

RACELAND WINNERS

How His Backers Raked in the Big Money.

PROHIBITION IN RHODE ISLAND.

A Battle of Handbills and Dodgers—Union Pacific Troubles—On the Ascent Course—Mullholland Victorious.

(Special to THE HERALD—Examiner Dispatch.)

New York, June 20.—When Raceland galloped home in the Suburban Tuesday, he landed more winning bets than any previous winner of any race, as for two weeks previous he had been installed as the overwhelming favorite, and many bettors had backed him at from three to five to one. The heaviest individual winner is Jake Shepley, the well known bookmaker. He played him in sums of $100 in the winter books in New York, San Francisco, Pittsburg, St. Louis and Chicago until he had $1,000 up at comfortable odds of twenty to one. He consequently cleared $20,000 on the race. Sam Emery won $2,000 on Raceland in the winter books, which held him out at the track so that he stood to lose $10,000 on the race. Race land, however, placed $2,000 to his credit. Sam landed a big fortune over Dry Mouppole in the Brooklyn handicap in 1887. Pup Burton, the great southern bookmaker, won $2,000 on Raceland. John F. Murray cleared $240 at odds, four to eleven, on Raceland on the 8th after he defeated Piazzi at Jerome park two weeks ago, and paid $1,000 to the good of the race. Under Sheriff Sweeney's management Raceland won the great poloing. The bulk of the money lost was on the Baro, Hanover, Inspector B. Frazee, Judge Murray, Quite, Galore and Prince Royal, all of them non-starters. Of those that ran, Terra Cotta, Bella B., Gorgo, Eurus and Elkwood were backed heavily.

Rhode Island Voting on Prohibition.

(Special to THE HERALD—Examiner Dispatch.) Providence, R. I., June 20.—To-day Rhode Island voted on a proposed article 5 of the amendments to its constitution. The article is a brief one. It reads: "Article 5 of the amendments to the constitution of this state is hereby amended." Article 5 reads: "The manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors to be used as a beverage shall be prohibited. The general assembly shall provide by law for carrying this article into effect."

The battle that resulted in the adoption of this latter article was successfully fought for prohibition in the spring of 1886. To-day Rhode Island will try to take what the prohibitionists like to call a "backward step," and kick the binders off of article 5. The voters will vote "provisionally for carrying it into effect" by the adoption of article 5. It will take a three-fifths vote to do it, and it is not certain whether the voters will do it. The campaign which closes with to-day's battle has been one of handbills and dogers. Unbiased professors of the past pot and brass dealt out the choice positions on the board, leaving a particle of favor to one party or the other.

The newspapers have made hay from the rival advertising patronage, which has been the form of the campaign. All the available space in the horse cars has been utilized with caris that read: "If you want to overcome the evils of prohibition, vote approve." It is not to be expected by the liquor power, that the voters will abstain in starting capitals but vote, reject."

Boston, June 20.—The Union Pacific officials say that they have no advice such as come from Chicago as to a threatened strike on their lines. They state that there is some trouble with the California settlement rests with Mr. Kimball, and he will, it is believed by the officials, secure an early adjustment of the difficulties.

The Union Pacific's Troubles.

OMAHA, June 20.—On account of the severe loss entailed each year by the operation of the three branch lines of the Union Pacific centering at Leavenworth, the executive set apart these lines to be managed as separate organizations from the Union Pacific proper, with the hope that a separate management would be able to earn their operating expenses. On May 13 the manager of the division made a reduction in the wages of the engineers and firemen on certain special runs. This action brought together the grievance committee of the Union Pacific system, who claim that the executive officers have no power to make separate organizations of their lines unless the same wages are paid as on the main line. At the same time General Manager Kimball offered to leave the matter to a board of arbitration, but the committee refused to accept arbitration as a means of settlement. At present it cannot be said what further action will be taken.

He can make no permanent arrangement, however, until the ten days' limit has expired. It is not probable that he may decide to return to California. He informed your correspondent this evening that he would in future abandon the position of catcher and play only in the infield. The Washington club has a superfluity of players and Ehrhart, as well as three others, was released on that account.

Harrison's Sensible Action.

(Special to THE HERALD—Examiner Dispatch.) WASHINGTON, June 20.—Some comment was heard about town last night over the action of the President in refusing to wear the badge of the Patriotic Sons of America. The order is a native American organization which is holding its annual convention here. A large number of the delegates, headed by Mr. C. W. Spofford, the well known "iron lung" of this city, went up to the White House yesterday morning to be presented to the President. After the introductions had been made, Mr. Spofford said: "Mr. President, won't you take one of our badges?" The President dryly answered: "No." That, according to Mr. Spofford, was all there was to the incident, and he and others who were present known hotel proprietor Harrison could not have done otherwise than he did, because if he had accepted the badge of one order, he would have to accept those of all. One of the morning papers here will publish from the pen of an eye witness a more sensational account, and will intimate that the President threw the badge aside with some feeling, evidently fearing that he was being caught in a Hurchard trap.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE BOHEMIAN GIRL.

The attendance fell off a little at the Grand last evening, owing solely to the fact that "The Bohemian Girl" has been done so much, so recently, and in the case of Emma Abbott, so badly that even the popularity of the Bostonians could not revive a waltz in it. Still the lower 90 filled, and the usual assembly.

JO

The per ATEs TO as a smooth and charming 90. Early all respects to the high standard, non "Bostonians" have established. It was called, with new and original bits of picturesque business, groupings and tableaux, which immensely heightened the effect of the whole, the dancing of the gypsies and the simple dance which acted admirably and looked very alone making a feature and winning a recall. Many places there were, especially in the music of Thaidies, the count and the queen, changed to suit individual tastes, which was a most commendable personal lesson; this, however, may be thought hypercritical, especially since Miss Davis gave so magnificent and incomparable rendering of the queen's part.

The cast was a smooth, even, on a dead level of excellence; no really great part, perhaps, unless we except the queen, but that all around playing man, to Arthur, and the other two, all to an audience; Miss Cordeu was better as Arline than as Mignon, and her Marbie Halls went with immense favor. Mr. Hoff, though somewhat light for Thaidies, sang sweetly, acted admirably and looked very handsome; his "You'll Remember Me" and "Fair Land of Poland" were encored heartily. Mr. Cowley's Devilshot was excellent throughout, and Mrs. Dixon's Florence had a rousing success. The chorus did the best work it has done at all this far, and the orchestra was for the most part admirable, and looked very ought to tone it down—there are times when it completely swamps every sound on the stage. The stage management could have been decidedly improved; a number of the interior wings projected, and the scenes during whole acts, and other mis-matches of sets remained uncorrected. A highly humorous incident, which ought not to be referred to except for the merit of it, took place both the audience and the company, was the very near capsizing of the dignified Count Arnhelm, who tipped back in a chair he didn't know as on rollers. He "all but" went over, and orchestra, chorus, audience and Mr. MacDonald himself joined in a laugh which almost demolished the act. To-night Karl and Barnabee reappear in the cast of Footprints in the Carlson Cottage.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The police have under surveillance in the Cronin case another suspect, against whom they hope to secure evidence which will connect him with the conspiracy. He said that a well-known Irishman and a member of the Clan-na-Gael, whose name he had seen in the papers, was a customer of his, and that he had very peculiar marks on the floor. He said that he was found to correspond almost exactly in size and shape.
