

THE DAILY HERALD

SUNDAY, - - - - - March 11, 1888
THE DAILY HERALD is published every morning, Mondays excepted at The Herald Block, corner West Temple and First South Streets, Salt Lake City, by The Herald Company. Subscription price, in advance, $10.00 per annum, post paid.

unprecedentedly. With the present advantages both as to market and transportation facilities, there is no doubt as to the remunerative character of any enterprise for the development and utilization of the abundant natural resources of the country.

BRING IN COTTONWOOD.

The Herald believes it will be wise and profitable for the city to obtain either the Big or Little Cottonwood stream. Ten years ago or more we urged this. At that time either of these mountain streams could have been purchased for less than half what it will cost to-day.

BUILD A HOTEL.

The real estate men are working in the right direction in this movement to bring excursions to Salt Lake. We cannot do much real estate business among ourselves.

CHARLES DICKENS, the younger, has given his word that he will not write a book about America. It would have helped the reputation of Charles Dickens, the elder, if he had never written a book about this country.

THE TURKS are temperance believers after a fashion. That is, they don't believe it is right for Christians to sell intoxicants to Turks, hence they are closing the saloons kept by Christians in Constantinople.

MARY ANDERSON denies that she is going to marry a man in London. If Mary doesn't keep better track of her birthday, she'll be in luck if she marries a man in London or anywhere else.

LAWYER BASKIN spoke his little piece before the Senate committee on Territories yesterday. If he satisfied himself he satisfied his clients.

Contradiction.

I wish to state that the report, which says my wife has sued me for divorce, is false. L. F. MARTIN.

The Dead Monarch.

RUSSIA'S REGRETS AND EULOGIES.
ST. PETERSBURG, March 10.—Newspapers to-day appear in mourning for and published necrologies of the dead Emperor of Germany. All the papers express sympathy at the loss sustained, they say, not only by Germany, but by the whole world.
Journal de St. Petersburg says: "The death of Emperor William is not less deeply regretted in Russia than in Germany. The Russian dynasty loved the deceased Emperor as a friend, who was ever found as the post of duty or danger. He was a fortunate soldier during the first part of his reign, and knew how to devote the remaining two-thirds to the preservation of peace. He died covered with imperishable glory and surrounded by his subjects' love, universal veneration and admiration."
Other papers extol the deceased for his noble-minded qualities and speak of him as a great patriot and victorious commander. They comment upon the turning point in political affairs, which they consider the Emperor's disappearance will make. This, they say, is a subject for most serious reflection.
Nevoo-Vening asks: "Will not the well-known influence of Empress Victoria over Emperor Frederick affect the political omnipotence which Prince Bismarck has hitherto exercised?" The same paper expresses doubt as to Emperor Frederick's physical capacity to govern himself, but hope the question of actual government in the interests of united Germany may be settled without difficulty.

PARIS, March 10.—A high military officer and suite will represent France at the funeral of the Emperor.
BRUSSELS, March 10.—The soldiers took the oath of allegiance to the new Emperor to-day. The court has gone into mourning for three months, commencing yesterday. It is stated that the Emperor Frederick's reply to the message of condolence sent by President Carnot, of France, was very cordial, and that he expressed a hope that the relations between the two countries might continue friendly.

ROME, March 10.—King Humbert traveled from Rome to San Pier d'Arena to meet Emperor Frederick. When the train reached the station King Humbert entered the coach occupied by the Emperor and embraced him. The scene at this meeting was touching. The Emperor was voiceless owing to his disease, but he wrote many notes, in one of which he thanked the Italian Parliament for the honor and respect it had paid his father and himself. Empress Victoria translated to King Humbert the signs made by the Emperor and conversed with the King in French. The Emperor was suffering from fatigue, but otherwise he was in his normal condition. His throat was closely muffled, and he wore a hooded cape and heavy surcoat. The silent parting between the two rulers was affecting. King Humbert's suite were impressed with the Emperor's comparative robustness.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The dependent pension bill was received from the Senate and referred to the committee on invalid pensions.
The following bills were reported and placed on the calendar:—
Authorizing the government of the United States to negotiate with Mexico for the appointment of a commission to determine the boundary line between the United States and Mexico.
For the disposal of the Fort Wallace military reservation.
The motion to table the bill granting the State of California 5 per cent. of the net proceeds of the cash sales of public lands in that State was lost by a vote of 73 yeas to 143 nays.
House adjourned.

Brown & Brooks Map.

Messrs. Brown & Brooks wish it announced that their new map of Salt Lake City and vicinity is out, and will be ready for delivery in about ten days. It is not burned, and it is not controlled by any real estate firm.

Education, Love and Marriage, will be the subject for discussion at the Opera House, by Dr. York, this evening. Doors open at 6.45. Lecture begins at 7.30. Public invited.

We have opened another lot of Sateens—new and desirable styles. THE WALKER BROS. CO.

What, therefore, is to be done with the strangers and excursionists when they come? Are they to be told to walk the streets day and night, and to feed at the cheap restaurants? If their welcome is to be the announcement that hotel accommodations are out of the question, and comfortable lodgings cannot be had for money, we fear a good many tourists will speedily depart in disgust, leaving the land, the scenery and the climate to the enjoyment of those more fortunate in having arrived earlier.
What the city needs more than anything else at this time is a big first-class hotel. We need a hostelry in which the coming crowds can be fed and lodged and cared for in modern style, and to which a train load of excursionists can be led. Without more hotel accommodations we fear the bringing of excursions will prove injurious rather than beneficial. It will be certain to turn away many without buying who would invest if they could be made comfortable while looking about them.
The real estate men will be doing wisely if they combine for the erection of a big hotel, or if they induce capitalists to build the house so much needed.
