnessed in the Chinese quarters of San Francisco, on the celebration of some national holiday. This company of Celestials will escort through the streets a huge crawling dragon two hundred feet in length. For this display two carloads of paraphernalia have been brought from San Francisco.

A Colonization Scheme.

Claus Spreckels has surveyors at work surveying a 4000-acre body of land belonging to him between the river road and Spence's Switch. This body of land is to be divided and subdivided into 50-acre tracts, upon each of which cottages, stables and suitable buildings will be erected for use of families. The land is all adapted to the cultivation of beets, it is the purpose of Mr. Spreckels to get a family upon each farm. His plan, if carried out, will bring into the valley 80 additional families. This colony and the German colony soon to settle north of town will be no inconsiderable addition to our population and which will increase the products of the vicinity perceptibly.—Salinas Index.

Why They Failed.

Speaking of the failure of the sugar factory at Menominee Falls, Wis., a paper of that state says:

They got tanged in the finances, bonded the plant, and—quit, but we hope they did not stop short like grandfather's clock; but if the expert from the Grand Island (Nebraska) sugar factory, who was sent to Menominee Falls by a company in Des Moines, Iowa, to investigate the plant, is correct, "it will never go again" until it is made over on modern American machinery lines. The expert reports great faults of construction in nearly every particular, and claims that it would take many thousands of dollars to make changes sufficient to make a complete and profitable sugar factory and refinery. If capitalists are to invest in a sugar factory let them see a successful factory and refinery in operation. They can see the Oxnard's in Nebraska and California, or the Dyer's in Lehi, Utah, or California. There seems to have been a lot of screws loose in the Menominee Falls plant somewhere or somehow. When the tests are made all over Wisconsin this fall, and if they are satisfactory to capitalists, there will be no doubt about several sugar factories being built in the State next year. If there are we will wager a row of beets that they will not take the Menominee Falls factory for a model, or let the building of a plant to a foreign German syndicate. They will look to American factories successfully in operation and call upon men, perhaps German-Americans, who can duplicate them with American machinery and improvements which the projectors of our American factories will gladly suggest.
