THE ALLIANCE AND THE DEMOCRAT.

The Farmer's alliance has elected eight members of the next House of Representatives. It has exerted a potential influence in piling up the Democratic majority of nearly 150 in the next Congress. It is a disturbing factor in politics that may well cause any political party with which it may come in contact to look forward with some trepidation to the issue.

The Democratic party has little to fear. It is the party of the people, and may confidently hope to gain by any movement that comes of the people, is conducted by the people, and is distinctly for the people.

Witness the ease with which the Alliance in many parts of the country, in the campaign coalesced with the Democratic party, assisting them to work out the last victory so magnificently won. There is in fact no need to organize a party distinctively of the farming classes.

It demands that our national laws in the future be so framed as not to build up one industry at the expense of another; the removal of the existing heavy tariff tax from the necessities of life that the poor of our land must have; free and unlimited coinage of silver; the passage of laws that shall prohibit the alien ownership of land; the reclamation of the vast unearned land grants to railroads.

The political campaigns of the immediate future will be campaigns of education; illogical and unreasonable demands of the Alliance will be forgotten or abandoned under the scrutiny of investigation, and a large number of the hitherto Republican farmers will have been educated up to the fallacies of protection; when the party under which they came out of the Republican party shall have disappeared, they will easily identify themselves with the party of tariff reform.

It is probable, too, by that time that a large number of the people will have forgotten the bitter memories of the war, a fact which must at once render it impossible for them to re-identify themselves with, or longer remain in, a party, the reason grands of which is to perpetuate the dissensions of war.

Republicans exult themselves into the belief that this is an "off" year, while facts almost unmistakably indicate that it is but the beginning of the end of their party. Its brilliant record in the days of slavery and during the rebellion has been its glory; it has lived, and hopes to continue to live, upon its record; it has no live issues, and when a new generation forces it to abandon its dead end, it will be unable to pick out from the scrap yard of its principles planks enough to build a third class platform.

That there is no possible reason for the existence of the Republican party is being pretty generally sensed. Its career is about closed, unless it can find some live and popular issues to represent.

So RECORDED HYAMS has retired. He tried to bounce young Mr. SHANNON, but the latter virtuously took the former along with him. "The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly small." It appears to us, by the way, that incompetence rather than dishonesty is the cause of Mr. HYAMS' downfall.

A GENERAL investigation of city affairs has been ordered by the council. Who can guess what the next scandal will be?

Does the council believe "there are four borders" somewhere among the city officials, that it decides with such a virtuous spasm to investigate?

SAME OLD ARGUMENT. We had occasion to remark the other day: "Here is the argument of the downtown rag against the Mormons: 'If they are not citizens, if their allegiance belongs to some other power, if they have established that by their acts, then they should have no part in the government of Utah.'"

The same old rag uses the same old argument in its Sunday distributive, speaking of the oaths taken by Liberals who are members of secret societies: "If there were any societies with a mission to overthrow the government of the United States, if their oaths went to that end, and they taught their children that, there would be a cyclone awakened very soon."

The answer to this argument, which intimates the Mormons to be guilty of all these positions, is again simply "If." We stated before that a man who belongs to that element which (although it contains many estimable people) fills the jails, commits the murders, owns the saloons and brothels, and who could also say to his law-abiding neighbors, "I am holier than thou," is a study in consistency. Whereat, this great patriot hastens to explain how much better he and his law-breaking compatriots are than his law-abiding opponents. He says: "This is only a matter of allegiance to the government; it is nothing to do with the morals of the people, it has nothing to do with their private lives."

Very pretty reasoning, isn't it? The Mormon applicants for citizenship were good law-abiding citizens, whose lives were above reproach, who had taken no oath against the government (as, indeed, no others do), and who were ready to swear allegiance to the government. But the "patriot" informs us that somewhere down deep in their souls, beyond any of their actions, notwithstanding their past acceptable lives and their good intentions for the future, there is a disloyalty, which never leaves them, and is therefore all the more dangerous.

This "patriot" says that actions have nothing to do with this case; nor words either; but thoughts—thoughts which are disavowed by the lips, constitute an offense so much greater than actions that the only remedy is disfranchisement for the Mormons, in order that he and his friends may fill the offices.

THE RETIRING recorder has not made the record in the community that his predecessor in office, HENRY M. WELLS, did.

AND YET intelligent Liberals voted for LOUIS HYAMS in preference to HENRY M. WELLS.

THEN AND NOW. Rev. Dr. MINOT J. SAVAGE in The Arena for December says that "if any creature on earth has reason for exultant, tearful, heavenward-rising thankfulness, it is modern woman."

The writer goes on to show the amelioration of the condition of woman that has been accomplished in modern times; how to-day she stands queen of herself and of the world; how the brutal and vulgar coarseness with which she was once treated in society, in the courts, and at home has changed into a chivalrous respect for feminine worthiness that makes the common school-girl of to-day better off in all that makes life desirable than the queen of two hundred years ago; how comfort, purity, intelligence, refinement, are now her lot, with better houses, more convenient and ample furniture, more comfortable and beautiful dress, simpler manners, and ampler opportunities for enjoyment and development.

It is a truthful picture. That science and industry have raised the whole race to a higher plane of physical enjoyments is undoubted; and amid all the material progress there is behest a growth in the moral world as well, the improved condition of woman being one of the best evidences of this fact.

Whether the growth in the moral world has been as great as that of the material prosperity of mankind, may perhaps be questioned; but that immense advancement has been made, few will be disposed to deny.

If we contemplate the abolition of the various forms of human servitude, the extension of private and public charities, the modification of the once brutal forms of punishment, the diffusion of knowledge, and the participation of the masses in all kinds of enterprises, including that of government, it would appear that the age of steam and electricity is on a level with most past eras in the application of the teachings of an enlightened Christianity, and immeasurably higher than any former age in providing for the material wants of its children.

Yet so imperfect appear all human virtues and gratifications; thus far, that we may well contemplate the present as only the commencement of the progress of the future.

THE CRUEL fight—wordy or otherwise—did not occur last night in the council. It was a gloomy session, the handwriting on the wall was visible.

THAT BRAINY free trader, Mr. HENRY GEORGE, announces his retirement from The Standard, which for the past four years he has conducted with marked ability and spirit. He proposes to devote himself more assiduously to the propagation of his views on the single tax, and to write a work on political economy for which he has had many calls. He is succeeded as editor of The Standard by WILLIAM T. CHADWICK, chairman of the single tax committee. We wish Mr. GEORGE and his successor continued success.

PRICES GO UP. The free trade papers are quoting with much gusto the advertisements which say that hereafter such and such goods will be raised in price because of the increased duties under the McKinley bill. * * * The country is not quite prepared to go to pot because of tradesmen's advertisements.—Tribune.

Perhaps not, but how about this? The first effect of the new tariff has been to hasten values for all kinds of dry goods and to advance prices for classes. Cotton is lower, but cotton goods above 100 threads to the square inch are dearer, while lower counts are very steady.

R. B. MACLEA of R. B. MACLEA & CO., said: "Dress goods have all gone up. Challies have advanced 6 or 7 cents per yard. Cotton prices have risen about 10 per cent., and a sale we made to-day to a large jobbing house to close contract averaged 23 cents, while last year at this time we sold them at 21 cents. Among the articles which have been most affected are gingham, which contain some silk. The price of these goods has gone up fully 50 per cent., the old duty being only 35 per cent. ad valorem, while under the new law they will be paid 35 per cent. ad valorem and 10 cents per square yard."—Tribune.

It is not expected there will be much advance in prices of cutlery before the first of the year. Then an increase will be made as a result of higher duties imposed. A manufacturer in this country has sent out this notification to his customers: We beg to advise you that we hereby withdraw all former quotations on our cutlery. We have made an advance in our prices which will be quoted on our application.

The old rate on jackknives valued at 50 cents per dozen to $1.50 was 50 per cent.; the new rate is 50 per cent. ad valorem and 50 cents per dozen specific; that is, a dozen jackknives costing $2.00 in Europe, cost, with old duties, 30 cents; under the present law the same knives cost the importer $1.40, an increase of 50 per cent.

Under the old law a dozen table knives and forks, costing in Europe $1.10, cost the importer 30 per cent. ad valorem duty, or $1.43; under the new law the duty is 30 per cent. ad valorem and 30 cents per dozen specific, thus making the same knives and forks cost $1.78, an increase of 25 per cent. A dozen knives and forks costing $2.50 in Europe, was subject to an ad valorem tax of 35 per cent. under the old law, making them cost the importer $1.12; under the new law the tax is 30 per cent. ad valorem and $1 specific, making them cost the importer $1.75, an increase of 66 per cent. Here, as in all other cases, the greatest increase is on the goods used by the poorer classes.

These are not advertisements any more than the invoices of raised prices received by dealers in this city are advertisements. Who ever heard of merchants conspiring to sell their goods by advertising how much higher in price they are now than formerly? The Tribune argues that high prices are now quoted in order to induce people to buy!

Prices have gone up and on many lines of goods will continue to do so for two years. ADVICE TO MOTHERS. Mrs. Winslow's soothing syrup should always be used for children teething. It soothes the inflamed gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Schomer Piano.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy liver. When the liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED. A general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc. I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the good produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the stomach and bowels. W. J. McCLURE, Mason, Ga.
