SOUTHERN UTAH.

BELLEVUE, Washington Co., U. T., August 8, 1883.

Editors Herald:

Having a few leisure moments, and believing that some of your readers would like to hear from the land of excess and ooze, I venture a few items. Mr. Jacob Gates and I, left your city on the 2d, just via the Utah Central Railroad to Milford 238 miles and, over land to Minersville fifteen miles, (the name of this town originated from the cave silver mine and the lead mines in this vicinity) a scarcity of water at times has proved detrimental to this place, but a dam is being erected which will cover forty acres, six feet in depth. When this is completed it is expected to be this winter, Minersville will be expected to boom up. About 200 tons of hay are said to have been badly damaged by very heavy rains recently. Thirty miles southeast over the mountains bring Paragonah and Parowan, in view, with its Salt Lake and Red Mountains, a continuation of the Wasatch range. Tons of salt are furnished to Silver Reef and other mines from Parowan Lake. Passing Summit to Cedar City eighteen miles. Kanarra is found to be fifteen miles further on, near the rim of the basin. It is not infrequent that snow may be left here, and in one day drive down to Dixie hot and dusty roads be discovered, and a change from overcoats to dusters be necessary.

After lunch we enter upon the down hill grade, pass through Wild Cat canyon, obscuring the variegated mountain gorges, and mountain-tops. A three mile dugway down Black ridge is a masterpiece of work, and to the timid in some cases rather tries the nerves. About sixteen miles from Cannonville, Bellevue looms up in fair view and is a fine place to steady the tired nerves. Grapes, wine, plums, apples and peaches please the eye and bring pleasant reflections of Dixie still further on twenty-five miles. About sixteen years ago this place was noticed and improved some little by Thomas Adair, and a Mr. Harris, a relative of Martin Harris; but was enlarged and improved by our old friend Joel H. Johnson, until he was able to make 1,000 gallons of wine from his vine-yard. In these flourishing times Elder Jacob Gates also had a vine-yard producing about 500 gallons of wine, and a great deal of fruit. Within five years North Ash creek has dried up and South Ash Creek gives a very scanty supply at times in July and August. In consequence of this terrible calamity, many of the settlers have abandoned the place. In taking a stroll over the town, many ruins are seen with farms wasting and the cozy little stone schoolhouse has only broken panes of glass. Elder Gates says that many of his trees have died for want of water and he scarce y got hay for one cow last year. One Andrew Gregerson, however, has bought most of the settlers out and controls the principal water right. J. R. Wilson, who superintends the place, took me through the old vineyard of Mr. Joel Johnson, and some addition—10 1/2 acres. He has 22 acres of lucerne ready for the third cutting. The ripe peaches and grapes are good. About four tons of lucerne from the four cuttings is an average crop to the acre. When water can be secured a dam is kept in North Ash creek, by which floods are caught and run over the north farm. The very high chain of mountains on the east causes cloud bursts and floods and the very heavy peals of thunder vibrate terribly. A cistern of some 20,000 gallons has recently been prepared for the comfort of the ranch, where the daily mail often calls.

PROVO POINTS.

Provo, August 15th, 1883.

Editors Herald: I have noticed with some little surprise the commentatorial criticisms of our local paper on an article that appeared in THE HERALD last Friday, the 10th instant, under the heading "Provo Points," and signed "Aqua." The comment was ominously headed "Malignant Points," the malignant part being original. The writer was evidently laboring under a strong delusion, for he seemed to direct his malice towards the wrong person. I have no way of knowing who this smart Alec "Aqua" is, nor do I believe the question of water rights can ever be settled outside of some tribunal having jurisdiction to decide in such matters. I would never think of going to a newspaper for water rights. The different manufacturing establishments here have always given way to farming interests, but as there seems to be no end of new claimants for water privileges, and, as there must be a limit somewhere, it has been thought best to take steps in that direction. There is but one ditch where water is taken out of Provo river above this valley that has any real tendency to lessen the water supply, and that is at the head of the river where the waste water will find its way to the Weber. All or nearly all of the water taken to irrigate the farms in Provo valley finds its way back into the river again later in the season, and is therefore a great benefit to us Provoites. New springs of water are appearing all along the banks of the river from the lower part of Wasatch county, all through Provo Canyon, and old springs yield ten times the amount of water they did twenty years ago. I know of one spring in Provo Canyon that thirteen years ago would not furnish water enough to irrigate one acre of ground, and which now furnishes enough to water twenty-five or thirty acres. There are also many new springs of water breaking out where least expected. I have one such on my own land on the river bottom, and although my water right from the springs on my own land dates back to 1867, I am told by a local scribbler here that I have not the shadow of a water claim. Perhaps this smartly will yet claim this. I have no right to take even a drink of water from the cool springs in Provo Canyon, and so compel me to buy water mixed with whisky here at the drug stores; but this drug store water and whisky is played out so far as I am concerned. When I commenced this letter my only object was to give our local paper an opportunity to correct its blunders and give honor to whom honor is due, for I do not wish to receive the honors due another. The best thing that could happen here in Provo would be a thorough investigation of our water privileges, so that each would know what his rights are and be governed accordingly. W. B.

A good Baptist clergyman of Bergen, N. Y., a strong temperance man, suffered with kidney trouble, neuralgia and dizziness almost to blindness, over two years after he was told that Hop Bitters would cure him, because he was afraid of and prejudiced against "Bitters." Since his cure he says none need fear but trust in Hop Bitters.

A UTAH MARRIAGE.

A Divorce Case in Oakland with Peculiar Features.

The church divorce case has developed into an unusually interesting case. The suit was brought a few weeks ago in Alameda county by Mrs. L. H. S. Church against John H. Church, on the grounds of cruelty and desertion. In the complaint plaintiff avers that she has been the lawful wife of the defendant for eleven years, claiming to have been married before some county officer in Croydon, a small town in Utah, and that the paper or certificate was subsequently lost. The defendant, who admits that he is worth at least $150,000, bringing in a monthly income of $300, denies the marriage. Pending the final judgment in the divorce suit, application had been made for alimony and attorney's fees by the plaintiff, and the matter had been argued, submitted and taken under advisement. The defendant, John Church, denied that he had ever been married to the plaintiff, claimed that he had a wife living in New York at the time of the alleged marriage to plaintiff, and stated that he had never been divorced from her. He admitted, however, that he had lived with the plaintiff as his wife for many years, and had had two children by her. The defendant has placed himself in a very unpleasant predicament, for, by his own admission, if plaintiff's story is not true, he has been living in open adultery with plaintiff, and if plaintiff's story is true, defendant is guilty of bigamy. Judge Hamilton yesterday rendered his decision upon the motion for alimony and attorney's fees, granting plaintiff, for her use and the maintenance of her two children, $200 each month from the date of the filing of the complaint until the further order of the court, and $250 dollars for attorney's fees.—San Francisco Chronicle.

EVERYBODY is using, and everybody is recommending to everybody's friends, Brown's Iron Bitters as a reliable iron medicine, a true tonic.
