A Man Seizes Willows While in a Boat and Is Drowned.

A VERY DESPERATE YOUNG MAN

James McDermott Arrested for Stealing a Registered Letter While Postmaster—Believe Man Adjudged Insane.

HELENA, Mont., July 30.—[Special telegram to THE HERALD.]—A remarkable case of foolhardiness that resulted in death occurred today at Livingston. A party of seven men had constructed a boat in which to float down the Yellowstone and Missouri rivers to the Dakota front fields when they would work during harvest. They started today. William Barnes was in the stern steering the craft. The boat had gone but a short distance when they passed under some overhanging willows. In a reckless mood Barnes grasped the willows and swung himself out of the boat, which floated on. Before the boat could be brought back Barnes had dropped into the river and was drowned. His home was in Montreal, Canada. His body was not recovered. The party passed on down the Yellowstone.

A Very Desperate Young Man

CREVIERE, Wyo., July 30.—[Special telegram to THE HERALD.]—United States Marshal Haskin, after an overnight trip of one hundred miles, landed in this county jail here this evening prisoner quite out of the ordinary. This time James McDermott is held on the charge of stealing a registered letter from the mails when he was a postmaster in the Big Horn basin. It happened three years ago when McDermott was arrested for the same crime. He was released on his own recognizance. Another man was accused of the crime and lost his position and property fighting the charge. McDermott had a duel with a neighbor in April. He was sent out to meet the enemy with his four-year-old son in his arms, and the little fellow was killed during the fusillade. McDermott went down with a bullet imbedded in his skull over the ear, but recovered. He seems a mild young man and is not strong, but he has the reputation of being ready any time to fight a nest of wild cats.

IN WALL STREET.

The Stock Exchange Full of False Rumors.

A Big Anglo-American House Said to be in Trouble—In Effect on the Market—The Author Unknown.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The stock exchange was full of false rumors today affecting the credit of a banking house and commercial firms and the free market in which the names of a big house were handled caused great anxiety. It is believed by many there must be some change in the management of the house. The house in question is one of the oldest on Wall street and its foreign branches are in London, Hong Kong and Yokohama. The first talk about it began some months ago when the bills of exchange of this house were being discounted in London. It was reported that the house was in trouble and another large house was being bought up. The rumors were so persistent that the house was forced to issue a statement that it was in no way affected by the rumors.
