MR. CAINE'S VIEWS.

The Delegate Points Out Some of the Infamies

OF THE PROPOSED MEASURE.

It Will Be Resisted, But Not By Force

The following interview with Hon. John T. Caine is found in the Chicago Daily News, having been wired it by its Washington correspondent, Mr. William E. Curtis:

I asked Mr. Caine, the Utah delegate, to-day what the Mormons delegate, when the Edmunds bill became law, as it certainly will in a few days. He said they would resist its enforcement, of course. "By violence?" I asked. "Never," he replied. "The Mormon people will not violate the law; they can't be accused of violence. They will dispute the constitutionality and resist in the courts the enforcement of a measure which so plainly and completely deprives a community of citizens of rights which are guaranteed to all by the Constitution. This bill is entitled 'An act to suppress polygamy,' and is an act for the suppression of Mormonism, an act to crush out a religion in a country which makes its proudest boast that it is the first of all nations to establish and guarantee religious liberty. Read the test- oath section of the bill, which denies the right of suffrage to all who aid or abet or encourage the practice of polygamy. Now, I am not a polygamist. I go to the polls on election day under this section; I am asked whether I have aided or abetted or encouraged polygamy. I say 'No,' for example. Then I am asked: 'Have you contributed anything to the support of the Mormon Church during the year?' 'Yes,' I reply, 'I have given $100.' Then I will be refused like that of every man in Utah, who has the courage to confess his convictions.

A WAIL IN THE FUTURE.

How the Chinaman is to be Accorded His Rights.

There will be weeping and wailing among the dusky denizens of the wash-houses on Commercial Street and other avenues contiguous thereto. If there is one thing that the average heathen prides himself on to a great extent it is the fact that he has escaped the poll-tax man, and this he usually manages to do by assuming for a time—only for a time—the brazen effrontery of a certain alleged society reporter, and assuring the collector that he has paid it. If the collector is dubious, he is soon reassured by the heathen, who tells him that it is his brother who has not paid the tax and that they are so much alike as to be often confounded. As it would require a greater penetration than the average poll-tax man is supposed to possess, the ruse—except in cases where the heathen is very well known—generally succeeds, and as a consequence the work of the collector is neither pleasant to him nor profitable to the city. It is now said however, that a determined effort will be made to corral all the Chinamen and collect the tax in the manner provided by law. To this end half a dozen suits have already been commenced in the Justice's Court against the copper-colored people who have refused or failed to comply with their notice and others will be instituted shortly.

THE FATAL AVALANCHE.

Five Men Buried—The Inhuman Actions of Some Miners.

Snowslides have been the order of the day since last Wednesday. The most serious one occurred at the Star mine, Wednesday morning about 8 o'clock. Some of the miners were going down to shovel a trail for the foreman, when a slide buried them all—five in number. Their names are Dave Jones, Dan Jones, Henry Wagener, Ed. James and a carpenter called "Happy Jack." Dave Jones came out unharmed, and commenced digging out the others, but the most astonishing fact, to say the least, is that after Dave Jones, Dan Jones, Henry Wagener and Ed. James had been rescued, they went to the boarding house and never gave the alarm to the other miners, and not a step was taken to rescue the poor unfortunate "Happy Jack" until the afternoon, when one of the miners came to the camp asking for volunteers to help dig the poor carpenter out. This was at 3 o'clock, seven hours after the slide. Seven men from the camp volunteered at once to help find the body, and were assisted by six of the employees of the North Star mine. It is well for the public to know that there are about twenty men employed at the Star mine. When the body was discovered life was extinct, but indications showed that the poor fellow must have lived for hours, as the heat from his breathing had melted the snow within eighteen inches of the surface. To whom the blame must be attached—the foreman or employees of the mine—is for the public to judge. But, nevertheless, there is a man now dead whose life could have been saved by very little exertion and without any danger to those attempting to rescue him.—Inter-Idaho.

IT IS NOT POLYGAMY.

But the Mormon Church that the Bill Aims At.

The Mormon lobby at Washington was unable to prevent the passage by the House, after only four hours' debate and without a division, of the Tucker substitute for the Edmunds bill. It has gone to the Senate for action, and, no doubt, will be passed before adjournment in some shape that will preserve its salient features. It is a sweeping measure. It practically seizes the Mormon hierarchy and puts the government of Utah, save the Lower House of the Legislature, in the hands of the Federal government. A Washington correspondent states that the supporters of the bill look to the question of polygamy as merely an incident in the question. Their principal aim was "to destroy the Mormon hierarchy, which had established itself in defiance of the laws of the United States, and which demanded an allegiance on the part of its followers equivalent to treason. The purpose of the bill is to Americanize the Territory of Utah and to tear down a hierarchy which is at war with every republican principle."

A TRIBUTE TO A UTAH BOY.

Harry Brown's Former Teacher Writes of His Worth.

Mrs. J. H. Brown, of Logan, mother of Harry Brown, the sculptor, lately deceased, has received a letter of condolence from T. H. Barlett, Esq., Superintendent of the Boston School of Sculpture, the institution where her son studied for some time:

Dear Madam: I have read your kind letter, in which you tell me of Harry's death, with great pain. It was unexpected and sad, for I thought he had a long and prosperous life before him. I am deeply sorry for you and for his wife and children, and I send you my warmest and deepest sympathy. It gives me great pleasure to tell you that I had the highest esteem for Harry, both as a man and a sculptor. All his conduct while in my school attested itself to my warm admiration. He was exceptional in his loyal courage for his art. No human being could have shown more. I have always regretted that he could not have stayed longer on his first visit, or have returned to continue his studies. He spent me from time to time of his good fortune in his work, and his letters always gave me pleasure. Dear boy, to think that he has gone out of the world so soon, and leaving a sorrowing wife and children to forever mourn for him. But, my dear madam, he leaves you all a lovely memory inspiring for every one who knew him.

Will you please express to his sorrowing widow the sincere condolence of one of her husband's friends, and believe me with much respect,

Very truly yours, T. H. BARLETT.

A TRIP TO SCOTLAND.

The C. M. & St. Paul Man Meets a Familiar Sign in Liverpool.

Aleck Mitchell, the generally well-known and ever-beaming representative of the great Scottish Milwaukee Route in this section, has returned from a run which is more extensive than even his nomadic habits are accustomed to. He left here on the 5th of November, and sailed from New York a short time afterwards, bound for Aberdeen, Scotland, the home of his ancestors, and where his father still resides. Mr. Mitchell remained some time in Scotland, where he says he saw nothing, but rain from the day he arrived until the day he departed. He then took in the Christian associations and Sabbath schools of London, and afterwards ran over to compare those institutions with similar ones in Paris. He made the trip across the water in nine days, and on the thirteenth returning. He says one of the first things that struck his gaze on walking down the streets of Liverpool was the sign at 42 Islington, "Emigration Agency of the Latter-day Saints," or something of that sort, and impelled by a sort of kinship feeling, he went in, laid his card down and inquired for the "boss." He was introduced to President D. H. Wells, who asked him his business, and who, on being told that he had none other than that he was just come from Salt Lake himself, and wanted to see some one else from the mountains and vales of Deseret—received him with the utmost pleasantness, conversed with him awhile and invited him to call again. Mr. Mitchell is to be found at his old stand-in front of the U. P. office when there is a pretty female passing at the desk in the rear when there is business to be done.

A WATER DISPUTE.

The Suit of the Southern Pacific Against Player.

The only thing stirring in Federal Court quarters yesterday, was a case heard in chambers by Judge Henderson, and belonging to the First District. The title of the suit was the Southern Pacific Railroad Company vs. A. A. Player, of Terrace, Marshall & Royle representing the plaintiffs, and James N. Kimball the defendant. According to the papers in the case, Player had contracted to furnish water from a warm spring for the use of the Central Pacific engines during the winter months, the regular supply freezing up in cold weather. He was to receive a consideration of $200 for the winter months during which the water was used, and the contract states that the money was to be paid $50 at a time, at the railroad's office in Kelson. The first several payments were made in this manner, and then the company took to sending Player a check by mail. He objected to this, stating that he had some difficulty in getting the checks cashed. It is alleged that in November last the company mailed him a check as usual, but that he, on taking the envelope from his box in the postoffice, and knowing what it contained, replaced it, and after laying there ten days it was sent back to the company in San Francisco. Player, however, denies this, stating that he was not in Terrace at the date when the postmaster of that place says he placed the letter in the box. In the meantime he made a demand for his money at the depot and failing to receive it, considered himself justified in refusing to longer furnish his water contracted for. The railroad people telegraphed their agent at Kelson to pay Player the money as soon as they learned how matters stood, but though the agent, Mr. Kelly, tendered the sum no later than December 11th, Player refused to receive it. The railroad obtained a temporary restraining order preventing Player from turning off the water pending the hearing. The matter is still in progress and will be concluded to-day.

The City and County Jail.

The rock is being hauled for the city and county jail, and preparations are being made for the completion of the building in the near future. It will be thirty-four feet square and twenty feet high. In the lower story there will be a kitchen, dining-room, bedroom, dark cell and iron cell, arranged on a modern plan and for the most convenience and safety. The iron cell especially will be constructed on a plan of safety. The jailer will be enabled to take care of desperate characters in an easy and safe manner. The door to the iron cell will be fastened by a combination lock, which can only be opened by the understanding the combination. Conveniences for cleanliness and for waiting on prisoners will be the best. In the upper story on the north there will be three rooms for women and on the south of the aisle four rooms for men who may have to stay in the jail for ordinary offenses. The building is to be constructed of rock, with iron doors and suitable shutters for the windows and an iron roof. It is estimated that the building, when completed, will cost nearly $5,000.—Logan Journal.

Dissolution of Partnership.

To all whom it may concern, notice is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing under the name and style of Bennett, Holbrook & Co., of Frisco, Beaver County, Utah, has been this day dissolved by mutual consent. FRISCO, BEAVER CO., Jan. 21, 1887. BENNETT, HOLBROOK & CO.

The business will be conducted hereafter by L. H. Holbrook, the sole purchaser and proprietor, who will collect all accounts due the company and assume its liabilities.

The partnership between Drs. Richards and Bower is dissolved. Dr. Richards' office is removed to the rooms recently occupied by the Territorial Auditor, in the Hooper & Eldredge Block.

BOX ELDER BREVITIES.

The Recent Raids—Theatricals and Other Notes.

To the Editor of THE HERALD. Yesterday, a party of gentlemen, to the number of only ten, arrived here quite early in the morning. They proved to be of the Deputy Marshal fraternity, and as we were not prepared to entertain them on such short notice, they distributed themselves throughout the city in quest of certain individuals for whom they had warrants of arrest. Most of the gentlemen are known as adepts in their profession, and, of course, naturally enough expected that they would be rewarded for their toilsome journey hither by making a satisfactory haul. However, the fates seemed to be against them, as after they had spent most of the day in diligent search and questioning, their efforts were not rewarded by making any arrest, and the little army of deputies returned southwards in despair and somewhat disappointed, as those for whom they sought were not to be found this trip. On arriving at Willard, however, they arrested one Hans Peter Madson on the going charge, and took the gentleman to Ogden, where he had an examination and was bound over in the sum of $1,500, J. N. Barker and Peter Nebeker joining his sureties. His wife Anna Erickson was also bound over in the sum of $200 to appear as a witness in the case. The Willard Dramatic Troupe performed here on Saturday evening last to a fair sized house. The piece presented was The Female Detective. Most of the performers did fairly well considering the amount of training and practice they have had. The farce entitled The Crowded Hotel closed the entertainment, and was performed in a mirth-provoking manner. On Saturday evening next, our Home Dramatic Club will present the fine play entitled, The Life of an Actress. Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Pierce will perform the leading parts, and we shall no doubt witness another crowded house. I have just received the following note from a gentleman in Ogden, who is evidently setting up claims to being a prophet, according to the latter part of the note:

OGDEN, Utah, January 26, 1887. J. B. Brigham City:

Dear Sir—The Second Ward Dramatic Association (of Ogden), have engaged your hall (at Brigham), for the 22d of February, Washington's birthday. Would like you to make mention of it in your correspondence. Our play will be "Columbian to Light," the farce, "My Town Next."

He must think we have some blighting dramatic critics in Brigham from the last part of his note. Weather here is lovely; cold frosty nights and sunny days. J. B. BRIGHAM CITY, January 24th, 1887.

A BOLD BURGLAR

Encounters a Warm Reception at the Store of H. E. Phelps.

Phelps' store, immediately north of THE HERALD Block, has always been a particular source of attraction to members of the light-fingered fraternity. Several articles have been stolen from there of late, but most of them have disappeared in the day time. At about 1:30 this morning, H. E. Phelps, Jr., who sleeps in the rear of the store, was awakened by the crashing of glass in the front. He arose and was just in time to see a man's hand reach through the broken window and grasp a pair of shoes. Phelps raised his revolver and fired twice, but it is not thought that either of the bullets took effect, as the burglar was successful in making off with the booty, going north. Not being dressed, Mr. Phelps could not follow the fellow, but it is fair to presume that he got such a scare as will deter him from making any more such visits in the future. Police went in search of the thief, but up to this writing no trace of him has been obtained. LATER—An examination of the window reveals the mark of one of the bullet-holes, which would range about as high as a man's breast. It is now thought that at least one of the bullets took effect, as people in the neighborhood say they heard a cry immediately after the first shot had been fired.

Manti Matters.

A number of sheep in Castle Valley are dying of starvation, being compelled to stay on poor pasturage on account of the lack of snow at their old winter ranges. They are now being removed from there. The city fathers of Manti have notified the people of Ferron that no citizen of Ferron would be permitted to come to Manti unless he has a pass; also that there has been considerable sickness of late among the children of Manti, but nothing of a serious nature, however, and all are doing well and getting along nicely at present.—Sentinel.

Before Judge Smith.

In the Probate Court, Martha Burrow has filed her bond ($2,000) as administratrix in the estate of Catherine Dykes, deceased. P. W. Madson and Lewis P. Kelsey being the sureties. In the matter of the estate of John Hayhoe, deceased, Maria L. Hayhoe, contentant and plaintiff, has filed a bond on appeal to the Third District Court.

In the matter of the estate of John A. Jenkins, deceased, an order has been made fixing day of hearing return of sale of real estate, John S. Barnes is the administrator.

SOME SOCIAL EVENTS.

The Olden Time Party—A Surprise—Other Notes.

OLDEN TIME BALL. One of the most interesting as well as one of the pleasantest hops yet given in the Seventeenth Ward Hall this season, was that, under the above title, of last evening. About ninety couples were present, most of whom were contained in the path of the days of Lang Syne, some of these being very elegant. There was the usual number of dances, good music, pretty girls and gallant beaux, and all went merrily as a marriage bell. The boys are to be congratulated on the success of the entertainment. Among the costumes most prominent and appropriate were noticed, Washington (George was not present, and the supposition is that he was off at his club), Benjamin and Lady Franklin, Quakers and Quakeresses, Fine Irish Gentlemen, Grandmothers, Aunties, Yankee Girls, and the ever-present Mephistopheles.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE.

A most enjoyable and pleasant surprise party was given Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Mabel R. Young at her residence in the Twenty first Ward, in which the members of Held's Silver Band took a prominent part. The time was occupied until the "wee small hours," with songs, recitations, games, interspersed also with selections from Held's band. One of the most notable features of the evening was a coronation given by Messrs. Held and Gill, which was highly appreciated, the good things of this world were not forgotten as refreshments and confectionery were freely partaken. There were from thirty to forty guests present.

A PLEASANT TIME IN THE FOURTH WARD.

One of the most pleasant dances that have been held in the Fourth Ward meeting-house this season was given last evening under the auspices of the Y. L. M. I. A. There were about 40 couples present, including a number from other wards of the city. Dancing was indulged in till 12 o'clock, to the delightful strains of the Metropolitan Quadrille band, when every one left feeling delighted with their evening's entertainment and wishing the young ladies of the Fourth Ward all the happiness and success which their pluck and enterprise justly merits. The committee were as follows: Amelia Weiler, Eliza Worthen, Annie Erickson and Eliza Haigh.

SECTION ELEVEN.

Polygamy and Unlawful Cohabitation Ranked as Equal Offenses.

So much has been said upon the clauses of the Edmunds-Tucker bill disfranchising the Mormon people and filing the offices with their enemies, that the other portions of the bill has received less particular notice. They are beginning to be more closely studied of late, and considerable is being said of the provisions of section 11, which makes unlawful cohabitation as grave an offense as polygamy. "It is no longer the marriage act which constitutes polygamy," said one gentleman yesterday, "but the marriage relation. I believe that under that section a man may have one wife here and another in Kamschatka, and they would consider it that he was guilty of polygamy. I believe a man cannot purge himself of that offense except by coming into court and making a public declaration that he has abandoned all his wives but one, and I believe that is what will be required of him." The section in question reads as follows: "That the marriage relation between one person of either sex, and more than one person of the other sex shall be deemed polygamy. Polygamy, or any polygamous association or cohabitation between the sexes is hereby declared to be a felony, and shall be punished by confinement in the Penitentiary for a term not less than one year nor more than five years; and the continuance of the polygamy or polygamous association or cohabitation between the sexes, after any indictment or other legal proceeding is commenced against any person, shall be deemed a new offense, punishable as aforesaid."

THE NEW RESORT.

Chas. Francis Adams Sends Out a Landscape Gardener.

That the U. P. people are thoroughly in earnest regarding the extensive improvements designed for Garfield was further evidenced on Wednesday by the arrival in this city of the well known designer and landscape gardener, Mr. Frederick Law Olmstead, who took Mr. Ritter by surprise by walking into his office and presenting credentials and letters from President Charles Francis Adams. Mr. Ritter had been apprized that the Mr. Olmstead would be sent out soon, but he had not been expected for some time yet. A special train was at once put on, however, and a run was made out to Garfield where Mr. Olmstead spent the afternoon in notes drawing and taking general notes with a view to making his most feasible plan for constructing the park and the grounds. He visited a number of other landscape gardeners here to enquire about the kind of shrubbery that best stood the climate, and to gain such other general information as was obtainable. Mr. Olmstead returns east this morning. He is one of the best known men of his line, having had considerable to do with the improvements in Central Park, New York, and the Capital Grounds at Washington being under his supervision.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. A. B. RICHARDSON is down from the rack. GEORGE BONNER was in from Midway yesterday. JOHN ADAMS, of Centerville was in the city on Thursday. FERRIS McBRIDE was in town from Tooele yesterday.
