

THE NEWS IN OGDEN.

The Organization of the Ogden Choral Union.

ANOTHER TEMPEST IN A TEAPOT.

List of Real Estate Transfers Recorded Yesterday—Business in the Junction City—General Notes.

SALT LAKE HERALD BUREAU, No. 3421 WASHINGTON AVENUE, OGDEN, MAY 17, 1889.

The city council meets this evening to attend to the routine business.

The gravel tramway train and a force of men are grading on Madison avenue between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth streets.

One hour of the choral union sessions will be devoted to teaching, slight reading, and one hour to choros work or cultivation of the voice.

James Hayes, of the Last Chance mine, in the mountains east of Ogden, came last evening and showed some sulphuretted silver ore that made the eyes of his partner swim with delight.

The Bremer's case will hardly crop out at this evening's session, our wise councilman, Councilor Bladell, has probably learned a hard experience that discretion is the better part of valor.

Friends of classic music are delighted with the expectation of a grand treat, next Tuesday evening, when Madame Camilla Urso and her gifted company will appear in the new West Academy hall.

Watermaster Steele is pleased over these rain storms, because they afford him security which he can devote to the study of the aquatic accommodations of the town for whose welfare wishes and wants he has been so active.

Two fellows for titubant superintendency were fined $10 each yesterday, and a var was accorded the hospitality of the city for ten days, which he will share with the first named person of enforced idleness, Justice Presbury delivered the opinion of the day.

It is rumored that J. Wesley Hill, in view of the change of programme for Memorial day, has said that he "would not speak at all on such terms." Well, "Kentucky" Smith and "Charley" Varian will probably be able to entertain the audience in a satisfactory manner.

James Wetherington, one of our old time business men, much respected for his good qualities, is happy. He was going away on a mission to Europe, but just now has a mission as the cradle of a little Miss Wetherington, the third of her kind. The Herald congratulates.

The police court and the district court are being kept busy. The latter has one kind and the other has the other kind of sexual indiscretions to deal with. Yesterday afternoon in the district court the case of Ezra Hale, indicted for murder committed many years ago was taken up.

It is alleged that the proprietor of one of the gambling dens in this city is like Jeff Davis was when at the head of the confederacy—he is willing to be let alone. He only asks that he may not be interfered with for twelve months, and he will be able to "reap up" $200,000 from the suckers who back at his games.

There were no "girls" in the police court yesterday. They keep steady now. Twenty-nine dollars is a rather onerous fine to bear for the offense alleged. However, the "girls" keep up the business, though by no means to the credit of the community, which has been prominently outraged by the glaring display of the solid dimes.

The bonus of $15,000 and two acres of allusion for by the secretary treasurer of a large store founded firm provided they would locate in Ogden, was valued without much difficulty, and without any obstacles not now foreseen or anticipated should appear, the contract will soon be signed and the work of construction commenced without unnecessary delay.

One J. T. Pender has been indicted for keeping a gambling house, but claims that he is innocent. Pender is understood to be the lessee of the square building on Twenty-fifth street, and that he is subject the upstairs part of the house to parties who are alleged to be conducting gambling games. Pender thinks that they, not he, should be held responsible. Why? It is stipulated in the lease of square to Pender that he (Pender) shall not rent any portion of the premises to any person for a house of ill fame. Would it be held by a judge and jury that a gambling den is a house of good fame?

A Tempest in a Teapot. There's wind in the air, or storm in the atmosphere, unless Madame Haimor has—under a mistake. It is alleged that Rev. J. Wesley Hill has been asked to deliver the Memorial Day oration, that the name "Kentucky" Smith, whose more ponderous frame and impressive style imposed themselves upon the management, so that he has been asked to deliver the oration on grand occasion, especially as he was the chief engineer of the last city election, which gave Ogden, into the hands of the Liberals.

Now it is said that J. Wesley is angry; that he is in a fret, a stew; that he is, as it were, exasperated. And he will merit it, if he were invited, he was, as alleged, indignantly refused.

Ogden Choral Union. A new society, having for its objects the teaching of sight reading of music and choros work, or cultivation of the voice, has just been organized and fills a long felt want in this city. The Ogden Choral union, which is the name of the new organization, will commence its first term on Monday, May 20, at 7 p. m. Its sessions will be held in the Central school building. The union will be under the management of a board composed of M. P. Brown, Willard Hatch, George E. Hyde, T. B. Evans and G. H. Isaacs. The well known and very competent Professor L. D. Edwards will act as musical director. Applications for membership may be made to any member of the board or to the secretary, George E. Hyde. This society will doubtless meet with encouragement which it deserves of music-loving public.

Nor a fit, but an expression of delight. "About a week ago," says a Los Angeles, California, druggist, "a Chinaman came in with a lame shoulder. I sold him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and guaranteed that it would cure him. He came in again last night, and as soon as he got inside the door, began to writhing in pain. I thought the balm had a fit, but he finally stopped long enough to say: 'Medicine really fine, really fine; Chamberlain's Pain Balm is without an equal for sprains, rheumatism, aches, pains or lame back.' AMUSEMENTS.

MAINTANA.—There is seemingly no limit to the talent of Salt Lake's amateurs. Mr. Gorinski's organization, made up almost entirely of a different set of singers from that which appears in either "Martha" or "The Daughter of the Regiment," rendered "Martha" at the theatre last evening, and received the same hearty applause, approval, and general commendation which Salt Lake always bestows upon the creditable work of her young performers. The audience was a large one below—above, it was not all the performance merited, the total receipts being a trifle over $500, but the house was one of the warmest, friendliest and most demonstrative that it would be possible to have. Mr. Gorinski deserves the warmest words of praise for the almost lavish manner in which he produced the opera. In the two details of orchestra and conducting the production has never been equalled by a local company, and the expense attendant on these features alone have been very great. The late hour at which the opera closed—11:30—was not midnight, and the final curtain fell—renders it impossible to give the details of the performance, but it is worth a full evening's attention, and it is not too much to say that the performance, notwithstanding the ambitiousness of the whole work, its difficulty and its great length—and notwithstanding the very evident amateurishness of some of the parts—was a most successful one, and its particular brilliant spots, such as the enchanting "Flirtation dance" to the accompaniment of mandolin and guitar—which had an immense vogue—the "Happy Moments," and Edith Clavson and Jennie Hawley's beautifully rendered duet of "Holy Mother, the first musical achievement of the night—will suffice to carry it on the wave of popular favor. The best acted part was that of Edith Clavson, whose dressing was exquisite; but her voice was not so true to the part as in "The Daughter; the best song part was that of Miss Hawley, who looked a charming toy. Mr. Gorinski sang admirably and acted intelligently. Mr. Markhotzoff, as Don Cesar had one of the best light comedy roles on the stage to sustain, and for so exacting a part he did well—extremely well. He sang as usual of his art; his first appearance in the singing was magnificent in parts, rough in others. Mr. Hampton has the true operative voice, and his singing is as true as the needle; we wish we could say as much of his acting; but we cannot. Mr. Hayward made some lively work in a rather sad comedy part, and Miss Lawson, Mr. Oberdorfer and Mr. Ar. were all very successful with credit. To Mr. Spenser and Mr. Oberdorfer is due the praise for some admirable stage settings, and to the former especially the lively business of the chorus in the first act, and to the latter the credit of the number of details, such as the faulty spelling of "Castilian" on the sign board, the emerging of one of the characters from the doorway, and the stage when a floral offering was to be made, and the more than distinct voice of the stage director, can be avoided on a second presentation. Prof. Krouse waited the harem over a grand orchestra, and some rare work they did. The only trouble was that they occasionally cramped the singers. The piece should be shortened in some ways, but the theatre curtain in the prison scene at the best is a very unsatisfactory one. There is already a large sale for tonight's performance, and it is more than probable, without doubt, will be a tremendous one.

REALLY AND WOOD.

The sale begins at the Grand this evening for the Kelly & Wood show, the prime feature of which is the Vaidis sisters. Four men have been here several days arranging the trappings and accessories for the drive. After the street parade to-morrow Mr. Kelly, who is a famous caricaturist, will do some sketch work on the big bill boards in the city, and Co.'s drug store, illustrating his own show with crayon pictures done on the spot.

SOMEONE.

Mr. Warren, once courier to Southern, the son of his father, arrived in town yesterday. Mr. Warren was last here with the "Wife" company, and he promises in Southern, who plays at the theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, an attraction equal in dramatic powers to that phenomenal card.

Oh, What a Cough.

Will you heed the warning? The signal of a terrible disease—consumption—is a cough. You can afford to neglect it, but you cannot afford to neglect it. Steamer Burned.

DELETH, May 16.—It is reported here that the United Empire, a Sarnia line steamer, is burned. The report has not been officially corroborated yet. The boat is a passenger steamer and is valued at $100,000.

Stanley Matthews' Successor.

CHICAGO, May 16.—The Times' Washington correspondent has the authority of a Republican Senator whose authority is a member of the cabinet, that the President has decided to fill the vacancy on the Supreme bench caused by Stanley Matthews' death, by appointing Attorney-General Miller. As a result of this, Secretary Noble will be made attorney-general, and Assistant Attorney-General Clarkson will succeed Noble as secretary of the Interior.

Restraint in Oregon.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 16.—Judge Shattuck, in the state circuit court, has issued an injunction restraining the Oregon Transportation company from issuing the new preferred stock to the amount of $100,000,000.

IN BUSINESS HAUNTS.

Meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Directors Last Night.

THE REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

Laying of the Corner Stone of the Equitable Co-Op. Building—Other Business—Notes and Matters.

A meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce was held last evening and a number of important matters were disposed of.

It was agreed that the chamber should purchase for distribution 1,000 copies of the new pamphlet, issued by the real estate board.

The chamber of commerce building project also came up for consideration, and the result was the calling of a meeting of the subscribers to the building fund for next Tuesday evening to incorporate and agree upon the details of the work.

At the suggestion of President Lawrence, the board of directors was appropriated toward making up the deficiency in the fund for defraying the expenses of the delegation now in Washington in the interest of Utah's lead products.

The following resolution was introduced by Mr. Fred Simons and adopted by the board:

Whereas, The President has appointed the Hon. Arthur L. Thomas governor of this territory; and

Whereas, Mr. Thomas has been from the founding of the Salt Lake chamber of commerce a member thereof, and is now serving as one of the directors of this board;

Resolved, That the chamber of commerce recognize the high compliment paid to his ability, high-mindedness, integrity of character and his services rendered to the various positions of trust he has been called upon to fill, and that we heartily congratulate Mr. Thomas upon his high position of the highest responsibility and honor.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the records of this chamber of commerce, that an appropriate copy thereof be presented to our new governor, and copies be furnished the various papers of the city for publication.

The meeting then adjourned.

A SPIRIT IN MAN.

Mr. Crut's Lecture on Wednesday Evening in the Assembly Hall.

In his lecture in the Assembly Hall, Wednesday evening, Mr. Crut claimed that the word spirit is used in four senses in the Bible. 1.—To denote a personal being; and is thus used when applied to God, and the angels, who are called "spirits"; but the word is not used in this sense when applied to man. 2.—To represent a power proceeding from a personal being. 3.—A state of feeling as the "spirit in spirit," "a neck and quiet spirit." 4.—"The breath of life." Job 33: 4, "The Spirit of God is in my nostrils."

He stated that the Hebrew and Greek words rendered spirit are never qualified by any words signifying that the spirit of man is immortal, or is conscious beyond death and the resurrection of the dead. He further said that the word rendered spirit, when applied to man are in the neuter gender, and therefore do not represent the moral, intellectual being; and further, that the spirit of man is never said to either live or die; and can exist only in the living, personal organism.

In other words, that the spirit of man is never said to continue to exist in a conscious state after the life is taken away from the man. He said it was impossible to have an immortal being living without an immortal body to contain the life principle. A very lively interest was manifested in the lecture. This evening, he is to speak on "Future Punishment," which will be his closing lecture in the Assembly hall.

Changed His Mind.

"Nothing for you," said a Michigan avenue shoemaker as a tramp entered his shop the other day.

The man looked about him for a minute and then sat down on a roll of leather in a corner.

"I can't help you any," continued the shoemaker as he gazed in astonishment at the stranger.

"I think you can," softly replied the stranger. "Let me put the case as it is. I refuse to go out."

"But I'll put you out."

"You'll try to. You'll get a policeman, and when he comes I shall say I have the cholera."

"But you haven't."

That's all right. He'll ring for the ambulance and I'll be sent to the hospital.

The ambulance will attract a crowd in front of your shop. It will be noted about that it is a case of cholera. The papers will come out with a scare head article that a genuine case of Asiatic cholera has developed in Detroit. Then where will your patronage go?

"It will follow me."

"Where?"

"To my other shop. The wagon will be here in fifteen minutes to remove me. Better develop your cholera pretty soon."

"Say!" said the other as he got up, "I thought I had you. I'm beaten at my own game. Don't you want to kick me?"

"Why, yes. I'd like to lift you once as you go out."

"All right. Kick away."

The shoemaker planted him one and stood in the door and smiled.

"Good-by," said the other, as he moved off.

"When I find a man who can beat me at my own game I always come down and show my respect for him. I'll make a hit further down and then come back to see you. What a team of confidence operators we would make!"—Detroit Free Press.

Senator Ingalls' Servant Girl.

The other evening Mrs. Senator Ingalls invited the doctor, with a number of other friends, to dinner at 8 p. m. The doctor accepted, but said he could not come until a half hour later and it was agreed that a place should be held for him until his arrival.

At 8:30 the doctor rang the bell and a new servant girl answered it. Somehow her suspicions were aroused against the doctor, and although she invited him into the parlor, she watched him narrowly. He asked to see Mrs. Ingalls. The girl said he could see her in a few minutes.

"Take her my card," he said, urgently, as the fragrance of the violets floated upward to his nostrils.

"You can see her in a few minutes," persisted the girl, as she settled down to the business of leaving him alone with the violets in the parlor.

"But, my girl," he pleaded, "I am invited here to dinner. Go and see Mrs. Ingalls, and tell her I'm here."

"She'll be up before long, and it will be all right," and again the girl bended him off.

Finally he sat down in sheer desperation, and waited and waited and waited, and the girl watched and watched and watched. Along about 9:30 o'clock some members of the family passed through the hall, and the young man made a rush, and got in an explanation ahead of the servant girl. Then he went down to fill the vacant chair at the table.—Washington Critic.
