The House went into committee on the post office appropriation bill.

Kansas Crops.

Topeka, Kas., 12.—The state board of agriculture reports the following relative to the wheat crop in Kansas. It is estimated there has been a decrease in the area sown as compared with last year. The greater portion of this decrease is in the eastern part of the state where farmers have, the last three years, had bad luck in growing it. It is estimated, in round numbers, the loss will amount to not less than 500,000 acres, or a percentage of one-fourth. Winter wheat looks nicely at present, and all correspondents agree that a heavy crop will be harvested provided the outlook continues as encouraging as at the present time. The weather has been so favorable that the secretary of the state board feels warranted in saying the loss from freezing and other causes, will not amount to over 1 per cent. A majority of the correspondents agree that early sown wheat promises a greater yield than that put in late in the fall, and when late sowing is good, they are almost unanimous of a favorable opinion. The winter alone accounts for the fact taken altogether, the winter wheat never looked better, and never promised greater returns to agriculturists than to-day. Prosperity in this line of farming is not confined to any one section, but is practically universal.

Schooner Collision.

Chicago, 12.—Detroit special: At 3 o'clock this morning the schooner Thomas Parsons, upward bound, collided with the schooner Clayton Belle, on the lake, ten miles north of Port Huron. The Belle was struck on the quarter and sank in a few minutes. The second mate, John Dillon, William Sullivan, and Thos. Kirwin of the crew of the Belle were on deck and were saved, but the captain and three others lost. They were below but came up, and got into a small boat, which the waves, caused by the sinking of the vessel, upset. The names of lost are Captain A. M. Colvin, who leaves a family at New Haven, Oswego, N. Y.; first mate Nathan Brotherton, who leaves a family at Battle Creek, Mich.; Dell Brotherton his son, the female cook Koverth. The Parsons was picked up by a tug and it was badly damaged. The lost schooner was valued at $10,000, insured for $6,000. She had a cargo of pig iron valued at $15,000; insured.

Miscellaneous.

Washington, 11.—The cabinet considered the Fitzjohn Porter case to day.

Bismarck, 11.—The sky illuminated with prairie fires in this vicinity. The weather is favorable, and seeding is proceeding rapidly and favorably.

Boston, 11.—The furniture factory of George W. Robinson is attached. It is feared Robinson has absconded.

Base Ball Chief Dead.

Chicago, 10.—W. A. Hurlbut, President of the Chicago ball club, of national base ball league, died of heart disease this afternoon. He was the moving spirit in the organization of the league in 1876 and has been president ever since, except last year. He took ill three months ago, and began to grow better two weeks ago, but a change in the weather caused a fatal turn. He was also a prominent member of the board of trade.

A Forger.

Lynn, Mass., 11.—Charles Morris, after raising about $70,000 by forgeries, borrowing and raising money for sufferers of all kinds, has disappeared, leaving his wife and children. The names principally used in the forgeries were James W. Pike, R. C. Judkins and George H. Harwood. He raised $12,000 for Judkins, the principal victim of the recent boiler explosion.

Imprisoned Miners.

Troy, 11.—Four miners, from Washington County, wrote that they have been cast into a dungeon at Chihuahua, Mexico, having endeavored to leave a mine and say the Mexicans fired on the party from ambush killing two and fatally wounding another. They complain that the United States counsel refuses to aid them.

The Absent Dorsey.

Chicago, 11.—Washington special: It seems to be doubtful if Dorsey will return. Ingersoll insists that he is in New Mexico and he will have him here in a few days. Some believe he will leave the country rather than stand trial.

Haytian Revolt.

Havana, 12.—A revolution began in Cape Haytian, Hayti, on the night of the 26th of March. Gonzalves and Pgt au Prince soon entered the movement. Martial law was proclaimed and President Salomon is preparing to march to Cape Haytian with 3,000 men.

Brilliant Affair.

Washington, 11.—The President's reception to the army and navy was a brilliant affair. The attendance was no confined to these branches, but many of the diplomatic corps and other distinguished people were present.

The Vogel & Co. Swindle.

Boston, 12.—The Journal, to-morrow morning, will say concerning the China fraud: The firm of Vogel Bros., Hong Kong, had succeeded in making for itself quite a reputation in the general trade between China and America and Europe, often in cutting under the market, but preserving strict integrity in their dealings, until within a few months. The first instance of sharp practice brought against them is the expedient they adopted last year. On one or two occasions they bought in lump cargo, and immediately offered to sell in New York the staple goods the vessel contained at cost and freight. Such offers were of course quickly snapped up and New York merchants awaited the result of their bargains, but when the vessels arrived, they were called upon to pay, as freight, a sum almost large enough to buy the ship and certainly sufficient to bring the cost of goods up to full market rates. More recently the firm adopted methods more frankly illegitimate. Dealings in the Chinese trade are made by means of letters of credit. The importer obtains a letter of credit from some well-known banking house. It is sent to Hong Kong and cashed by local bankers, when accompanied by the proper vouchers of shipment. Merchandise shippers thus receive payment as soon as goods are put on board the vessels. Late in 1881 the New York sugar refinery ordered, by cable, from Vogel Bros., a cargo of sugar stating a telegraphic letter of credit would be sent as soon as instructions could reach its London bankers to that effect. Vogel Bros. immediately shipped a cargo of Chinese sugar of poor quality, it is stated, and the local banker paid them the price of cable order with bills of lading. Ten days later a telegraphic letter of credit was received from London, whereupon Vogel Bros. immediately shipped a second cargo and successfully negotiated the letter of credit with another Hong Kong banker. Meantime telegraphic orders and bills of lading were sent to London for collection and the banker, knowing the cargo had arrived, cashed it, but by next steamer came the real letter of credit which the banking house was obliged to cash, it being genuine, the loss, therefore, fell upon the banks, the consignees refusing to accept the second cargo. The next victims were European silk merchants. The English French silk trade with China is large and the field for Vogel Bros. operations was quite extensive. They received in all during the first two months of the present year orders for about 16,000 bales of first grade silk. Payment was received before shipment in all cases, the value of the goods being $300 per bale. Within a short time the goods reached their destination. Bales were found to be made up of outside dressing fourth grade silk, filled with shavings, valued at about $10 per case. Estimated loss to English and French merchants by this fraud amounts to $400,000. There is said to have been trouble also over large consignments of camphor which Vogel Bros. sent to a New York house, and which resulted in quite a serious loss to the importers. In the case of a cargo of hemp received on the Richard Robinson, and in which the firm of Vogel, Washburn & Co., is one of those principally interested. The question of paying the loss is an open one between the importer and the banker, if the letter of credit called for the delivery of hemp and this letter was cashed on delivery of matting. It is claimed bankers are responsible for making wrong payment.

A Prohibition Terror.

Seneca, Kansas, 11.—The saloon keeps a Seneca all pleaded guilty in the district court this morning, to both selling liquor and keeping a place of sale. They were fined $200 each and costs, and their places of business ordered closed as a nuisance; by agreement, also, they have surrendered their government license. The district court is a terror to saloon keepers, and prohibition will prohibit in Judge Martin's district.

Settled.

Montevideo, 12.—The dispute between Italy and Uruguay, relative to an assault upon and mistreatment of two Italians, has been adjusted. The assaults have been punished and the two Italians receive £2,000 compensation.

Advice to Young Men.

Don't be lazy, my boy. Fly around and do something, if it's only to pound sand. Put in all your minutes in honest hard work, tranquil meditation, or healthful recreation. Easy to meditate? Be careful, my boy, or you'll choose the hardest lot of all. A lazy man stretches himself out in the sun and dozes, but he doesn't meditate. He doesn't think. Edison, sitting beside his fireless forge with the idle hands folded in his lap, may be apparently as listless as the fellow sitting on a log in the sunshine, dreamily "fishing for cat." But the telephone, the electric light, the quadruplex instrument came from the dreams of one, while the other only catches the ague, and serves him right. Why, my boy, you waste enough time to build a house. We waste time because it slips by so pleasantly. We can't realize it. I have wondered sometimes if a man had in his room a great glass—a hour-glass—loaded with the sands of his life, so that it might be before him every time that he entered that room; if he knew that not one grain of the steadily dropping sand could be turned back; if he could watch it diminishing above and piling up below; if, when he closed his eyes, he knew that all night long it would run steadily, no faster, no slower; if, when he came home from a journey, he could see how much had run away; if he could stand before it, held by a strange fascination, and watch its running sands; if he could always realize that these grains of sand numbered the seconds of his life; if he could see that sleeping or yawning, going or staying, sick or well, eating and drinking, working or idling, remorselessly the sand ran through, I wonder how many of those grains would turn to gold, as they passed through the alchemy of his industry?

Ah, well, do you think such a steady constant reminder of the shortness of life and the value of time would have any effect on you? Foolish you be, as soon as the novelty of it; thing wore off, you wouldn't mind it a cent's worth. Why, when the old Egyptians used to carry in the skeleton at their feasts, did it make anybody dismayed? Not a bit of it; made them jolly. "Send that thing back to the bonny yard," said Thothmes, "and open another basket of that New Jersey Heidsiek. Apples is apples this year."—Burlington Hawkeye.

The Totttering Eugenie.

To day I saw that former beauty, the former Empress of France, entering her temporary London residence. What a volume of events came before me side by side with this terrified woman. I can remember seeing her in all her grace and beauty, when only a mother's arm protected her amid the gay and dangerous salons of fashionable life in Paris, and whose hearts beat high in praise of her queenly form, and when she excellently, was the belle of Paris. I have seen her as the Empress of France, surrounded by the world's fashion, and by those who styled themselves her "friends." In no instance was she scandalized, and it remains for an American woman's malevolent tongue alone to trace this fair lady of France. The wife of an American Vice-Consul, herself residing in Paris and living in the rigid zone of a forced permit to attend society, to the manor born, and a toast-giving intruder and indiscreet toast monger monstrosity called the "American Colony," alone found occasion to abuse the ex-Empress of France after a season of door-to-door idleness at the Tuilleries and the Invalides, a eleemosynary commission from the Emperor. But the Eugenie "light of other days is faded and all its beauties past." The tall, erect and stately figure is bent and drooping, the queenly air is akin to that of the mendicant; the fair locks in their luxuriant wavy tresses are white as the driven snow and thin and scanty in appearance; the large, expressive and animated eyes, half violet and half blue in recurrent tints, are gray, watery and leaden-streaked; the oval face is wrinkled and worn by cruel care and the flush of youth is supplanted by a sepulchral whiteness. In a word, the ex-Empress Eugenie is a tottering tomb, somewhat fair without, but a sorrow within. And what a fearful telling epitaph is "writ large" thereon. In the shadow of the portal of this Kensington mansion the ebb-tide of time opening the door seem an embodiment of Nemesis, and this woman of sorrow enters, leaning on a crutch-banded cane and the arm of a faithful follower. It has been my lot to see other Queens in exile, other magnates dethroned and peering from out their camera corners, but no one so strongly arouses sympathetic sorrow as does this widowed, childless, parentless, isolated ex-Empress. But one consoling comfort is hers. It is feeding the hungry, clothing the naked and comforting the afflicted. Where the poor wear not their woe upon their faces, here you will find the prematurely aged and tottering lady, rescuing a social wreck and holding out a helpful beacon. No refusal is given even a red republican from Bellville or an erstwhile royal Cynic from the Basque "legitimate mountains."—London letter to Buffalo Courier.
