AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR To its Natural Vitality and Color.

ADVANCING years, sickness, care, disappointment and hereditary predisposition all turn the hair gray and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

Ayer's Hair Vigor, by its judicious use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often restores the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its activity. Thus, brassy, weak or sticky hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmonious. It cures dandruff, keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair the Vigor is prized for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustrous and rich tint of face it imparts.

LITERATURE

NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW.

In the North American Review for February the first article is by Cardinal Manning, and treats of the relations of the Church to the State in general, whether the one is subordinate to the other—but simply essays to determine "what can be and what ought to be the relations between the church in the nineteenth century and the political society of the world in the nineteenth century." Ex-Secretary Howe contributes a pungent article entitled "The Third Term." He turns to ridicule the fears that have been expressed by sundry organs of popular opinion by the President Grant to a third term of office or republican institutions should be overturned, and "the empire" established. Rear-Admiral Daniel Ammen makes a very effective reply to M. de Lesseps' article on the American Inter-oceanic Canal. The advantages of a canal with locks over a canal a miter are pointed out, and the French engineer's objections to a locked canal shown to be futile. George Augustus Sala, continues an entertaining article entitled "Now and then in America," "now" being this present year of grace, and "then" 1863, the third year of our Civil War. "The Emancipation Proclamation," by James C. Welles, is a calm, judicious review of the crowning act of President Lincoln's administration. The considerations which forced Mr. Lincoln to issue that memorable proclamation as a measure of political expediency are convincingly set forth. The author furthermore learnedly discusses the legal effect of the proclamation, its constitutionality, etc. In his opinion the validity of the edict was not derived from law or constitution, but from the "higher law in the plane of statecraft." It was a coup d'etat, and its justification is to be found in its end, which was the salus populi. The book notices of this number of the Review are from the pen of M. W. HARRIS.

The Review is for sale by booksellers and newsdealers generally.

FRANK LESLIE'S SUNDAY MAGAZINE

For February is one of the most attractive numbers that has yet been issued of this entertaining and edifying publication, and well sustains its high reputation. The 128 pages are filled with delightful literature, and are bright with some of the best "gleanings." The articles are on a variety of subjects, to suit all tastes, and will interest educated and cultivated minds as well as the most ordinary reader. Our space will permit a reference to a few of the most noteworthy. "The Case of the Rev. William Tennent," by Alfred H. Guernsey, "Salt and Salt Mines," by Godfrey A. Hudson; "St. Augustine, the Apostle of the English," by Herbert Lee, and "The Persecution of the Huguenots," by Alfred H. Guernsey, are exceedingly interesting, as is likewise the article on Magdalen Herbert, the mother of George Herbert, the "Poet of the Temple." The first of a series of papers, entitled "The Children of the Bible," gives promise of becoming an unusually attractive feature. Mrs. Augusta B. Garrett has an admirable article, entitled "Beneficent Anims," which is a study on sacred names. The department of fiction is crowded with good things, and there are poems by Mrs. Carrie L. Post, George Herbert, Rev. E. H. Bickersteth, Austin Griffin, etc., etc. Youthful readers will be delighted with the stories, "Little Heroes," "The Lucky Prince, Wee-Wee," etc.; the former is the commencement of a new serial. There is a very abundant miscellany of the most entertaining and instructive character. Single copies are only 25c., and the annual subscription $3, postpaid.

Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

PHRENOLOGY.

The time is passed when people question the utility of phrenology, and men are now applying its principles to an extent that is hardly appreciated, both in self-culture, and in their dealings with others. The Phrenological Journal of New York is the only periodical devoted to the subject, and it includes with it all that relates to human nature, and the improvement of men physically, mentally and morally. In the prospectus for 1880, the publishers make liberal propositions to subscribers. The price has been reduced to $2 a year, and to each subscriber is offered a Phrenological Box. This box is a model head, made nearly life size, of plaster of Paris, and is labeled so as to show the exact location of all the phrenological organs. It is a handsome ornament, well adapted to the center-table, mantel-piece, library or office. With the aid of this, and the illustrated copy which accompanies it, together with the articles published in the Phrenological Journal on practical phrenology, each person may become quite familiar with the location of the different phrenological organs, and a good judge of human nature. The box is sent by express, carefully packed, to every subscriber who sends in addition to the subscription price ($2) 25c. extra for the boxing and packing; or, No. 2, a smaller size, will be sent by mail, for 15c. on the same terms, to those who have the box, or prefer the new book premium, will be sent "How to Educate the Feelings and Affections," worth $1.50.

S. R. Wells & Co., 737 Broadway, New York.

POSTAL GUIDE.

The January number of the United States Official Postal Guide makes a book of about 650 pages, containing many features which render it indispensable to all who wish clear and accurate information about all matters connected with the postal service. It contains alphabetical lists: Of all post offices in the United States, with county and state; of post offices arranged by states; of post offices arranged by states and counties, with the geographical position of the counties; of the money-order offices, domestic and international; of post offices of the first, second, and third class; with salaries of officers; and a list of letter-carrier offices; of Canadian money-order offices; of information about money-orders and registered letters; rates of foreign and domestic postage; sailing of mail steamers; latest rulings of the post office department; all needed information about postal matters. All these make the January number indispensable to business men, and to all who use the post office to any considerable extent.

Price, in paper, $1; in cloth, $1.50. Can be procured of postmasters, booksellers, and news dealers, or of the publishers.

WOMAN'S NERVE.

A TALL LADY PROVES HER COURAGE TO A SMALL REPORTER.

A tall lady with a stormy countenance came into the Chronicle office to-day and demanded of the reporter if Virginia offered a good field for a series of a dozen lectures on woman suffrage.

"I don't think the Commonwealth have thought much about female suffrage," replied the reporter, truthfully. "Don't say female," said the tall lady sharply.

"Why not?" asked the reporter, in innocent surprise. "Because, sir, a term that is used to describe sex in animals should not be applied to woman."

The reporter admitted, in great humiliation, that the point was well taken, and looked up in some alarm at the severe countenance of the lady, who was a head taller than himself and manifestly able to thrash him in the interest of progress if so disposed. The stern countenance softened somewhat at these signs of confessed inferiority, however, and the lady continued:

"The cause of woman is the cause of humanity. The cause of humanity embraces all progress. Why, then, should the people of Virginia be indifferent to woman?"

"I'm not," cried the small reporter, hastily. "Far from it. Woman is the boss in this camp. Everything she wants she gets, and not one in a hundred has to do a lick of work."

"More toys," said the tall one, with deep scorn. "Playthings for an idle hour. You would cover woman with silks and gauds and sink her soul to insignificance by circumscribing her sphere and allowing her no mission in life."

"Well," admitted the small reporter, "that's about the way we look at it up here, that's a fact. Women haven't got the nerve to rustle for themselves like men."

"SHE'S-R-V-E!" She uttered the word in a terrific tone, so terrific that the small reporter half rose from his chair. "Nerve! What is that? I am incapable of nerve!"

"No offense, madam, no offense. I meant nothing personal, I assure you."

"Am I not stronger than you?" she demanded, scolding the apology. "Am I not gifted with as great a brain? Why do you despise my sex? We can bear more pain, and are therefore your superiors in courage."

The small reporter was gazing fixedly at a dark corner of the room and made no answer. "Nerve, indeed! I continued the tall lady, "why, women have infinitely more nerve than men. I only yesterday I saw a woman—"

"That's the biggest rat I ever saw in the office," said the small reporter, staring intently at the dark corner.

The scream that rent the air when the rat leaped upon the small citizen from the street. When they arrived the tall one was standing on a chair with one hand covering her eyes and the other convulsively clutching at her skirts as she gathered them close about her.

The small reporter wisely took advantage of the crowd to slip out, and he telegraphed from Gold Hill that he was going down to Carson to work up a big item.—Virginia City Chronicle.

The New Trans-Continental Railroad.

New York, 24.—The conference committees of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad Companies had their meeting in this city yesterday, to discuss the proposed combination of the two roads, and the building of the extension to the Pacific coast. It is stated by officers of the St. Louis and San Francisco Company that everything has been satisfactorily arranged, except to draft the necessary papers, and that the entire sum needed, $20,000,000, had been provided for.

Mississippi's New Senator.

New York, 24.—The Cincinnati General & Georgia, who was yesterday elected senator from Mississippi, is the man who conducted the rifle club and shot gun campaign in Mississippi in 1875, by which the state was first wrested from the hands of republicans. Soon after the campaign closed he was rewarded by being made judge and now he is elected to the Senate. In his election Senator Lamar received a rebuff, as he was using all his influence to procure the election of General Walker, Lamar and his friends interested themselves very actively for Walker, but to no purpose. The election is that Lamar's influence in Mississippi is on the decline. Persons familiar with Mississippi politics say, that if Barkdale, who came near being elected, had been the Barkdale who slew Dixon instead of his uncle, he would have been made senator.
