SIGNS OF PROSPERITY.

BY CHARLES HARRIS.

Where spades grow bright,
And idle words grow dull;
Where jails are empty,
And where bars are full;

Where field paths are
With frequent feet outworn;
Law court yards weedy,
Silent and forlorn;

Where doctors foot it,
And where farmers ride;
Where sows abound,
And y. u. h. is multiplied;

Where poisonous drinks
Are chased from every place;
Where opium's curse
No longer leaves a trace;

Where these signs are,
They clearly indicate
Many happy people
And a well-ruled State.

If yu kant be honest when it pays,

Sum wives think nuthin ov ther

WASHINGTON, D. C.,
May 15th, 1880.

GENTLEMEN—Having been a sufferer for a long time from nervous prostration and general debility, I was advised to try Hop Bitters. I have taken one bottle, and I have been rapidly getting better ever since, and I think it the best medicine I ever used. I am now gaining strength and appetite, which was all gone, and I was in despair until I tried yer Bitters. I am now well, able to go about and do my own work. Before taking it I was completely prostrated.

Generosity.

It is right to be liberal to the utmost of your means; but it is not right to be liberal beyond your means—that is, to make some suffer for what you bestow on others.
There is neither good sense nor good morality in letting yourself be "plucked"—in giving heed to every pitiful tale you hear—in believing in every one's necessities as greater than your own. Indeed, by great and indiscriminate generosity you are sure to do more harm than good, inasmuch as you are sure in some instances to give money for the encouragement of vice and extravagance, of selfishness and sloth, which, were there no such people as you, would be found impossible to be continued as methods of living, and must give place to the opposite virtues by the very force of necessity. And, if you give away too much of your substance now, will there not come a time when you will be reduced to the same condition as this from which you are so lavishly seeking to rescue others, and in your turn be forced to draw upon the kindness of friends?
