A TERRIBLE REVENGE.

A Dispute About Lands in the Fifteenth Century.

We were bound for Courmayeur, an Alpine resort at the foot of Mont Blanc, 4,000 feet above the level of the sea, and the drive from Aosta repeats on a grander scale the scenery of the lower half the valley.

This was the nest of a turbulent brood, whose device was "Unguis et rostro," and the following legend tells of the head of the house live up to his motto, somewhere about the middle of the fifteenth century, Count Montmayeur generally dwelt in Savoy, where he owned large estates.

Then one morning Fessigny was surprised by a visit from the defeated count and still more surprised by his courteous and smiling demeanor.

De Fessigny hummed and ha'd, but finally accepted the invitation, and on the appointed day rode up to the gates of Clairvaux.

De Fessigny turned and sprang to his feet. The arras behind him had been drawn aside. He saw a funeral bier at the end of the hall, and a dozen monks ranged around it and began chanting a litany for the dead.

When Your Nerves Bot er You, Invigorate them. When your night's repose is unsoothing and unrefreshing, your appetite jaded or capricious, when slight noises cause you to start, and annoyances of slight moment abnormally worry you, know three things, viz.: 1st, That your nerves are weak; 2d, that you need a tonic; 3d, that its name is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the promptest, safest, most popular article of its class.

The nerves are susceptible of invigoration only by promoting an increase of vigor in the processes of digestion and invigoration. Narcotics and sedatives have their utility, but in the main, and if their use be continued, they are unsafe. A wineglass of the Bitters before retiring, and a repetition of the same during the day before or after meals, is far more likely to confer health-yielding sleep than repeated doses of an opiate. Dyspepsia, debility, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, fever and ague, and other malarial complaints, are always dominated and subdued by it.

Is Consumption Incurable? Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with A becess of Lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an Incurable Consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, am now on my third bottle, and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jessie Middlewast, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, I would have died of Lung Troubles. Was given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at Z. C. M. I. Co's. Drug Store. 5
