A Story That the President Has at Last Been Captured—His Lonely Bachelor Life, and How He Lungs for the Association of His Buffalo Friends.

"On his recent trip to the woods," slyly remarked a well-known New Yorker to-day, "the President met an acquaintance, a young widow, whom the gossip-has not yet named, but who is undoubtedly nearer his heart than any of the young misses who have been mentioned as his fiancées." The meeting was arranged by Dr. Ward, who holds himself responsible for the whole busi-

This widow is about thirty, is given to embonpoint and will tip the scales at about 165 pounds. She has no children, and enjoys a comfortable income from a small property inherited from her mother. She was in Washington last May, and saw the President twice, without attracting any attention. There is no doubt that the President and the widow are much interested in each other, but the President is a little shy about telling his story, don't you see?

The widow belongs to an excellent New York family, but Miss Rose may or may not approve of having the acquaintance continue. The President told an intimate friend confidentially, the other evening, that he never felt the need of a wife so much as since coming to Washington.
The President and Miss Rose are totally unlike in their thoughts and actions, and the latter is entirely absorbed in her literary labors.

The ladies of Washington would rejoice to see the President wedded to a good wife, but perhaps two or three belles, who have set their caps for the President, would be sorely disappointed.

"What a grand wedding we will have," exclaimed one of the attaches of the White House, "if this rumor proves true."

The President, by two moves, has become entirely separated from all of his old bachelor companions and has no chance for the delights of club life, as in the old Buffalo days (and nights). All his chums of yore are hundreds of miles away, and it is any wonder that the President keenly realizes the utter loneliness of his life? Since the 4th of March the busy-burly of official life has kept his mind fairly occupied, but it is quieter now, and home-sickness can reach even older hearts than the President's.

The President is remarkably simple in his habits. Nearly every evening, at about 6 o'clock, accompanied generally by Colonel Lamont, the President takes a ride in the landau. The route is frequently up K street and Vermont avenue towards the Soldiers' Home, and the return is usually after dark. Albert Hawkins, the colored coachman, who has been an attaché of the White House for twenty years, is always the driver, and takes great pride in his position. Albert, by the way, is quite a character, and looks with considerable disdain upon the other White House understrappers. He is in receipt of a large salary, and a day seldom passes in which the dusky coachman receives less than half a dozen letters. Nobody knows the purposes of this extensive correspondence.

The President is a hearty eater, and is becoming a little annoyed at the increasing weight, which is now 235 pounds, ten pounds more than Secretary Manning.
A physician recommended the Banting system, with exercising, daily baths and dieting, but the President did not try that plan very long, as it reduced his weight only a few ounces a week.
The President has been contemplating horseback riding for the purpose of hardening his muscles and reducing his flesh, and a quiet horse has been procured for the purpose. When Secretary Lamar heard of this he related his experience to the President as to his exercise in the saddle. The Secretary believes the President should try equestrian exercise, although he himself has given it up.

The Secretary was rather a sorry figure on his horse, and might have been seen every morning at 9 o'clock jogging along up H street, on a walk, toward the Interior Department. A month in the saddle sufficed for Mr. Lamar.

Mrs. Hill, the colored cook at the Executive Mansion, says that the President is easily pleased, as he is not at all an epicure. She did not use this word, epicure, but something which sounded like it. Fancy French dishes are an abomination to the President, but good fried potatoes, beefsteak, bread and coffee, and plenty of them, are what he likes.— Cor. San Francisco Post.

Muscle vs. Prayer.
A storm was raging on one of the inland lakes, and several persons from a wrecked vessel were making for the shore in a small boat. The waves threatened to overwhelm the little craft, when all of a sudden a great, strong, muscular fellow dropped his oars and commenced to pray.
"Hold on," shouted one of the men.
"Let that little fellow in the bow pray."
You keep on rowing.

A press dispatch last night says:
The Russian officer in the Bulgarian service has resigned, and their places have been filled by Bulgarians. The country is disappointed at the action of the Russians, but the people are not discouraged.
Two fully equipped battalions of volunteers have crossed the Balkans and proceeded to this town. Prince Alexander, while inspecting a body of reserves who were about to start for the frontier, addressed the troops, concluding as follows:
"My brave men, we have no quarrel with the Turks, but if they dispute our action, we will fight them to the death; and be assured that I will always be found in the thick of the fight." The Prince's speech was received by the troops with the greatest enthusiasm. The whole province has been declared in a state of siege. Prince Alexander assumes the post of commander-in-chief of the entire army and Major Nicoll will command the forces of Rou-melia.

The United States steamers "Svalbard" and "Yantic," which have about $10,400, 800 in silver coin on board, were due at Washington yesterday, but have not been heard from since they sailed from Key West. The delay in their arrival is undoubtedly due to the present stormy weather, and it is believed that they encountered heavy gales off Florida. The uneasiness is felt for the safety of the vessels or their cargo, however, either at the Navy or Treasury departments. The vessels are staunch and strong, and are in charge of able and discreet officers.

WARNER'S SURE CURE.

The Ohio Congressman Gives Some Sensible Views Concerning the Taxed Silver Question.

Metal, For the Only Benefit Would be to the Gold Bugs.

The "Genesta" Experiences a Cyclone, But, Thanks to Her Rig, Rides
It Through Safely.

Warner Talks on Silver.

New York, September 24.—Congressman Warner, of Ohio, was asked yesterday if he thought the Bland bill could be repealed without a substitute being provided therefor. In response, Warner said: "I do not believe it can, and I will say more, I don't believe it ought to be. This is not a mere question of coining a few millions of dollars more or less in a year, but it is a question between bi-metalism and gold mono-metalism."

THE PRESENT COINAGE LAW Is the only thread by which silver is held in our monetary system. Strike this down without any substitute, and bi-metalism is overthrown. Silver men understand this perfectly well. The change in standard from both metals to one is the fact, the most indebtment that now weighs down modern nations, would be nothing less than a stupendous crime. I will introduce my bill, which is intended as a substitute for the Bland bill, at the assembling of Congress. It will be opposed by the extreme silver men, but I believe there are enough men who favor my proposition, to carry it through the House. I think that all will agree that such a bill will effect a more PERMANENT SETTLEMENT OF THE SILVER QUES-TION.

Than would a change in weight of coins.
And no doubt a permanent settlement of that important matter will lead to an immediate and lasting revival of business throughout the country.

The "Genesta's" Stormy Cruise.

New York, September 24.—The English cutter "Genesta" yesterday won the Brenton Reef challenge cup, by beating the American schooner "Dauntless" in the 300-mile race from Sandy Hook lightship to Brenton Reef lightship and return. Time, 48 hours, 7 minutes, 50 seconds. The outward run was entirely uneventful, with light wind, the "Genesta" literally RUNNING AWAY FROM HER AMERICAN CON-TESTOR.

Which was a most unusual sight on the horizon Tuesday morning, the race having been started at 5 o'clock Monday evening. There was a heavy rain on the way up the coast.
The "Genesta" was in the lead, and the lightship, having accomplished half of the journey at 9:30 Tuesday night, and started on the return in a heavy fog at 11:30. When within miles of the lightship, the "Genesta" "Dauntless" was sighted, and was therefore forty miles behind. A stiff gale had in the meantime sprung up, and the "Dauntless" lost the head of her main topsail. About midnight

A TERRIBLE CYCLONE SET IN,
And the Englishman had all the wind he wanted. After another he had to take in sail. At 6:50 a. m. he stood about on the starboard tack, midway between Point and the Shinnecock lightship. The sea was running high and the greater part of the time the cutter was to windward, and her weather quarter, to which the crew clung. Every time she shipped a wave her main sheet was wet half-way up to the mast, and when she plunged headlong into the sea, the crew were drenched. It was thought each moment would be the last.
Sir Richard Sutton and his guests presented a grim picture, and the crew appeared to be in a state of despair. At 11:40 Friday Island light was seen, and the SEA APPARENTLY ROLLING MOUNTAINS HIGH.

The cutter took in her staysail at 12 o'clock and reefed it. The gale had increased in severity so much that one of the "Genesta's" crew was flung to the deck and knocked unconscious, and remained in this condition some hours. Another sailor was washed partially overboard, but caught in time to be rescued. The "Dauntless" was not seen after she gave up the struggle. At 2:30 the "Genesta" was close reefed, and an hour later almost opposite Long Beach.

She was still plunging furiously.
At 4:45 she was abreast of the Rocky Hook lightship, which she rounded at 5:30 a. m.
Her actual time was 48:07:50; her official time, 48:07:50. The "Dauntless" was not seen after she was discerned off Block Island, and it is supposed she gave up the race and entered Newport in consequence of the "Genesta's" superior sailing. The "Genesta" was admirably handled throughout the race, and has proved her virtues in a heavy sea.

Barke Wants to Tackle McCaffrey.

Denver, September 23.—Learning that Dominick McCaffrey is expected in Denver early in October, Barke to-day deposited $100 with Captain Smith, of the Rocky Mountain News, to meet McCaffrey in Colorado, Wyoming, or Texas, under London or Queensbury rules on any terms McCaffrey may dictate for from $1,000 to $5,000 a sterling. To-day signed a contract with John P. Clow, champion of Colorado, Wyoming and Texas, to spar four rounds with two-pound gloves. Queensbury rules. The contention building, of this city, on the 30th instant, the winner to take two-thirds of the door receipts.

American Wheat Cargoes Short Weight.

LONDON, September 24.—At a meeting of the Grain Trade Association in London yesterday, resolutions were passed denouncing delinquency in out-turns of California, Australia and other wheat. It is believed the cargoes average from 3 to 4 per cent under the stated quantity. It was also resolved that the cargoes ought to be sold on a basis of quantity delivered. Resolutions were also passed requesting the grain trade associations of Great Britain to issue contract forms to that effect.

Army Appointments.

WASHINGTON, September 24.—Commodore Alexander A. Sennet, commandant of the Washington Navy Yard, died suddenly at Hamilton, London county, Va., yesterday afternoon.

Colonel Absalom Baird, Assistant Inspector-General, was appointed by the President to be Inspector
