

THE DAILY HERALD

Salt Lake City, - - Utah.

ATURDAY, : : NOVEMBER 15, 1884.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

CARLTON'S OAST of the Mascot is anxiously awaited.

THE DEMOCRATIC branch of the Liberals will probably celebrate on Tuesday next.

LOVE AND LAW at the matinee to-day, will form an immense bill for ladies and children.

A GOOD pasture, situated near the city is wanted on lease by an advertiser this morning.

THE SUPREME COURT has continued the hearing in the Higbee estate case until next term.

ALMA WINS has all the evidence in the Irons-Evans-Fowler case taken down in shorthand.

LEAD has dropped to $3.40 per 100 lbs. This means a decrease of $3 per ton to the Utah miner since last week.

NEITHER the forger nor the Farmington burglar, mentioned in Friday's HERALD, have as yet been apprehended.

MR. CLUTE, the freight and transfer man, states that the receipts at the depots of incoming freights are quite light.

THIS is the last day of grace to members of Zion's Benefit Building Association. All monthly payments are due to-night.

WELL, FARGO & Co. received yesterday two cars Horn Silver bullion, $5,000.00; one bar Vienna, $1,500.00. Total, $7,500.00.

THERE are messages at the Western Union Telegraph office for Lawrence O'Neill, J. F. Gardner, William Peterson and M. S. Powers.

THE USUAL heavy issue of THE SUNDAY HERALD will be struck off to-morrow. Advertisers are requested to hand in their favors early.

REWARD WITHDRAWN. Rancid Smith having come to town, the reward offered for any intelligence of him is hereby withdrawn.

DEYER has the December and Christmas (double part) numbers of Young Ladies' Journal, and the December number of Popular Monthly.

THE GRAND JURY has set the town in a flutter by sending out another batch of subpoenas. Another case of polygamy is understood to be on the tapis.

A MAN named Hikeman was on trial at the Police Court yesterday, for a nameless horror. The details belong to entirely to the Tribune to be encroached upon.

IN the civil case of West vs. Smith, before Justice Pyper, yesterday, the demurrer was overruled, and the time for answering was set for to-day, at 2 o'clock.

THE ARGUMENTS in the civil case of Gilberson vs. Van Praag were yesterday concluded and submitted to Justice Pyper. A decision will be announced on Monday.

THE UNITED STATES Commission are all again in the city. Mr. Ramsey, the chairman, may be seen any fine day, airing himself at the head of East Temple street.

M. J. CHEESEMAN and R. Walker took a fresh supply of duck medicine to the club camp, north of Springville, yesterday. It must belong to the quack school, for it proves fatal.

THE EXAMINATION of witnesses in the abortion case will continue to-day at 10. As the lawyers are due at the Supreme Court at 2 p.m., the case will probably be closed before that hour.

MCCORMICK & Co. yesterday received one car Hannover, $2,500.00; one car Nevada ore, $2,500.00; one lot Crescent, $2,000.00; three cars Queen of the Hills ore, $3,000.00. Total, $10,000.00.

MACKNIGHT, BEVIS, etc., etc., were before Judge Pyper's court in some phase or other again yesterday. We shall attempt no explanation further than that the demurrer of some one was overruled.

THE FINE grade of flour manufactured by George Husler enjoys a big sale, not only at home, but is in active demand in the adjoining Territories. Mr. Husler has found a good market for his flour in Idaho.

THE GEISNER and Davies who head the dramatic combination which bears their names, are Joe Geisner, one of the most popular of California stock actors, and Phoebe Davies, the lady who recently declined an engagement from the Madison Square to go on the road as Hazel Kirke.

THE SUNDAY HERALD of this week, besides the usual reviews of business, mining, musical, dramatic, sporting, fashion, agricultural and other matters, will contain a paper on our country business and merchants, written by a valued correspondent.

FRANK POWELL, bar keeper for Tufts & Nystrom, charged with having appropriated to his own use $37, which Jerome Mitchell says he left with him for safe keeping, was on trial in the Police Court yesterday. The shades of night overtook the lawyers, and the case went over till Monday.

IN legal circles, Mr. Kirkpatrick's able and exhaustive address yesterday was the general theme. A well-known member of the bar said, "I was on the jury in the case of the late Mrs. Higbee. If it wasn't illegal for a lawyer to be on a judicial decision, I'd wager my head that young Clawson don't pass Saturday night in the Pen."

A REPUBLIC is a rule of the people—therefore to perpetuate the republic, let the people rule; and why not? Let the vanquished giant swallow his pills quick and gracefully, and not make the dose more disagreeable and nauseous by hesitating and chewing it over—Evanston Clinician. So say we all.

FRED MANGERS, son of Phil. Mangels, Esq., and captain of the redoubtable Redd of the past season, was on Thursday united in the bonds of matrimony to Miss Silva Whipple. A respectable reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents in the Nineteenth Ward, on the same evening. The HERALD extends its congratulations to both of the contracting parties.

THE GRAND JURY marched in solemn procession into the courtroom yesterday, and proceedings were suspended while their royal pleasure was ascertained. It was ascertained that they had to report that two charges had been ignored—one against Mr. Peavy for embezzlement, the other against Mr. Brooks for assault. Having delivered themselves of this much, they marched in state back to their room again.

AGAIN IN COURT.

Rudger Clawson Listens to the Arguments in his Case.

THE JUDGES IN CONSULTATION.

A List of the Decisions Rendered at Yesterday's Sitting of the Supreme Court.

The delay of the Lufkins jury in coming to an agreement, or a disagreement, and the announcements in one or two smaller cases, put off the opening of the Supreme Court session until 11 o'clock. At that hour Chief Justice Zane, followed by Judge Emerson and Judge Twiss entered the court room, and the three took their seats on the bench. Mr. E. T. Sprague, clerk for the Supreme Court occupied Mr. McMillan's usual place and read the minutes of last Monday's session. These were signed by the Judges, according to the rules, and Judge Zane announced that the Supreme Court had agreed upon the following decisions, which were delivered by Judge Twiss:

J. Auerbach et al., respondents, vs. Robert Mulhall et al., appellants. The petition for another hearing submitted on the 10th was denied and dismissed.

Thomas Fenton, respondent, vs. Salt Lake County, appellants. A rehearing of this case was denied.

The People, etc., vs. David Fennell, appellant, from the Second district, ordered that a rehearing be denied.

James Ewing, respondent, vs. Edgar Mackley, appellant. A rehearing of the case was denied.

Mr. Rudger Clawson had entered court by this time in company with the Marshal, and taken his accustomed seat. Judge Zane stated that the Supreme Court was now ready to hear the arguments upon the habeas corpus, and the case was opened by Mr. Kirkpatrick on behalf of Mr. Clawson.

Mr. Kirkpatrick's argument, which was closely listened to by a number of members of the bar not connected with the case, occupied all the morning session, and half an hour of the afternoon. It was, in all respects, and was so conceded on all hands, as masterly and learned an address as any which was ever heard within the walls of the Third District Court room. He quoted a great number of authorities upon the position of his side that the defendant could not legally be punished before his case had been heard in the higher court on its appeal, and pointed out that the imprisonment Mr. Clawson was now undergoing differed in little or nothing from that which he would suffer when his sentence was finally affirmed, if such should be the case. He referred also to the great delay consequent in reaching the Supreme Court at Washington, and said his client might remain in prison for three or four years before his case could be taken up.

Mr. Dickson followed in an argument of over an hour's duration, but to the listener it did not seem that he spoke with his usual force and precision. He said that the case might be heard in Washington within the next six months, a provision being in existence in the United States Supreme Court rules by which criminal cases could be advanced under certain circumstances. He held that it was a great temptation to a man who had received such a sentence as Mr. Clawson's to avoid the law by decamping, and reiterated that the question of bail was entirely within the discretion of the Court, and that if the defendant were allowed to go on bail the Court would surely make an abuse of its discretion.

Mr. Rawlins, attorney for Mr. Evans, whose case hinges upon precisely the same points as Mr. Clawson's, closed the case in an argument of about half an hour's duration; he devoted himself to reviewing the evidence, and in referring in general and eloquent terms to all the features of the case.

Five o'clock had now arrived, and Judge Zane announced that all the books referred to would be taken to his rooms, and that the decision would be announced to-morrow at 10 o'clock; an adjournment was thereupon taken until that hour. Mr. Clawson, his father, H. B. Clawson, and a HERALD reporter, remained for a few minutes in Marshal Ireland's office. Mr. Dickson had a seat in the course of his argument, that the defendant was now merely supposed to be in the custody of the Marshal, and not necessarily considered as a prisoner. Mr. H. B. Clawson asked Marshal Ireland, in view of this, if his son might not pass the night at home, stating that a deputy could accompany him and remain with him. Mr. Ireland was unwilling to grant the request, and Mr. Clawson was again conducted out to the Pen, from whence he will be again brought down to-day to learn the decision, which will in all probability affect the question of his liberty for a long time to come.

Gas in Ogden.

At a meeting of the Ogden City Council, held last evening, a charter was granted to J. M. Langsdorf, Daniel Alexander and associates, giving them the right to lay gas pipes, manufacture gas, etc. In that city for a period of twenty-five years. By the terms of the charter the new gas company bind themselves to have the principal streets illuminated with gas within seven months from date. We congratulate Ogden on another big stride in our wake.

"PICKLEY ASH BITTERS" is purely vegetable in composition. It acts directly on the liver, kidneys, stomach and bowels, affording relief and a cure in all cases.

What are the desirable qualities in a whisker dye? It must be convenient to use, easy to apply, impossible to rub off, elegant in appearance, and cheap in price. Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers unites in itself all these merits. Try it.

A COW BOY WITH A VENGEANCE.

Mr. Oviatt Loses His Cow and Finds Her Horns and Hide in a Slaughter House.

Mr. Louis Oviatt, rock hauler of the Nineteenth Ward, several days ago missed a young cow, and all his search upon the streets and in stray pens failed to show any trace of her. Turning his attention to the slaughterhouse he found a hide and a pair of horns in the yard of Mr. Knight, which he immediately identified as having once been worn by his missing heifer. An investigation revealed the following:

Mr. Fred May and Mr. Guiver, butchers, on Wednesday met a boy named Fred Sell, driving a young cow in the direction of Knight's slaughterhouse. Sell, knowing the butchers, asked them if they wished to buy the cow, and if they wished to pay her taxes. Messrs. May and Guiver believing him, paid the price he asked, $25, took the cow to the slaughter house, and had her killed for beef. Mr. Oviatt, upon ascertaining these facts, at once informed the police, and with the assistance of Mr. May, the boy was found to be Fred Sell, of the Sixth Ward. He had spent all the money upon himself, and his mother, who is understood to be in a measure dependent upon him for support, was in utter ignorance of her son's dishonesty. He was locked up last night, and a watch, a valise, and some books, which he had purchased, were taken charge of by the police.

FRUITS OF COLORED SKILL.

The Exhibit Prepared by Mr. Grice for the New Orleans Exposition.

Mr. F. H. Grice, who was appointed by Register Bruce, at Washington, as commissioner of the colored people's exhibits from Utah in the World's Exposition at New Orleans, will forward to that city to-day the specimens which he has collected, and will himself follow them in a short time. A HERALD reporter accompanied Mr. Grice in an inspection of his collection, and quite agreed with that gentleman that, considering the colored population of the county—250 souls—the showing is in every way a creditable one. It includes such workmanship of fair colored bands as sofa cushions, toilet sets, etc., and a great variety of grains, take a leading place in the exhibit; barley which grew 100 bushels to the acre, potatoes 275 bushels to the acre, wheat 50, oats 120, etc., etc., are all included. The most striking of all the exhibits, however, is an adjustable drill invented by Mr. Mr. Miles, a colored blacksmith of the Third Ward. It is a new and strikingly clever patent, which it seems to us, would well repay the investigation of mining operators at home, without sending it so far away to attract attention.

PERSONAL.

COMMISSIONER CARLTON returned to the city on Thursday night.

B. H. YOUNG returns to the Pleasant Valley coal mines this morning.

O. J. SALSBURY is at present confined to his room with rheumatism.

D. M. SHIELDS, of Park City, goes to Wilkesbarre, Pa., via the D. & R. G. to-day.

ARTHUR BROWN has returned from his trip to Hadley, where he went to attend a session of court.

GEO. THATCHER, of Thatcher Bros. & Co., the Logan bankers, was upon the streets yesterday.

ELDERS F. W. MARCHANT and J. B. RHEAD have returned from a mission to the Sandwich Islands.

P. T. FARNSWORTH, whose name was on the U. P. list of "departed cattle men," is still in the city.

Mrs. M. L. OGDEN, of San Francisco, Cal., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Standart, at the Spencer House.

W. S. MCCORMICK, of McCormick & Co., went to Wood River yesterday afternoon. He will be absent about ten days.

L. M. ORSEN, Superintendent of the Ephraim Co-op., is on a business trip to the city. His friends will find him at the Spencer House.

P. J. FLYNN, general agent of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R., arrived last evening on the U. P. Himself and lady are at the Spencer House.

Origin of Ammonia.

Ammonia is obtained in large quantities by the putrefaction of the urine of animals.—Encyclopedia Britannica. Every household can test baking powder containing this disgusting drug by placing a can of the "Royal" or "Andrews' Pearl" top down on a hot stove until heated, then remove the cover and smell.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder does not contain Ammonia, Alum, Lime, Potash, Bone Phosphates, etc. It is prepared by a Physician and Chemist with special regard to cleanliness and healthfulness. Prove it by the above test.

THE TRIBUNE'S INFERNALNESS.

Absolute Silence of the Organ of Slush and Filth on a Material Point.

On Thursday morning the Tribune said that a Mrs. May had died at the City Hall under highly suspicious circumstances, that the particulars of her death had been suppressed, and that in all it was probably a case calling for the investigation of the Grand Jury. The same morning the HERALD contained an account of the death, and the names of the coroner's jury (Gentles) who sat on the case were given. Friday morning the Tribune did not contain a word in explanation or retraction. A HERALD reporter called on Mr. Jacob Alt, one of the jury, yesterday, and asked him if he had given the item to the Tribune reporter. "I gave him simply the fact of the woman's death," said he, "but nothing of the sensational which he has put into his article. I told him we had examined the woman's body; he asked if any marks of violence had been found upon her, and I said no. We were satisfied that she had died from excessive drink." This illustrates the Tribune's manner of obtaining many of its startling items.

In this connection may be noticed the remark of the editor on the Goodwin affair, full details of which were recently printed by the HERALD. The editor says:

"If the editors of the News and HERALD would take the trouble to see J. M. Goodwin and his family, we think even malicious and destitute of heart and soul as they are, they would be ashamed to assail him, no matter what he may have said or may say in future."

"There appears to be some hope for the Tribune editor, after all," said a well-known business man (not a Mormon) yesterday, in directing the attention of a HERALD reporter to this paragraph. "I had expected that the Tribune would flock to the support of Mr. Goodwin, back up his assertions, swear to the Danite murder, and choke the whole lie down the throats of its readers; but I see it lacks a little of Goodwin's supreme gall even yet. But what does it mean by this paragraph? Does it want to imply that Mr. Goodwin's mind is in something the same state as McCulloch's, that he is a little 'off,' that he is not responsible for the lies he tells? If this is true, and the Tribune ought to know, he should be locked up at once. Talk of sympathy for him! What sympathy had he for the community he outraged with his infamous tale? Bah! It makes me sick." On every hand, yesterday, were heard endorsements of the suggestion printed in the HERALD, that Mayor Sharp institute a rigid inquiry into young Goodwin's death, and allow his father to substantiate to a Salt Lake public the charges he made to that of Leadville.

THE PHOENIX.

The Favorite Drama Draws Another Good Audience.

The man who howls that times are dull and business dead would have been dismayed had he wandered into the theatre last evening. The Phoenix, upon its tenth or twelfth representation in Salt Lake, was going on before a $300 or $500 house, and one that seemed to find in the familiar old lines and situations a perennial source of laughter and excitement.

Nobles, as he always is in his own plays, was of course the central figure. As the Bohemian actor to the Chambermaid's Girl, he made all his own points, and the assistance of his venerable gag, "The Whisker Sir Puss Her," never failed to make a bulls' eye in the gallery. Dollie Nobles played with sweetness and naivete. Miss Herndon did not appear in the cast and thereby disappointed her many admirers. The other favorites Mr. Aiken, Mr. Barnum, Mr. Fehrmann—the Jew who has descended into fable—and Mr. Warren, all renewed the favorable impressions they have created. The weak spot in Mr. Nobles' company is found in Mr. Lane, he does not come up to the Leslie Blackburns who have preceded him. The great fire scene drew forth its usual thunderous applause.

To-night Mr. Nobles makes his farewell bow, in his second great sensation which, proudly the Phoenix, the Wives of Ritta in Love and Law, will draw forth the tears and sympathy of ladies and children this afternoon.

Mr. Peavy Exonerated.

The action of the Grand Jury in ignoring the charge of embezzlement against Mr. Charles W. Peavy, the well-known agent for Brunswick & Co.'s billiard tables, clears that gentleman from the cloud which has been resting upon him since the charges were somewhat publicly preferred four months ago. THE HERALD, as one of the papers which printed the accusation at that time, cheerfully gives publication to Mr. Peavy's virtual exonerated at this time.

BEHIND PRISON BARS.

Rudger Clawson's Views on his New Home.

HOW THEY LIVE IN THE PEN.

Five Murderers for Room Mates—Hop's Employment—The Ceremony of Initiation.

Mr. Rudger Clawson was encountered at the Co. rt rooms yesterday, looking a trifle dusty after his ride in from the Pen, but otherwise not altered in appearance from the day on which Judge Zane first consigned him to the prison walls. A shake of the hand and the usual greeting passed between the reporter and Mr. Clawson and the former said:

"Well it seems pleasant doesn't it to be out again even if it is only in court?"

"Well yes," responded Mr. Clawson, "this is the first time for eleven days that I have seen outside of the adobe walls, and I appreciate it."

"How do you pass your time out there?"

"Mostly by reading. I started Milton's Paradise Lost just before I went in, and I am now concluding it. The surroundings out there make it somewhat applicable, I can assure you," with a smile. "Then I have other books, and THE HERALD reaches me regularly, so that I have plenty of reading matter. For exercise, I walk about the yard."

"What are the accommodations afforded you?"

"On my first night out I was put into the west room. You must understand that the convicts—there are about 100 now confined out there—are allowed to mix together during the day, but at night they are separated and put into two large rooms, fifty in one and fifty in the other. In the west room are confined all the hard cases; in the east, I think, all those who are considerably milder. It was in the west that I was put. Here there are five murderers, Hopt, Biddlecome, Callaghan, Murphy and Fennel. The beds are arranged all around the room in regular tiers, and two men are delegated to each bed."

"Who was your bedfellow?" the reporter asked.

"The first night," replied Mr. Clawson, "it was a man from Ogden. I don't remember his name. When Jos. Evans came out I slept with him, and latterly I have been fortunate enough to have a bed to myself."

"How were you greeted by the other prisoners?"

"Well, it is part of the regular system out there that when a new man comes in they go through what they call 'initiating' him. When I got to the door that first night with the guard and they were about to turn me in with the rest, there arose one of the most appalling din that ever I heard. The whole fifty, as soon as they caught sight of me, set up a series of the most fearful yells and execrations; some cursed and swore in a manner that was almost sickening; others called out 'a rope a rope; some one bring a rope!' I knew of course that they were 'putting me through' and kept my composure, but the profanity and general depravity almost made my blood run cold for all that. The guards shut me in and locked the doors, and the whole swarm immediately surrounded me. There were several who rather took the lead among them, but the man most generally recognized seemed to be Callaghan, the madmurderer. I was asked whether I would care for them. I replied that I did not know how. Then one asked me if I would dance. I said I could not do that either. Then they said I must put on the gloves with one of them. This I commented to do, for policy's sake, but it was found luckily for me, perhaps, that the gloves had been left that night on the outside. Then another proposed that I be thrown up in a blanket. This met with some favor till one of them said they had better wait till the next night, that I would be there a long time, etc., and so the ceremony was postponed. Next night, however, I was given a berth in the east room among the milder cases, so that the west was deprived of its chance to initiate me."

"How does Hop employ himself?"

"Most of the time in playing cards. You would not know from his actions that he was any nearer his fate than any of the rest. By the way, something that struck me as being comical was this: Almost the first man I ran across was the fellow who robbed my horse some time ago, and Mr. Clawson laughed quite heartily. He makes strange bed-fellows you know, and there, too, I daily met Frank Tresler, whom you will remember as a boy. David Rich, who robbed Zion's Bank, is there too; he serves in the kitchen. They have regular turns, you know, at waiting on the table, etc."

"How do the guards treat you?"

"Very gentlemanly. They do their duty well, but they have to be strict with some of those hard cases. The punishment consists in shutting refractory prisoners up in the 'twain' cell. This is a small iron chamber with just enough room in it to allow a man to stand up and turn around. Rebellious prisoners, those who fight, etc., are shut up here sometimes as long as twenty-five or thirty days at a stretch. It is a fearful place and a fearful punishment, but, I fear, no more than some of them deserve."

"Is there no work provided for the prisoners?"

"None enforced upon them. A number work for themselves, and you have probably heard of the excellent hair brushes made by several of the Penitentiary prisoners."

"How is the table fare?"

"We only have two meals a day now. In summer, I understand, they have three. Here, broth and soup are the commonest dishes; dry bread—no butter unless you pay for it, yourself—potatoes, and the blackest of coffee, with neither sugar nor milk. One of the prisoners, a negro, who is allowed some degree of freedom, acts as cook. It is a strange sight, I can assure you, to see 100 such men as those sit down to a meal at one time, and to hear the buzz of comments that runs along the lines as the provender is placed before them."

"At this juncture Mr. Kirkpatrick began his fine argument in Mr. Clawson's behalf, and both that gentleman and the reporter were buried for the next two hours in a contemplation of the able and eloquent appeal to the Court."

MYSTERIES OF THE JURY ROOM.

Out all Night on the Lufkins Case Without Agreeing.

The jury in the case of Mr. Lufkins, who was charged with perjury, were held to their room at 10 o'clock on Thursday night, and as THE HERALD stated yesterday, had arrived at no conclusion up to the time we went to press. At 1 o'clock yesterday morning the twelve men, haggard and bear-eyed, having passed the night in a room bare of any furniture except benches, were brought into court and asked by Judge Zane if they had arrived at a verdict. The foreman replied that to agree, and the Judge thereupon discharged them.

A HERALD reporter buttonholed one of the released and asked him how the vote had gone. "Well," replied the juror, "there was not a very clear understanding of the law, and we rather expected to receive some further instructions from the judge upon it. We took a ballot occasionally, I thought the life in the matter, but the result was not changed. We stood seven for not guilty and five for guilty."

The names of the jury were as follows: For acquittal—Messrs. Forbes, Hardman, Hill, Winder, Earl, Proctor and Turpin. For conviction—Messrs. Sappington, Scribner, Richmond, Davis and Farrell.

IN THE FAR SOUTH.

Crops, Cattle, and the General Outlook About Kanab.

Mr. James L. Bunting, one of the prominent citizens of Kanab has been in the city a short time, and was yesterday met by a HERALD reporter. In answer to a number of inquiries, Mr. Bunting gave the following information of affairs in his section of country:

"We had such heavy frosts last year," said he, "that a number of our farmers got discouraged and moved away; there were a very few of us who put in any crops this year; but those who did were in every way satisfied; I was one of them, and the field of wheat was excellent; our country is too far south, you will understand, to have any return in grain, but the stock industry is on the increase, and those of us who had grain did well by feeding it. Good flour is $3.50 down there, and we need no market for our products, and we more than consume what we grow; water is plentiful this year, and we are not, I am thankful to say, likely to know any scarcity in that regard."

The Hammond Hall Lecture.

Quite a number of people attended the lecture delivered by Prof. Allen, last evening, at Hammond Hall, and all listened to the gentleman's discourse with marked attention and satisfaction. The subject, "Young Men in Politics," was handled in an able, masterly manner, and afforded those who heard it treated by the lecturer ample food for reflection. The lecture was replete with good, sound sense to the young men of Utah to engage in the study of the political questions and issues which are agitating the country and which their venerable sires are preparing to relinquish. The field of politics is vast and the rising generation will find a wide range for prosecuting their study of it. As the inauguration of a series to be delivered hereafter, Professor Allen's lecture was a success.

Old News—The Pension Commissioner.

WASHINGTON, November 14.—Secretary McCulloch has prepared a circular in relation to the importation of old rugs from infected ports, which modifies the existing orders on that subject so as to continue the embargo until further notice, and to declare that French and Mediterranean ports to be infected and to keep the digestive organs in good order. Ask for the genuine article, manufactured only by Dr. J. G. B. Seibert & Sons, and beware of imitations.

From God in.
