

THE DAILY HERALD Salt Lake City, - - Utah.

SATURDAY - - MAY 23, 1885.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

WHAT has become of the proposed fair?

NOT a solitary case in the police court yesterday.

SEE SPECIAL notice of a brown plush article lost.

JUDGE POWERS' court in Ogden, yesterday, was visited by Commissioners Carlton, Pettigrew and Godfrey.

THE SIXTEENTH Ward will parade this evening in the interests of their excursion to Provo on Decoration Day.

WILLIAM FOTHERINGHAM, of Beaver, will arrive from the south, in charge of Deputy Marshal Greenman, this evening.

THE TEACHERS' Association of Salt Lake County will meet in the Fourteenth Ward Assembly Rooms this morning at 11 o'clock.

M. S. PENDERGAST, yesterday, filed with Secretary Thomas, his certificate as agent of the Aladdin Gold and Silver Mining Company.

LAST night the Firemen's Band held their regular practice at the hall, and as usual the leader, Mr. Mike Harris, held the boys down to work.

T. K. UNELL, a bishop of the Mormon church and superintendent of the Mormon co-operative store at St. Johns, is in the city purchasing goods.—Albuquerque Journal.

IN THE window of the U. P. Coal Office are a number of favorable-looking mineral specimens from the head of Red Butte Canyon, nine miles from the city.

THOSE DESIRING to obtain daily supplies of fish, both fresh and salt water, should consult the advertisement of John H. Freeman in our Special Notice column.

MICHAEL MURPHY, twice tried for the murder of Patrick Egan, and so lately freed from custody, died at the Sisters' Hospital on Thursday from blood poisoning, the result of an operation of the leg.

ISAAC GIDDY was notified yesterday that he had been indicted for unlawful cohabitation by the grand jury, and going before Commissioner McKay he had his bonds renewed, the same sureties being accepted.

BISHOP H. B. CLAWSON was indicted by the grand jury for unlawful cohabitation and arrested Thursday. He merely renewed his bonds before the Commissioner and will now await arraignment and trial.

HENRY NAKENITT, a well-known and capable salesman, after ten years' connection with the firm of William Jennings & Sons, severed his association with that house yesterday.

A HACK driver named George Moore complained at the City Hall, yesterday morning, that Hat Shirliff had used the complainant's hack for ten hours and refused to pay for it.

AN EXCURSION party of forty Portland people came down over the Central last night and will remain to-day in town; they are in charge of F. I. Smith, formerly of the U. P. force in this city.

A REATIFUL silver B flat tenor trombone was received by the Firemen's Band, through Calder's music store, yesterday. It is one of the many forthcoming additions to the band and shows good taste in the selector, Mr. Dave Calder.

IT WAS announced, several days ago, that the Rev. Mr. Wickstead, a distinguished Lutheran divine from Illinois, would preach upon Swedish Lutheran principles in St. Mark's Cathedral. The gentleman will occupy the pulpit of St. Mark's chapel to-morrow instead.

IN CONSEQUENCE of the resignation of deputy registrars recently appointed, the following have been selected to fill their places: Daniel Simonson, Ben-haut precinct; Millard County; D. J. Truman, Lehi precinct; Utah County; George Judd, Meadowville precinct; Rich County.

A GENTLEMAN who has just returned to the city from an extended trip through northern Utah and southern Idaho gives the deputy marshals of our northern neighbor characters which could not very well be worse. He says they—or the majority of them—are the meanest, most reckless and hardened set of men he ever knew anything about.

THE FOLLOWING is a list of the Utah delegates to the A. O. U. W. Convention now in session at Butte: Thomas Cupit, J. M. Edwards, John Strickley, A. C. Wilson, Robert C. Land, E. C. Matthews, Benjamin Bachman, J. M. Whytock, N. W. King, J. D. Camachan, J. E. Beveridge, J. E. Berkeley, Julius Jordan, George L. Harding, John Bar-scolough, A. G. Sutherland, S. J. Jonsson, S. H. Cave.

WE ARE pleased to record another successful flowing well of excellent water in the Nineteenth Ward. This one is at the residence of Henry Grow, the work having been done by his son, Joseph S. Grow, and two younger brothers. The one-and-a-quarter-inch iron pipe, after being driven a depth of seventy-four and a half feet, now discharges a steady stream, measuring twenty-six gallons per minute, to a height of fifteen inches above the ground. At this rate the flow equals 37,000 gallons per twenty-four hours, with every prospect of its increasing as the pipe clears itself.

PLEURO-PNEUMONIA.

General Brisbin Interviewed on Stock Matters.

A SENSELESS CHEYENNE SCARE

The Shipment of Fine Blooded Cattle to Idaho and Utah.

General J. S. Brisbin, who is First Vice-President of the National Cattle Association and Chairman of the Executive Committee, has been in the city for the past two days. Knowing the wide and growing interest felt in cattle matters, and the particular interest in pleuro-pneumonia at this time a HERALD representative called on General Brisbin at the Walker House yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of learning some of his views on the stock question. The newspaper man plunged at once into his topic by asking:

"How do you stand in the pleuro-pneumonia business?"

"I think it is a scare. I do not believe there is enough in it to warrant governors of States and Territories in stopping cattle in transit."

"From your information do you think it exists east to the extent reported?"

"No, I do not. It is possible there may have been some cases in one county in Missouri, in Galway; but even that is disputed."

"What is meant by pleuro-pneumonia?"

"It is cattle consumption. Every human being, and every beast, has tubercles, and they often progress into consumption. In human beings consumption is often hereditary, but different; it is never hereditary, but very contagious."

"How long has it existed in the United States, and where mostly?" the reporter inquired.

"I do not know exactly, but the first I remember hearing of was in Massachusetts, many years ago; about 1850, I think, when it broke out, and it cost the State $77,000 to stamp it out. More recently it has appeared in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and Virginia."

"Does it still exist there?"

"Yes; and it is most difficult to eradicate it from a section of country when it once gets thoroughly located."

"Is there any cure for it?"

"No, none, except to stamp it out by killing all the animals affected with it. It is indeed a most terrible disease."

"But you do not think it is in the west, yet?" said the reporter.

"No, I do not; and there is little danger from it, unless it is brought from the States in the far east, or brought here by cattle imported from foreign countries."

"What effect will the present scare about pleuro-pneumonia have on the stock business of the west?"

"It is very disastrous. Men who want to improve their breeds of cattle cannot do so, because they cannot ship in bulls from the east and all kinds of fine stock are tied up on a mere suspicion of the danger from pleuro-pneumonia."

"Do you believe that if the cattle in transit really had pleuro-pneumonia, the authorities at Cheyenne and other places would stop them?"

"It would certainly be a bad policy to do so. If I found another man scolding on my ranch had a contagious disease I would not be likely to keep them there to give the disease to my cattle; but would hurry them off and as far away as possible."

"What are the stockmen of Idaho doing about this matter?"

"They are not shipping many fine cattle at present, but are waiting for the scare to blow over, as they know it soon will. Some parties are making arrangements to ship out by way of the Denver & Rio Grande railway, so as to avoid the blockade at Cheyenne. My folks, Joel B. Gentry & Co., at Hughesville, near Sedalia, Missouri, will probably ship some cars here by the D. & R. G. this week."

"But how are you going to get them on from here?" queried the reporter.

"Well, that is a question. The Union Pacific folks, of course, will kick, but if there is no other way, I think we can take them to Ogden by the Denver & Rio Grande, and thence to Kelton on the Central Pacific railroad, from which place we can drive them to Boise and other points in Idaho."

FORT DOUGLAS SCOOPED.

A Notable and Exciting Game—Nine to Two.

The second notable game of the season, but one which, as far as spectators and enthusiasm are concerned, might be termed the first—occurred on Washington Square, yesterday, between the champions of this city—the Reds, and the McCooks of Fort Douglas. There were five or six hundred people on the grounds, and double that number on the fence and in the trees outside.

The McCooks are the strongest team the Fort has ever yet turned out, and the only one which it has ever been worth the while of the city boys to waste an effort upon. Ruane, their catcher, Murphy, their captain and first base, and Atkin, their short stop, are players whose equals are not often found outside professional teams. Had it not been for the rock upon which Bonittful split—West's puzzling delivery—we are inclined to think that Fort Douglas would have gone home triumphant instead of crestfallen last evening. The game was in all respects a speedy and skillful one; some of the plays on both sides elicited the wildest enthusiasm. Ridges particularly manifesting traits of combination which "brought" down the shed; West who played second base for the Fort boys, and from whom great deeds were expected, was under a terrible cloud and played almost helplessly. It will be seen from the score that the game promised at one time to be a phenomenal one, a 2 to 0 result; even as it is the record of eastern players does not frequently excel it:

Table with columns: SCORE BY INNINGS. Rows include Reds, McCook, Passed balls—Ridges 2, Ruane 3, Times of game, 1 hr 50 minutes.

Golding umpired for several innings and was then changed on the demand of Murphy for Hely, a fort man, who proved a very fair umpire. Even at him, however, the McCooks manifested a degree of "kieling," which did not reflect greatly to their credit.

One thing should be avoided in the future, that is the announcement that the game is, for some fabulous amount, yesterday's stakes were advertised to be "$250 aside." This is all bosh and everyone knows it. Had the McCooks won yesterday they were to have one-half of the gate receipts and $50—nothing more. By losing they simply left their $50 forfeit money in the hands of the victors.

The Association of the players ought to build big entrance gates to the grounds, the game is, for some fabulous amount, yesterday's stakes were advertised to be "$250 aside." This is all bosh and everyone knows it. Had the McCooks won yesterday they were to have one-half of the gate receipts and $50—nothing more. By losing they simply left their $50 forfeit money in the hands of the victors.

A strong game would be a contest between the Bonittfuls and the McCooks. Two more evenly matched teams it would be hard to run into the field. Neither one having a West to dread, both would play a lively and an interesting game.

THE JURY FARCE.

One Man Defeats the Will of Eleven.

THE CASE TO BE REHEARD.

A Mammoth Stockholder Among the Jurors—The Whole Matter Unsettled as Ever.

The jury in the case of Elias Morris vs. the Mammoth Company were out all night Thursday and all of yesterday morning. At 1 o'clock, twenty hours after they had been given the case, they came into court and signified that they were unable to agree. The Judge thereupon discharged them, and the twelve men came down from the box with every sign of relief evident in their countenances.

It was hinted to Mr. Brown by one of the jurors that Mr. Phil Klipple, who had served on the body, was a stockholder in the Mammoth Company. The matter was brought before Judge Zane, who ordered that the juror be brought before him. Upon Mr. Klipple's appearance, the following colloquy ensued:

THE COURT—Mr. Klipple, are you a stockholder in the Mammoth Company?

MR. KLIPPLE—I do own a few shares. THE COURT—Why didn't you make the fact known?

MR. KLIPPLE—Because Mr. Brown did not ask me the question as he did the other jurors.

THE COURT—What amount of stock do you own?

MR. KLIPPLE—I own twenty-four shares. I wondered at not being asked about the matter, and at one time I partly made up my mind to speak of it, but being sworn in before I had time, and not thinking it of any importance in my rendering an impartial verdict, I let it go.

MR. BROWN—What was the consideration paid for it?

MR. KLIPPLE—The company ordered some tracks from me, and before shipping them I inquired into the responsibility of J. Butler-Johnstone from Mr. J. J. Halpin. Mr. Halpin went security and afterwards failed. Mr. Thomas Williams became assignee for his effects, and he offered to settle my account if I would take the few shares of stock which I hold.

JUDGE ZANE paused a moment and then said it was proper that all such matters as this should be investigated, in order that the Court should be protected and kept above suspicion. The juror should have made all the facts known, even though he had not been questioned.

Mr. Klipple was, however, discharged. The jury in this somewhat celebrated case stood 11 to 1 in favor of Mr. Morris. Being curious to learn who this "one" might be, a HERALD reporter interviewed several of the jurors, and was not long in discovering that the individual causing the "hang" was Mr. Phil Klipple, the gentleman referred to above. On the first ballot Mr. Klipple and Mr. Clays voted for the defendant; Mr. Clays went over to the majority, but Mr. Klipple hung out like grim death—to use one of the juror's expressions—till the close. When it became evident that there could be no agreement, a compromise was suggested, the eleven men being willing to throw off the $5,000 note (borrowed money) and render a verdict for the $7,900—the boarding house claim, with the interest added, which would raise the amount to something like $9,500—but this Mr. Klipple would not agree to; he was willing to render a verdict for the boarding house claim without interest, but the others considering this too a great sacrifice, stood out for the disagreement was the result.

When the new trial will come on is as yet uncertain. It was rumored last night that the "close call" the defendants had received would induce them to make an effort towards a compromise, but this is unauthenticated.

Not the Man.

To the Editor of THE HERALD: As I am the only neighbor of Mr. A. Miner, who was shooting worms last evening, I infer that he has reference to me, as the man who "gave him away." I wish to state that I am Mr. Miner at the back of his residence last evening, soon after I went to attend a meeting of T. of H. lodge. I did not drop my gun and rush down town. Neither did I give him away. W. L. HARLOW.

POOLED-ABERDEEN-ANGUS.

Some of the Good Points About That Breed of Cattle.

GLENDALE, May 11.—Geo. A. Cartier, of the Butte Polled-Angus Stock ranch on Divide Creek, Silver Bow County, (owned by Cartier & Son) has lately purchased a pure bred Polled-Aberdeen-Angus bull, two years old, imported from Scotland, for their ranch. The bull was imported by Geary Bros., of London, Canada, the leading Polled-Angus men of America. Mr. Cartier thinks that the Polled-Aberdeen-Angus cattle are the finest and the best in the world, principally for this Western country.

As dairy cattle they are very fair milkers; but for beef they are the kings of all the beef breeds.

1st—Their beef is and has been for ages, known to be of the very best quality, and in London markets sells for more money than any beef that goes there.

2d—The fine bone and neat finish of the Polled-Angus, with less "waste" or "offal" than any of the beef breeds, makes it an economic animal for the feeder, the butcher, and consumer.

3d—The early maturity of the Polled-Angus makes it an economic animal to handle, as it matures as early and on less feed than any of the beef breeds.

4th—Easy keeping and quick feeding qualities are among the crowning glories of the Polled-Angus cattle. There is no doubt but they are the easiest to keep, and feed the quickest of any known race of cattle. One hundred bushels of grain or a stated amount of hay fed to Polled-Angus cattle, will make more beef, and in a shorter time, because the Polled-Angus lays on flesh instead of patchy fat.

5th—Last, but not least, is the rustling quality, or (in other words) ability to hunt their living, and connected with it, the quality of hardihood. I pretend to say, without fear of successful contradiction, that the Polled-Angus cattle are hardier and more able to rustle than any of the bovine roll; and they should be bred for the following reasons: They are bred north of and on the Gramplan hills (farther north than any other blooded cattle); they are the best and the largest around the heart of any cattle within my knowledge; they have a heavy silken coat of hair as impervious to water as a duck's back; and the benefit of hornless cattle in handling and shipping is so obvious that nothing need be said on that subject. The Polled-Angus cattle are all black and muley, or hornless.—Cor. Butte Intelligencer.

Westward, Ho!

The Denver, Marshall and Boulder Railway company, yesterday, filed articles of incorporation with County Clerk Montgomery. The company is to be the successor of the Denver, Western and Pacific Railroad company, which was recently sold by the master in chancery of the Circuit Court of the United States of Colorado, and which has a road completed almost to Boulder from Denver. The new company proposes, at least it is so stated in the articles of incorporation, to operate in this county by a line of road beginning at a point on a line from Longmont to Greeley, and running along the valley of the Cache la Poudre river or other most direct route through and over the Rocky Mountains to the western boundary of the State of Colorado, which is very definite and doubtless means what it says.—(Denver News, 19th.)

IN COURT.

Judge Zane has a Busy Day in His Department.

The Morris case being disposed of, the business of the court was disposed of with considerable rapidity yesterday. Benjamin P. Howells, a native of England, was admitted to citizenship.

In the case of John W. Soell vs. W. A. Pierce, et al., J. D. Lomax appeared for the defense. The trial by jury was waived, and the case was tried before the Court by agreement. After argument by counsel it was submitted, and the Court gave judgment for the defendant. This was a case in which suit was brought on a note. F. D. Cliff was one of the winning parties.

In the case of Elias Morris vs. the Mammoth Mining Company, the jury disagreed and were discharged.

The case of the London Bank of Utah vs. the Flagstaff Mining Company, case up and was passed until after July 1st to appear on the law and motion calendar. Dickson & Varian being associated with the defense.

M. S. Ascheim vs. Frank Gustafson, motion to elect on which case of action plaintiff will rely on the trial; argued by S. H. Lewis for defendant and Arthur Brown for plaintiff, and submitted.

C. B. Dixon vs. George A. Lowe, dismissed for want of prosecution.

R. L. Brown vs. H. S. Campbell, H. C. Shurtliff and W. H. Pickett, a jury was obtained, and the trial is in progress. Arthur Brown represents the plaintiff and Woods & Hoffman the defendants; the amount involved is about $700.

DIVORCONS.

Aimee's Farewell to a Salt Lake Audience.

Aimee concluded her Salt Lake engagement last evening to a fair and attentive audience, one, however, considerably smaller than that to which she opened. Divorcons is a rattling, sensation French comedy, with all the usual French naughtiness running through it. It differs from Lingard's version merely in the excess of this naughtiness. Aimee, while she played in a usual sprightly style, was hardly as agreeable as in "Manzelle," mainly because in that part she portrays a woman who speaks broken English and her accent there is just as it should be. In last night's comedy the effect of the pronunciation interfered with the glib volubility of the character to some degree. The honors of the evening belonged to Barrows, who played a part as different to his Tarleton Tupper as the antipodes, in a style fully as artistic and catching; he was several times very warmly applauded, and called in the middle of an act; Chiswick secured several laughs for his interpretation of the head waiter, but did not bring out all the capabilities of the part, if we may believe the stories of Mr. Freeman's success in the same character.

The Aimee company leave for Los Angeles to-day, and open in San Francisco Monday night at the Bush Street Theatre; they are engineered by Mr. Strakosch, a nephew of the once eminent impresario.

"Jack" Gilmer Prostrated. Mr. Gilmer, familiarly known, from his long residence in this community as "Jack," is lying seriously ill, at his residence at the old Wagstaff property in the eastern part of the city. His physician said yesterday that Mr. Gilmer was afflicted with cerebral palsy, but that he would recover. The ailment was supposed to have been brought on by a cold caught when accidentally plunged into a river up north. His many friends will hope for his recovery.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

One Man Killed and Another Seriously Injured. On the Utah & Northern train, which arrived in this city last evening, was a gentleman named John Layton, who had come from the north in charge of William Moring, who was seriously injured at Grayling, Montana, a day or two ago, and who was brought to the U. P. hospital in this city for treatment.

It appears that the men were employed on the road and were traveling on a handcar when one of them, Richard Miller by name, fell off the car and was run over. The car was thereby thrown off the track and falling his companion was injured about the chest. Miller died a few hours after the accident, and the injured man was brought to this city before stated.—Ogden Herald, 22.
