"Not Worth a Cent."
They are telling a good story on James Flood around the clubs. Some time ago a globe-trotter from Wales, with an eye to business, sought admission to the Selby refinery, at Vallejo Junction, that he might learn a point or two on ore refining. He was politely told by the superintendent that he could not come in.

"Can't come in, eh?" said the visitor. "I'll see about that. I'll get an order." "That won't make any difference; you couldn't even get in on a writ of habeas corpus."

A few days after the searcher after knowledge presented himself at the works with a request from James Flood that he be shown around. The superintendent looked at the order and handed it back, remarking: "That signature is worth millions on some kinds of paper, but it isn't worth a cent here."

"I'll have you discharged for this," said the visitor, and patiently the superintendent waited for his discharge. It came not, but a few weeks afterward Flood and Mackey came up together to inspect the works, and the superintendent had to show them around. As they walked along Mackey complained bitterly to Flood about the number of orders Flood gave to visitors to see the mines, saying that they interfered with the work and were a nuisance.

"Can't be helped," replied Flood. "I can't refuse permits to gentlemen who do business with us." "Well, it's got to be stopped," said Mackey.

"If you don't want 'em down the mine," said Flood, with a smile, "why don't you do as our friend, the superintendent, here? Tell 'em that Flood's order ain't worth a cent."

"Did he do that?" said Mackey, and for ten minutes he gazed admiringly at the blue-shirted hero, who had declined to receive his partner's paper.—San Francisco Post.

3. We believe that all the difficulties which surround the people of Utah will find a peaceful remedy, if absolute freedom of discussion can be secured, and independent individual judgment expressed.

4. The SALT LAKE DEMOCRAT will use the language of moderation, and will rely no man for opinion or bias. While firm in its advocacy of correct political principles, it will respect the rights of all others to hold contrary opinions.
