BLAINE IS DEAD.

AN EVENTFUL CAREER.

A Sketch of Mr. Blaine's Life as Told in Brief Form.

1865 Began to take a prominent part in the work of reconstructing the Confederate states.

1869 Chosen speaker of the House of Representatives, and was re-elected speaker by the next two Congresses.

1874 The Democrats having gained control of the House, Mr. Blaine became the leader of the minority.

1876 The most prominent candidate for the presidential nomination on June 11, the Sunday before the convention, was prostrated by the heat when entering his church. At the convention he only lacked twenty-eight votes of the majority, but was defeated by the consolidation of his opponents. Was appointed to the United States Senate to fill the unexpired term caused by the resignation of Senator Morrill.

1880 Again a prominent candidate for the presidential nomination. When Garfield was elected he was offered and accepted the state portfolio.

1881 Retired from the cabinet on Dec. 19, after inaugurating several measures which were calculated to secure to the benefit of the United States.

1882 Began to write his historical work, entitled "Twenty Years of Congress," on which he labored four years.

1884 Nominated for the presidency, but was defeated at the polls and retired to his home in Augusta and continued writing his book.

1886 Took an active part in the Maine campaign, delivering a series of speeches upon the fisheries question.

1888 Went to Europe in poor health and had an attack of illness while in Florence. Sent two letters from Europe which were widely read and which, under any circumstances, he returned in the fall and delivered several speeches in favor of General Harrison's candidacy.

1889 Appointed secretary of state and began to interest himself at once in the affairs of the world. He was in Great Britain and other international affairs.

1890 Formulated his reciprocity ideas, which were incorporated in the tariff act of that year, and in commercial treaties with several countries.

1892 Resigned as secretary of state in June and spent the summer at Bar Harbor. In October he made a speech at Ophi farm, on his way to Washington, where he has since resided.

OVER IN WYOMING.

One Ballot for Senator Was Taken with No Change.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Jan. 27.—[Special.]—But one ballot was taken today for senator, both branches adjourning upon the announcement of Blaine's death. There was but little change from yesterday's ballot. Mr. New's friends made loud claims before the ballot that his vote would increase, but he failed to gain on yesterday's vote and only received 11 votes. The five Populists voted for William Brown, who claim they will stand out for and finally elect. Warren received but 12 of the Republican votes.

The Cheyenne Leader, the leading Democratic paper of the state, opposed New's candidacy today, and his chance of securing the place is rapidly diminishing. A decisive ballot is not expected for several days.

The House Committee on Rules Have Agreed Upon a Plan.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The House committee on rules, but for the early adjournment of the House today, would have reported during the afternoon a series of resolutions, one providing for an investigation of the Panama scandal and Pacific Mail Steamship company; the other providing for an investigation of the Whiskey trust. The first resolution provides for the appointment of a special committee of five members which shall investigate the charge that there was an American corruption fund as a part of the Panama scandal, now agitating France. It shall also investigate the Panama railroad and ascertain whether our commerce is in any way injuriously restrained.

The Pacific Mail company is also to be investigated to ascertain if it has made contracts with transcontinental railroad companies, which put it under their control; whether it receives a subsidy from them to send freight overland, notwithstanding it gets a subsidy from the United States in order to foster commerce by ocean routes, and whether the United States is thereby injured.

The Whiskey act trust investigation is to be conducted by the judiciary committee, substantially as proposed by Mr. Burrows.

The proposition to authorize the commissioner of pensions to employ medical examiners over the pension office to act as examining surgeons of pensions and abolish the board of examining surgeons was also rejected.

THE LATE JUSTICE LAMAR.

Funeral Occurred at Macon—Eulogies Pronounced by Members of the Bar.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 27.—The funeral of the late supreme justice, L. Q. C. Lamar, occurred this afternoon. In the morning eulogies were pronounced at the opera house by the members of the state bar. Then services were held at the Methodist church where the funeral sermon was preached by Dr. Chandler, president of Emory college. The services were wholly satisfactory. Eulogies were present. Thousands of people were unable to gain admission to the church. Other thousands gathered along the route to the cemetery where the remains were deposited.

A public meeting was held under the auspices of the Georgia Bar association prior to the religious ceremonies. Resolutions were adopted by the association. Brief eulogies were also delivered by Attorney-General Terrell, Judge Bartlett and Judge Speer, and other distinguished jurists.

WORLD'S FAIR INFORMATION.

The following general information is given out by the Utah World's fair commission:

All accepted exhibits will be taken to Chicago and returned free of charge to the exhibitor. Exhibitors contributing exhibits should state whether they desire their exhibits to be credited to the territory. The commission will, however, accept donations of this character in the name of the territory, and will see that the exhibits are returned to the territory. The standard of excellence is very high. The executive commissioner will finally pass upon all exhibits (except those intended for export) for credit to the territory, and from his decision there is no appeal.

The secretary of the commission will promptly answer all letters of inquiry from residents of the territory in regard to railroad rates and board and lodging at Chicago, and will endeavor as far as possible to assist visitors to obtain rooms and board at reasonable rates. Parties making inquiries should state when they expect to visit the exposition, how many rooms they want and about how much they are willing to pay per day.

It is the intention to ship the exhibits from this territory to Chicago about March 1, and all intending exhibitors should place their exhibits in charge of the executive commissioner before that date.

The Utah building will be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies either just before or just after the opening of the World's fair. On that day a special program of exercises will be arranged, in which the governor and leading citizens, assisted by all Utah visitors, will take part.

If possible, it is the intention to give a grand choral concert in the grand musical hall by a selected choir of several hundred Utah people.
