All the fires were promptly discovered and extinguished. Bandits started them for the purpose of pillage. Twenty-five arrests have been made in connection with the fire."

Merolla & Co.

An Old Friend with a New Face.

"My dear Rose," said Miss MacIver, "where did you acquire that brilliant complexion? It seems to me that you are still the beautiful girl of 18, whom I knew twenty years ago." "My friend," replied the lady addressed, "it is not me you are complimenting, but Glenn's wonderful SULTANA SOAP. Have you never before witnessed its effect? There is nothing impossible to its powers as a beautifier." Beware of counterfeiters. See that "C. N. CRITTENDON, Proprietor," is printed on each packet, without which name is genuine. Sold by druggists at 25c.; three cakes, 60c. The fair Rose was right, and she might also have mentioned the fact that "HILL'S INSTANTANEOUS HAIR-DYE" gives as much satisfaction when applied to the gray head as the "SULTANA SOAP" does to the pale, discolored features. It is cheap, safe and sure.

THE RAILROAD MEETING.

The Question of the Four Pools Considered.

CHICAGO, September 13.—The western railway conference adjourned at 1:30 o'clock. The general plan submitted by the committee for the formation of four pools on the California and Colorado business, two east and two west of the Missouri River, was adopted by a unanimous vote. The meeting then took up for consideration the continuance of the tripartite pool and the relations it would sustain toward the combination, if it was allowed to continue in force. The discussion upon this point was only entered upon when the meeting adjourned. An official of the Union Pacific stated, after the close of the session, that the tripartite certainly would continue in force, though certain changes might occur in its workings, to conform with the plan of the new pool. Other officials declare that the continuance of the tripartite, if insisted upon, will probably result in the defeat of the organization of the proposed pool.

At the afternoon conference the formal adoption of the pooling arrangement to cover the Colorado and California business was decided upon. Contingent, however, upon a settlement of the Nebraska business, or, in other words, a rearrangement of the tripartite pool to meet the wishes of all the Omaha roads. The general conference then adjourned and the Omaha roads took up the discussion of the Nebraska business. Vice-President Potter, of the Burlington, made a proposition for the pooling of the Nebraska traffic, the Burlington to receive its pro rata of the Nebraska business, and also the local traffic of the Union Pacific, waiving all claims to the competitive business of the Union Pacific in Nebraska. This was voted down. The Northwestern then moved that the Burlington receive its pro rata of all the local and competitive business of the Union Pacific, and this, naturally, was also voted down. The Rock Island and St. Paul voting in the negative on both propositions. The conference then adjourned at 9 o'clock to-morrow. An official of the Burlington road, to-night said the present outlook did not appear to be favorable to any immediate adjustment of the pending difficulties.

The coachman and laundress eloped a short time after the Morosini affair.

GEO. W. DAVIS FAILS.

Assignment Made to Mr. David James.

THE STATEMENT OF MR. DAVIS.

Liabilities Estimated at Eighteen Thousand Dollars With Stock on Hand at Three Thousand Less.

At noon yesterday, George W. Davis, who has for many years been in the grocery business in this city, made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, naming Mr. David James, plumber, as his assignee. Mr. Davis was seen a short time after the stock was turned over by a Herald reporter, to whom he gave the following statement: "I decided on taking the present step a day or two ago, when I read in the Herald the interview with Marshal Ireland, wherein he stated that he should proceed at once to collect all accounts due the London Bank; at the time of its failure I was overdrawn at the bank something like $3,200 and I knew I should be unable to meet the amount when called upon by the Marshal; for that reason, I thought I should best serve the interests of my creditors by making an assignment. The amount of stock I have on hand I estimate at from $10,000 to $12,000. My liabilities, including the London bank, I think, nearly offset this amount. I am unable to give the amount of outstanding accounts due to me."

Mr. Davis was in financial difficulty about eight years ago, when he settled with his creditors at 20 cents on the dollar. He stated that the obligations he reduced himself to at that time in order to meet those obligations, added to the recent hard season, which had forced him to overdraw at the bank. He had sold his homestead some time ago and put the money into his business.

Mr. David James was seen in the store looking over the books and examining the stock. He stated that the obligations would reach nearer $13,000 than $12,000, and that the stock was estimated at $10,000, though no inventory had as yet been made. The book accounts, he said, would amount to $1,300—good, bad and indifferent.

From Mr. James the following list of the indebtedness was obtained:

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes W. C. Carter ($417.00), Alfred Dunkley ($650.00), Peter J. Smith ($225.00), etc.

Total due preferred creditors $4,738.21

ESTIMATED.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Kahn Brothers ($318.52), Little, Round & Co. ($30.75), Continental Oil Company ($300.00), etc.

Total due unpreferred creditors $7,925.56

Grand Total $12,663.77

A meeting of the local creditors, among whom there are quite a number of the principal merchants of the city, was held at 2. O. M. last evening for the purpose of deciding what disposition should be made of the assets.

ARCTIC WHALING.

How Wounded Whales Take Refuge in Ice Packs—Profits of the Catch.

While men who have been from childhood on terms of familiarity with harpoons, bombalances, and other paraphernalia with which leviathans are hunted like aquatic game, say that the season is yet uncertain, landmen believe that the prospects are good from what has already been done, and also from the fact that this season had hardly opened when the Boda sailed from the north. Whales appear to have been plenty in the ice, but many of them were where the ships could not go. Hundreds are said to have been seen spouting and spouting around, a sight suggestive of interest to landmen, though barren in commercial way.

The expediting fact to the whalers in the present season is that about as many whales are reported to have been lost after being "struck" as found their way to the try pot. Why this should be particularly expediting is this: Whales average a yield of about one hundred barrels of oil each, and not far from 1,800 pounds of bone. With bone quoted at $4 per pound, and likely to go higher if the season fails, the loss of one whale means the loss of several thousand dollars in bone alone. The steam whaler Thrasher lost seven whales, the Balcona and Orest each seven. One vessel reports having seen many dead whales. The explanation of this is that the whales were "struck," but the boat-steerer's harpoon and perhaps a bomb, were not fatal. When a whale starts for the ice with a boat dragging him, the speed being somewhat terrific, it becomes necessary to cut loose when the sharp-ended boat comes too near the pack. The leviathan keeps on under the ice, perhaps taking the iron and lines with him. When he dies and drifts out again the whaler will take him so long as there is blubber, but the oil is not good. There is a little of the character of woodchuck hunting in Arctic whaling, which the present season well illustrates. The whale runs into the ice, as the woodchuck into a hole, and the whaler has to wait for the game to come out.

A steam whaler can go through four or five feet of pack ice, but when it grows thicker the obstacle becomes serious. "The fact is," said a mariner this afternoon, speaking of the Arctic fleet, "that sail vessels can generally do as well as steamers early in the season. But late in the season the steamers have the advantage, for they can wait and yet get out. The whales were running up to the ice some time before the Neos started south, but just previous to her sailing for several days the weather was thick and the whalers were hunting leviathans in a fog. Previous to that the weather had been clear."—San Francisco Bulletin.
