

AFFAIRS OF THE CITY.

Waiting Decision as to the Mayor's Power of Removal.

NO MORE APPOINTMENTS.

THE PROPOSED BOARD OF FIRE COMMISSIONERS.

Captain Donnell Approves of the Plan—The Mayor's Annual Message Expected at the Next Council Meeting—The Work in the Different Departments.

The seekers after office will be forced to content themselves with the present condition of affairs for another week at least, for the very simple reason that Mayor Baekin will send in no new appointments on Tuesday night, having decided to await the settlement of the question raised by Councilman Young as to his exclusive right to remove appointive officials.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

On Tuesday night it is confidently expected that he mayor will submit his annual message to the Council. The document has been in course of preparation for some time past but was greatly delayed on account of the absence of the heads of departments in attending to their respective duties.

A Board of Three to Control the Fire Department.

Within the next few days a bill will be introduced in the house of Representatives providing for the creation of a board of fire commissioners for every city of the first and second classes in this territory, which shall have complete control of the fire departments of their respective cities, including the appointment of the chiefs and all other members of the department.

Delinquent Paving Tax.

During the coming week the delinquent paving tax for the West Temple and State street paving districts will be published and the date of sale given. The Main street and First and Second South streets districts have also been designated for the past week a considerable amount of the taxes have been paid and the advertisements will not be published for some time to come.

WHAT TARIFF REFORM WILL DO.

The remark of a great American statesman, seventy years ago, that "the greatest want of civilization is a market for the surplus of the labor of its members," was never as true of any people as it is today true of the people of the United States.

Transfers of Water Scrip.

Assessor and Collector of Water Rates Deihl has had a comparatively quiet week, as in fact, have all of the city departments, although the transfers of water scrip have been above the average.

Waterworks Department.

The pay roll of the waterworks department for the week just ended amounted to $400, there being employed but twenty-five men. The department has been engaged in making repairs and keeping the source of the city water supply and the general system of water works in a clean and wholesome condition.

For Over Fifty Years.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Worth Double the Money.

Send at once to John Sebastian, G. T. A. C. R. L. & P. R. R., Chicago, Ill., and receive postage paid, the almost double quantity of your favorite ten cent cents per pack, in stamps or coin.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

Minion pipe type in first class condition, any quantity up to 2,000 pounds. Apply at this office.

IN RAILROAD CIRCLES.

Superintendent Bancroft and Mr. Eccles Return Home.

THE ALLEGED REDUCTION.

APPARENTLY THE REPORT IS WITHOUT FOUNDATION.

The Copper Plant Switch—Meeting of the Local Freight Agents' Association Held Yesterday—Sale of the Midwinter Fair Tickets—Railway Notes.

Burst Water Main Claims.

It is hardly probable that the joint committee on waterworks and claims, which has under consideration the claims for damages alleged to have been sustained through the bursting of a water main near the corner of Main street and the railroad tracks, will have any further business to do with the subject by the next meeting of the city council, as the evidence taken at the recent investigation has not been made known to the committee, and it is very possible that the report of the committee will not be in conformity with that of the attorney.

Long on Food Inspectors.

This city is still long on food inspectors. The city council refused to give up the office to the successful applicant by the mayor and confirmed by the city council. Both Kendall and McAllister have been at work during the past week and for the second time both papers went into the archives of the board pending the settlement of the matter. Notwithstanding the fact that he was bounced by both the mayor and city council, Kendall is of the opinion that he will be re-appointed and has given notice that he intends to hold on to the office until his term of office expires in November next, holding himself responsible for the amount of his old time salary.

Engineer's Department.

The only field work done by the engineer's department was running the lines and setting the stakes for the west side boulevard extension. The field force has been entirely cut off and the department is now in a state of inactivity.

Freight Agents' Banquet.

The local freight agents' association held a meeting yesterday at which the following roads doing business in Utah were represented: Union Pacific, Rio Grande Western, Southern Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande, Northwestern, Rock Island, Burlington, Missouri Pacific, Milwaukee, Santa Fe, and Midland. The meeting was held at the office of Chairman Griffin, in the Union National bank block and Mr. Griffin presided. The reporter was invited to hold state chambers proceedings and interviewed several of the members, but without result. The principal object of this organization seems to be to hold state chambers proceedings and maintain secrecy. They do not consider the public, upon whom they rely for support, as entitled to any information as to what may occur at their august assemblages.

Local Life Insurance Representatives Enjoy a Luncheon.

Local managers and agents of the various life insurance companies met at the Knutsford yesterday and partook of an elegant luncheon which had been prepared for them. It is hardly necessary to say that the occasion was a merry one, for the joy of the life insurance agent is proverbial. Besides the usual routine of business, the following were present: Director Wiesendonk and C. J. H. Child, of the Germania; those present at the luncheon were: Louis Hyman, of the National Life; Charles E. Brubaker, of the Germania Life; L. B. Smith, of the Northwestern Life; L. Loda, of the United Life; J. E. Roberts, of the Penn Mutual Life; J. O. Irwin, of the Germania; C. J. O. J. H. W. of the Kansas Mutual; George W. Gehring, of the Home Life; F. M. Bishop, of the Kansas Mutual.

BACK FROM DENVER.

Freight Agent Eccles, of the Union Pacific, Home Again. Assistant General Freight Agent S. W. Eccles, of the Union Pacific, returned yesterday afternoon from a trip over the Wyoming division of the "Pictorial Line." Mr. Eccles spent a day in Denver and the result is an incident revival in business at the Colorado capital.

Rio Grande Earnings.

In his report of the earnings of the Denver & Rio Grande road for the third week in January, Auditor Murphy shows the following:

Table with 2 columns: Item and Amount. Freight, 187,894.18; Passenger, 14,800.00; Express, mail, etc., 12,500.00. Total, $215,194.18. Decrease, $46,000.00, or 21.41-100 per cent. For the fiscal year to date: Freight, 2,827,819.84; Passenger, 235,713.16; Express, mail, etc., 424,500.00. Total, $3,488,033.00. Decrease, $1,724,137.00, or 31.42-100 per cent.

Midwinter Tickets.

D. B. Gray, general agent of the Southern Pacific, in this city, announces that he has turned over the sale of railroad tickets for the midwinter fair to the Union Pacific and Rio Grande Western local offices and will not hereafter handle any of that business.

Railway Notes.

The Sanpete Valley Railway company have lately received a new engine, a new passenger coach, ten new freight cars and a number of cattle cars.—Ephraim Enterprise.

O'Neil and Koffman, of Kansas City, shipped a train load of cattle and hogs from this point last Friday. They left about $7,000 in this city. Ole Olsen, of this city, did the buying for them.—Ephraim Enterprise.

Why Cleopatra Hated Herod.

A musty and staid volume rested upon the desk of Representative John De Witt Warner in the House the other day. It was an old edition of the works of Josephus, printed in large type with the ample margin around its broad folios that bespeak its ancient workmanship. In this book Mr. Warner had made a find. "Every student of Shakespeare," said Mr. Warner, "remembers that in the play of 'Anthony and Cleopatra' a singular reference occurs to King Herod. Alexis says to Cleopatra: 'Good Majesty, Herod of Jewry does not look upon you but as a woman who is well pleased.' 'Immediately Cleopatra became very angry. 'That Herod's head I'll have,' she exclaims. 'Nobody, as far as I have been able to find, has ever explained why Cleopatra should become thus excited and resentful at the mention of the name of Herod. Nearly all the commentators of Shakespeare say that the reference is to a miracle play in which Herod, on account of the slaughter of the innocents, was treated as a bogey, so to speak, and that Cleopatra shared this sentiment. But here is a paragraph in Josephus which makes the reference more clear. It reads: 'Herod was called the Great because he was the son of Augustus Caesar after the battle of Actium, and is talking to him about Antony. In the course of his speech he had to tell Herod that he was his enemy. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cleopatra, even before she had been killed, and naturally Antony had confided in his advice. I was able when I was no longer to assist him in the war. I told him that there was but one way for him to recover his affairs, and that was to kill Cleopatra, and I promised him that if she were dead, I would afford him money for his credit, but his affection for Cleopatra proved his ruin.' 'See how plain this makes it,' said Mr. Warner. 'Herod had been advising Antony to leave Cle