THE POLITICAL ARENA

Gus Sends the Faithful a Confidential Letter.

APPEALS TO THE FAITHFUL

WANTS TO MAKE THE BEST SHOWING POSSIBLE.

Says This Will Not Be the Last Election in Utah and Intimates Some People Will Be Remembered.

The Ladies' Silver Mass Meeting at the Theatre Tonight—Political Notes.

Gus Holmes has written a letter; a confidential and sincerely yours letter. In the language of the late George Pepper Norris, it is "hot dog."

Gus admits that the contest is a serious one, the result of which depends upon the amount of hustling which is done. He wants the women interested, and where the poor ladies cannot get away from their work in the day time, have them go out and hustle after night.

Gus does not want the voters to do any scratching. Either vote the McKinley ticket straight or the Independent Republican ticket straight. He wants good, capable people at the polls to influence the voters.

Perhaps Gus' letter will be better than any explanation of the same, so here it is in abridgment:
W. C. Holmes, Chairman, S. B. Westhead, Secretary, S. F. Walker, Treasurer.

Headquarters—County Republican Committee, 46 E. Second South Street, Salt Lake City, Utah, October 26, 1896.

Mr. J. Greenwell, city:
Dear Sir—No doubt you appreciate the great importance of most earnest work this, the last week prior to election.

Your past services are much appreciated, but it is necessary that renewed effort at this time. We are confronted with a serious contest, the result of which will depend entirely upon the thoroughness of our methods from now until the close of the polls.

Will you kindly call your assistants together at once; have them see every voter, if possible, in your precinct before Monday night. Interest women in your canvass also. Where they cannot call on the day before, have them make their visits in the evening. Urge voters to do no scratching. Put the "X" at the end either of the "Beehive" (for Bryan and Sewall), or the "Eagle" (for McKinley and Hobart), and stop at that. Show them a sample ballot, explain the danger of scratching the same. Secure the very best acquainted and most capable men and women for work at the polls, and have them meet every voter they arrive on election day.

Have good, capable men and women to explain the ballot, and influence the voter in behalf of the entire ticket, inside the Republican headquarters, where they are to be seen every day. This is a fight where our love for Republicanism, pride and patriotism is alone our compensation; however, this will not be the last election in Utah, and your reward will come, no doubt.

We leave your precinct in your hands, and believe the responsibility is well placed. Don't stop until you have thoroughly completed the work. Meet every voter on election day. If possible, and as often as you can during the week. We propose to take up a collection on the day of election from the voters to pay any expenses incurred that day in your precinct.

In conclusion, let me say: Do everything possible to inspire confidence and awaken enthusiasm with the voter. They will spread it to good effect. Our opponents have their election already decided with their own hands by their apathy, and they will win by the ballot.

Wishing you unbounded success, I am, confidentially and sincerely yours,
W. C. HOLMES.

Please do the work as quietly as possible.

Ben Harbour admits that he has thought of several men who would make good senators and can name a dozen, but as far as being pledged, there is not a word of truth in it.

George A. Whitaker declares he has not been asked for any candidate, friend or acquaintance, much less given a pledge himself.

The same is true of D. O. Rideout. E. W. Wilson authorizes the expression of his opinion to no man; and a statement of the kind is untrue.

Mrs. La Barthe is unperturbed; says she has no candidate yet, and will not have until after election, when she may have some view of her own as to the best one for the place.

George Romney, Jr., Heber Benion, J. E. Taylor, James Thompson and Daniel Mangum have no pledges to fulfill.

S. A. Kenner denies that anyone has ever suggested the idea to him. He is unpledged.

The assertions which are made of this character are unfounded and untrue. No attention should be paid to them whatever.

The balance of the aggregation are wandering away somewhere, but will be produced in a day or two, for the purpose of argument alone. It is supposed that John D. Spencer is in hiding, practicing a new song entitled, "Who will care for Corbin now?"

On the board in front of Peery's brokerage office on Second South street yesterday was a red chalk sign which read: "Six hundred to five hundred that McKinley carries New York."

Joe Lippman wandered into the office and asked: "Is that bet on the square?"

"You bet your life it is," was the answer.

"Well, then, I will take it," said Joe. "Just wait a moment," replied Peery, "until I telephone."

Then he rang up the bell.

"Hello, central, give me the toll room. Hello, toll room, I want Ogden; Lindsay Rogers' office."

"What kind of a game are you giving me?" inquired the toll room.

"Well, you see, old man, this is some of Hanna's money that Lindsay is betting and I have to ask him about it."

"Hello, Ogden, is that Mr. Rogers' office, yes, is there? Out, you say? Where is he? Ah, don't know, eh? How soon will he be back? Ah, you'll let me know later. Thanks, say, Mr. Lippman, I will have to wait awhile."

Joe went out and good talking with some friends, when Peery came and said Rogers was in Terrace and he would have to telegraph. "Oh, rats," was the rejoinder.

"You fellows have no money to bet at all, or are simply running a bluff. I have the cash here and if you want to bet, why don't you have your money ready instead of telegraphing all over Utah for Lindsay Rogers?"

Later in the afternoon, Peery was seen erasing a line that read: "Six hundred to five hundred that McKinley carries California."

"Has that been taken?" asked a bystander.

"No, that bet has been withdrawn."

But if Peery only knew it, Lippman didn't have a cent, and he didn't want to call a McKinley bet just make a bluff and it is as good as cash.

All ladies who are to hear the election returns should attend the Lyceum theater on Tuesday evening, where the Democratic state committee has made arrangements for holding a sample ballot, explaining the same, and the price of admission has been placed at 50 and 25 cents, and tickets can be obtained at the headquarters of the committee at the box office.

Judge Powers stated yesterday that he had not made any agreement with "any man, woman or child, or living thing to vote for Joe Lippman for the legislature; that he has told no one that he will vote for him; that he has not dreamed of Lippman asking him to vote for him; and that the reasons why his statement should be accepted as absolute truth is because Lippman is not going to be elected, and he is not going to stand on a earthly show, and that with a man who has nothing toicker there can be no trade made.

On Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock there will be a meeting of ladies of this city at the Lyceum theater, which will be addressed by Judge Powers. Every lady in the city is invited to attend and hear the address upon the living issues of the day.

There has been a great deal of talk about the Democratic candidates for the legislature being pledged to vote for certain people for United States senator, in the event the election in this county is favorable to themselves.

The Herald has been endeavoring to ascertain if this is a fact, and is enabled to state that there is not a word of truth in the rumor. Hon. John T. Calne declared that as far as he is concerned he is not pledged to no man; that he has not given the matter any serious consideration as yet, believing that the time to cross a bridge is when it is reached.

Mrs. Dr. Cannon is unpledged, and declares she will think about a candidate for senator after the election.

Ben Harbour admits that he has thought of several men who would make good senators and can name a dozen, but as far as being pledged, there is not a word of truth in it.

To the Public:
It has been circulated that my object in running for county treasurer was to forward the interest of W. S. McCormick, and if elected that I would not give the work my personal attention. As to the first, Mr. McCormick never solicited me to be, or even suggested the fact of my name as a candidate for office. As to the second, should I be elected, I will give my personal attention to the duties devolving upon me. Respectfully,
STEPHEN H. LYNCH.

"CHURCH INFLUENCE."
Report That It Is Being Used in Idaho.

AN EMPHATIC DENIAL MADE
BISHOP CANNON DENUNCES IT AS A "CAMPAIGN LIE."

A Leading Editorial in Last Night's Deseret News Says the Mormons Will Vote According to Their Conscience, Leaving Out All Questions of Religion or Church Membership.

(Special to The Herald.)
POCATELLO, Oct. 30.—The report circulated here and throughout the Mormon country of the state, that President Woodruff had issued instructions to the Mormons of Idaho to support McKinley, could not be verified in Pocatello. Bishop C. J. Cannon, in an interview today, stated that no such order had been received by the Mormon authorities, and scouted the idea that intelligent voters would follow such a course, and believes it to be simply a campaign lie. The Democrats and silver Republicans are somewhat exercised over the report, however, and unless a denial of the report is forthcoming, it may result seriously to the silver cause in Idaho. The Mormon vote is estimated at 5,000 in the state.

The Herald has not believed that there was any foundation for the report coming from Idaho that church influence was being exerted in the campaign in that state. However, those who claim to have had a long and intimate foundation for the rumor, will find reason for dismissing their fears upon reading the following from the Deseret Evening News of the 30th, the official organ of the Mormon church:

THE IDAHO CANARD AGAIN.
The "church interference" bugaboo in Idaho is still being worked on there, and a dispatch in the Salt Lake morning papers asserts that "Hon. William Budge" has stated in public meetings that "the Mormons were instructed not to vote for Bryan, but to vote for McKinley," or any other candidate, so far as any church influence is concerned. The news does not state from whom the exact language the speakers referred to may have used, if he spoke on the subject at all, but it is a matter of common acquaintance with the gentlemen named as one of the accused parties, and from a knowledge of his character, it is reasonable to say that he has made no such statement. Possibly he or somebody else may have said that "the Mormons were instructed to vote for Bryan," and if he did, that is true. So far as the church is concerned, the Mormons have never been instructed to vote for anyone, and will not be so instructed in the future.

It will be observed that the transportation of the Mormons from their homes to the place where they are to vote, and the making all the difference in the world, and shaming politicians and rank partisans who have been so long and so loudly crying for a free ballot, free election. They have done things equally as bad in the Idaho campaign this year, as noted in Thursday's News. And what is more, the fact that "the Mormons have not been instructed to vote for Bryan, but to vote for McKinley," or any other candidate, so far as any church influence is concerned, is a matter of common acquaintance with the gentlemen named as one of the accused parties, and from a knowledge of his character, it is reasonable to say that he has made no such statement. Possibly he or somebody else may have said that "the Mormons were instructed to vote for Bryan," and if he did, that is true. So far as the church is concerned, the Mormons have never been instructed to vote for anyone, and will not be so instructed in the future.

Mr. Straton's Bel.
It is Said to Have Been Covered by New York Parties.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Oct. 30.—The biggest bona fide election bet of the present campaign is about to be concluded here.

W. S. Straton, the millionaire mine owner of Cripple Creek, a few days ago, offered to take a bet of $50,000 on Bryan against $50,000 on McKinley. Straton's offer to bet this large sum was telegraphed to the United Associated Presses, and through that medium was given the widest circulation and publicity.

Mr. Straton's offer has been the chief topic of conversation since it was made, but none of the local business managers or capitalists evinced any disposition to cover the money. The bet, however, was made by the New York parties, and it is believed that the bet has been taken by outsiders. Telegrams were received here today that the bet has been taken, and that the money is in a transportation.

Straton has expressed the view that if he wins the bet, he will place the winnings to the credit of the Colorado Springs Free Press library, a charity which he has instituted.

THE POLITICAL SCENARIO.
A very enthusiastic non-partisan political meeting was held at the Y. M. C. A. last evening under the auspices of the Political scenario.

The question, "Resolved that the United States should open its mines to the free and unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1," was ably discussed by J. S. Fowler for the affirmative and Parley P. Jensen for the negative.

Both young men presented good stock arguments in an interesting manner. The audience was allowed to decide the debate, the affirmative winning by one vote. Other features of the programme were orations on Bryan and McKinley by Messrs. G. M. Spicer and W. Soule respectively, and a humorous recitation by R. H. Bower. The club meets regularly Friday nights.

Judge Powers returned from the east yesterday confident of the success of the Democratic ticket. He has worked hard while away and made many addresses, but appears as fresh as ever.

Despite the fact that he had barely time in which to get his business matters adjusted, the judge consented to address a ladies' meeting at the home of Mrs. Fisher S. Harris, in the afternoon, where he talked to a house full at 7 o'clock, the ladies listening attentively to all that was said.

Judge Powers' address was a non-partisan one and was devoted to the main issue before the people today, the money question.

On covering his trip to the east, Judge Powers related the following to a reporter of The Herald yesterday afternoon: "What do you think of the prospects for the election of Mr. Bryan, as based on your observations while east?" asked the reporter.

"I come back as confident as I can be of anything, that Mr. Bryan will be elected. Of course, there is a good, fair opportunity for me to be mistaken, but I cannot see that there are likely to be many surprises. However, I had access to the best means of information possessed by the Democratic party. I was permitted to see the polls of Iowa, Nebraska, and Illinois, and if I judge anything from these polls then each state will be carried by Bryan. My own judgment is, however, that McKinley will secure Iowa, owing to the fact that the golding Democrats, instead of voting for McKinley, will vote for Bryan, and I believe that it will be all right."

"I have substantially answered that question in replying to the former one. I may say in addition that there is every indication in Nebraska that the Republicans themselves believe that Bryan will have the state. Their principal organ is now urging the Silver Republicans to vote the local ticket, which indicates that they believe the national ticket is doomed to defeat. There seems to be the best of ground for the claim made that Nebraska will give her electoral vote to Bryan. The size of his majority is problematical. I do not think that it will be large, but it will be all-sufficient. There are indications that well-informed Republicans have no longer hope of carrying the state for McKinley. Our people are not receding any more in their devotion to the silver cause, and the Democracy is the genuine thing and that they were entitled to have the word Democrat placed after the names of their electors, will lose as many votes, but the difficulty will not come so far as possible. The ticket there, like that in Wyoming, has no emblems. Many ballots will have to be marked by the judges in order to enable voters who cannot read to vote. The committee is distributing sample ballots among illiterate voters who will, with the aid of friends, mark those ballots before election day. Then, when they come to vote they will take their marked sample ballots into the booth with them, and spreading them down by the official ballot, they will be able to put their X marks in the right places without help. This plan ought to be tried in Wyoming."

(Special to The Herald.)
CHEYENNE, Oct. 30.—The largest and most enthusiastic meeting of the campaign in this city was held here tonight by the Democrats. Ex-Governor Osborne, who has been in the city for some time, and for over two hours he kept the 1,500 people in his audience applauding his arguments for free silver, and his denunciation of the policy of the present administration. He quoted from Mandell's silver speech in congress and contrasted with the arguments he advanced last winter for silver, those he is now advancing for bi-metalism by international agreement.

In an interview with Governor Osborne he stated that the same enthusiasm shown here had attended his meetings in all parts of the state, and he was confident of the election of the entire Democratic ticket in Wyoming.

OSBORNE AT WORK.
He Feels Certain of the Election of the Entire Democratic Ticket in Wyoming.

(Special to The Herald.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Warren Lewis, who is trying to bring Corbett and Fitzsimmons together before the new club at Coney Island, saw Martha Julian yesterday in regard to his offer of $15,000 for the fight. Lewis told Julian that he wanted to pull the mill off in January next; that he had Corbett's consent to fight; Julian said that Fitzsimmons was matched to meet Tom Sharkey on December 9 at San Francisco, and that it would be impossible for the champion to meet Corbett at that time, as he might injure himself against Sharkey. However, he agreed to allow Fitzsimmons to fight Corbett five weeks later, providing Lewis posted the entire purse with a reliable sporting man, and agreed to split the money in case something should happen to prevent the battle from coming off. Julian also insisted that the articles of agreement must call for a battle to a finish.

"Lewis refused to post the money," said Julian later. The impression is that Lewis will be unable to carry out the contract, as the authorities will not permit the men to battle there.

RAILROAD VOTE.
A Herald Correspondent Forecasts the Result—Sees in Kansas City. (Special to The Herald.)

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 30.—The Herald correspondent calls now, on the eve of election, give out such an estimate of the railroad vote as will, after the election, be found to be approximately correct, and in Bryan's favor to an extent not dreamed of by the opposition. The estimate does not include the office men, taking in only engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen, switchmen, operators, shopmen and laborers. Of this army of voters, 80 per cent. west of the river will vote for Bryan. In Illinois, 75 per cent. Balance, east of the river, 60 per cent. As a whole, 70 per cent. of the railroad vote as enumerated will go to Bryan, regardless of the so-called railway men's "money" club and the wearing of McKinley buttons.

John M. Palmer spoke here tonight in the opera house and fully one-half the audience was for Bryan. A gold standard orator got the floor of the 11 o'clock exchange during the noon hour, and hundreds of brokers and commission men gave him the "money he has," compelling him to desert. The stock yards are sold for Bryan and Bryanites will have a monster parade here tomorrow night with 20,000 people in line; 5,000 Missouri farmers on horseback will join them. "Bryan will be elected."
