MR. BLAINE RESIGNS. Mr. Blaine has quarreled with Mr. Harrison as secretary of state, which has been generally accepted. In all this the man from Maine has been guilty of the mistake of his life.

Two months ago Mr. Blaine was not a candidate for the presidency and he did not want the nomination. When in February he wrote to Chairman CLARKSON of the Republican National committee that he was not a candidate and that his name would not go before the convention, he meant what he said and he then intended to be loyal to the president, who was known as the foremost and most eager aspirant for the nomination.

They said unto him, "Peace, Be Still," and he shut up like a clam. One of the greatest spectacles that will be seen in Chicago will be Boss POWERS' Tuscarora brawls.

When Mr. Blaine said he would write no more letters he mentally excluded letters of resignation. If the weather should be in Minnesota this week as it has been in this region lately, Minneapolis, too, may boast of its midwinter convention.

"SAYERS from my friends" is what the president may exclaim when thinking of the indignant utterances of Prince RUSSELL and the Indiana crowd. The Salt Lake Tribune covers a very wide range in its editorial discussion of subjects, being altogether unrestricted, except in politics and religion.

SENATOR HARRISON of North Dakota has said the blindest, sharpest thing yet in regard to the Republican president. "We selected Harrison four years ago," he said, "because we wanted the state, not the man."

OUR EXCELLENT Presbyterian friend, President HARRISON, would be very much shocked, if he were in Minneapolis, at the profanity, intemperance and other unsightly things that will transpire there on this day of our Lord.

JURIST JOHN M. HANLAN of the United States supreme court, in a lecture at Chicago a few days ago, defining the federal constitution, went all through the subject without the slightest reference to the decision of LOCHIE, J., in the celebrated Tuscarora case.

IN JOHN FRENCH's report of the survey of the route from San Francisco to the Mission Dolores, there is a reference to protection against moisture from upper story windows, which may be a justification for strange looking creatures to carry umbrellas when visiting large towns in dry weather.

COME to think of it, Mr. BLAINE, who was able to go to New York to see his new grandchild, didn't take in Rochester, where the president looks for the veterans. These two great Republican leaders have not often been seen together in public.

RAHM was appointed in his place, and another series of scandals has followed. As yet, however, RAHM holds his position. The pension legislation of the last Republican congress has placed on this country a burden greater than that resulting from the maintenance of any of the great armies of Europe, and greater than the interest on the entire national debt.

Idaho and Wyoming were admitted to the Union because they gave a Republican majority at the last elections, while Arizona, New Mexico and Utah were denied admission because they gave Democratic majorities. Utah has a population a third greater than that of Idaho and Wyoming combined.

History and observation teach that fanaticism, whether in or out of church, is not a good thing to be guided by. We are not certain that religious bigotry is not as great an enemy to Christianity as open infidelity. The former certainly does not have a beneficial influence upon some conservative minds which are well disposed towards religion.

On the other hand it is possible that religion may be made too generous; that in their eagerness to satisfy the cravings of a naturally "wicked and perverse generation" for freedom from the usual restraints which Christianity puts upon mankind, ministers of the gospel may concede so much that religion itself will suffer from vulgarization and the loss of the influence which makes it a power for good in this world whatever may be the effect as to the hereafter.

THE PROBABILITY, or possibility, of President HARRISON's re-nomination suggests a review of his record while president. The first care of the administration was to reward the monopolists who had furnished the money to elect the president. Nearly every section of the McKinley bill was written by manufacturers who had an axe to grind.

Another act of the administration was the rewarding of WYAMAKER—the only man in all our history who has succeeded in buying a high cabinet office for cold cash. QUAY told WYAMAKER the election could be carried for him with money. The latter raised the immense fund of $400,000, paying the expenditure of this vast sum that he "didn't want to know" where every dollar of it went.

There should be some place to which the workman can go just as the rich man to his club. But it must be remembered that drinking at a club is a feature, as accident as it were. If we could have something like the German beer garden I should be in favor of it. It could be a kind of social meeting place. Light wines and pure beer could be sold and there could be music and some forms of entertainment. The plan works well there and I do not see why it would not here.

THE HERALD is not an authority on religion and should not assume to say how churches should be managed or what ministers should do or say; but we cannot help thinking that it would be better if a couple prominent New York pulpits were occupied by other than the preachers who now fill them.

TODAY is THE HERALD's anniversary. Twenty-two years ago this morning THE HERALD appeared on the streets and in the homes of Salt Lake, and for twenty-two years it has been the people's paper, never in a single issue failing in its duty to a constituency which embraces all Utah and includes the surrounding states and territories. Mighty changes have taken place since the diminutive four pages were spread before the public.

ONLY $50 TO CHICAGO AND RETURN via the Union Pacific. Special train to leave Salt Lake about June 15. Pullman palace sleepers, elegant dining cars, reclining chairs, and excellent meals through to Chicago without change.

THE REPUBLICAN bosses who are today fighting against the President and the official head of their own party, are demanding a man in his place whom they can manipulate, influence and use for their selfish and disreputable purposes. It is a spectacle the like of which was never before seen in American politics. It is not an honorable contest they are conducting. They are not proposing a race in which all entries may have an equal chance, nor one in which it is all the field against the favorite.

WHICH is it that has been "patronizing in a double sense"? February 6, last, BLAINE wrote to CLARKSON: "I am not a candidate for the presidency, and my name will not go before the Republican national convention for the nomination. I make this statement in the season. To those who have tendered me their support I owe sincere thanks, and am most grateful for their confidence."

THE FRIENDS of HARRISON will need to pay special attention to the southern delegations at Minneapolis. Reports are current that influences that were active four years ago in winning these delegations away from SHRYVER are not idle now. The colored contingents are apt to scrutinize the "provisions" in their instructions, and are liable to deal somewhat in options.

OUR QUERY BOX. Editor—Ohio has more pensioners than any other state. One—The population of the world is estimated at 4,779,720,000. P—The Washington monument in Washington is 555 feet high. M—The Library of Congress, at Washington, contains 350,000 volumes. It was founded in 1802.

SUNDAY MATINGS. Piquette: A discussion on church canons brings out all the big guns. Rum's Horn: It is much easier to backslide at camp-meeting than it is in time of salpurgery. New York News: Fine clothes are more powerful in getting some people out to church than a love of religion. Galveston News: "Keep off the grass" implies that we may still have a few Neobachaduzzars among us.

STREET & SMITH'S Good News: Little Nell—Will those in our church have a looking glass fixed over their heads on the organ? Little Dick—I guess that's so he can tell the choir when the minister is looking. New York Herald: Elder Berry—The members of the quartet choir have sent in their resignations. Mr. Dr. Thidley—What's the matter? Elder Berry—Your announcement last Sunday.

PROVIDENCE having seen fit to afflict them with hard colds, let us join in singing "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow." Moonshine: The Minister's Wife (to industrial scholar)—Eliza Jane, I'm sorry to hear from your schoolmistress you are not diligent in your needlework. You know who it is that works for idle hands to do? Eliza Jane (intensely anxious to propitiate)—Yes'm please, you do!

DETROIT Free Press: The children were talking of the churches which they attended and the respective religious beliefs of their parents. "My papa is a Presbyterian," said one. "Mine's a Baptist," asserted another. "Mine is a Dutch Reformed," chimed in a third. This answer appeared to grieve one who had been very quiet. "And I guess mine is Tariff Reform," came the protestant.

GENERAL AGENT, 301 Main street. ONLY $50 TO CHICAGO AND RETURN via the Union Pacific. Special train to leave Salt Lake about June 15. Pullman palace sleepers, elegant dining cars, reclining chairs, and excellent meals through to Chicago without change.

LITERATURE.

MERRY TALES. By Mark Twain. New York: Charles L. Webster & Co. Price, 75 cents.

"Fiction, Fact and Fancy Series" is the title of a series of which the present is the first volume. The editor, Arthur Siedman, says the aim will be to provide the people with reading in a shape adapted to the amount of time at their disposal, and the effort will be to select largely from the works of American writers.

THOMAS HOOKER comes rightly in the Makers of America series, for whilst the greater part of his life was passed before he reached the shores of the new continent, during the few years that he resided in Massachusetts and Connecticut he so impressed his strong and vigorous personality upon those commonwealths, especially upon the latter, which he may be said to have founded, as to make the impression endure for all time.

A DOZEN years ago Mrs. Warfield was a popular realistic writer of fiction, and she seems to have lost none of her characteristic for this latest production from her pen is as passionate and intense in the imagination of the author as any of her earlier productions.

THE FRONTISPIECE of the Review of Reviews for June is the most interesting picture of Mr. Blaine that has been published in a long while. It is from his very latest photograph, made in his connection with the diplomatist at Washington, who happens to be an ardent amateur photographer. It represents Mr. Blaine sitting on his porch at Star Harbor, and was secured last fall in connection with a very readable article entitled "A Glance at Mr. Blaine's Commercial Policy," there is also a fine, spirited drawing of the same gentleman by the artist Garabedoff, besides excellent half-tone portraits of Mr. John W. Foster and Mr. William E. Curtis, both of the department of state, and both generally identified with Mr. Blaine's South American and reciprocity policies.

THE CENTURY. Rowell Smith, the late president of the Century Co., is the subject of a number of contributions to the June Century. There is a frontispiece portrait of a poem by Edmund Gosse, a biographical sketch by the Rev. Dr. Gladden, an editorial in "Topics of the Time," with brief statements of Mr. Smith's connection with the Tract society, the Congressional club and Berea college, Kentucky. The leading illustrated article of this number is by Dr. Albert Shaw, whose timely and interesting papers in other numbers on modern municipal governments will be remembered. In this paper he describes the rise of a new metropolis—"Budapest."

A paper also of timely interest, in view of the approaching presidential campaign, is Joseph B. Bishop's article on "Early Political Caricature in America," which is illustrated by fine examples of caricatures which were famous in their day. "Mount Saint Elias Revisited" is a description by Israel C. Russell of the United States Geological Survey, of his second attempt to reach the summit of that famous pinnacle. In the article entitled "Land of the Living Cliff-Dwellers," Lieutenant Frederick Schwatka describes his first visit among the half-civilized and wild branches of the Indians of California.

AN illustrated summer article of curious interest is a paper by the late J. B. Holder on "The Great Unknown," namely, the famous and much mooted question, "Mr. Stedman's poetical essay deals in many fashion with the 'Melancholia' of the poets." Among the poems may be specially mentioned a ballad by James Jeffrey Roche, editor of the Boston Pilot, on the "The Fight of the Armstrong Privateer."
