de la Torre, Princess Kotchoubin, the comtesse de Arville, and Mesdames de Arville, the Comtesse de Flores, Eugene, Chalomet, Rocamier and St. Didier.

Among the missing.

The missing who are supposed to be dead, include General Meunier, the Marchioness de Galigne, the Duchesse de Arville, the Comtesse de Flores, St. Pierrel, the Marchioness de Flores, the Viscountess Honol Holstein, Baroness Mackan, wife of the leader of the Protestants in the chamber of deputies and Madame Morlaing, her son and two daughters. One hundred corpses have been laid out in the Palais de L'Industrie. It is believed that another hundred are beneath the ruins.

The building was erected in the flimsiest manner, the nudity of the scaffolding inside being concealed by tapestry of the most inflammable description.

Moreover, there was only one exit. The fire broke out at 4 o'clock the cry of fire rose in the quarter where the cinematograph was being exhibited. One of the survivors tells the correspondent of the Associated Press his experience:

"The place was crammed full of people. The men were stifling. Being very uncomfortable my friends and I determined to leave, but somehow we could not make much headway through the throng toward the door. I stayed a little while, but as it was getting late, I was forced to leave. I was followed by a tall, thin, thin man, of a sudden, the shout of fire was raised. Instantly all was commotion.

"We tried to keep cool, but the rush from behind forced us forward, and we were separated. Then I tried to work my way back but I was carried off by the crowd. I was carried backward and forward in the swaying crowd. I lost my hat; then my coat was torn off, and then my waistcoat. All this happened in a few seconds.

SPREAD RAPIDLY. "Immediately the full extent of the calamity dawned upon us. The flames spread with startling rapidity throughout the whole building, which crumbled like a living furnace, but the uproar of the conflagration could not drown the screams and cries of the agonized crowd.

"Gradually I found myself pushed back against the wall of the building. I finally succeeded in scrambling through an opening made by some of those who were near me. Two seconds later I would have been a victim for I had not time to get to the hole before I heard a dreadful crash as the blazing roof fell in.

"I cannot describe the struggle which followed. No words can depict the horror of it. I seem to see myself look back upon it a hideous nightmare. The whole thing was over in 12 minutes and nothing remained but the charred and smoldering ruins. I was one of the dead who were piled in heaps and especially near the exit where the charred remains were five feet deep. In some places the bodies remained with no vestige of clothing."

LIKE WILDFIRE. The firemen arrived at 8 and a company of infantry followed to clear the ruins and search for corpses. The news spread like wildfire. All the cabinet ministers now in Paris went immediately to the scene. Hundreds of equipages streamed along the Champs Elysees, and their occupants all anxious and with tear-stained faces, inquired for their missing relatives.

There were many heart-rending scenes of grief. One lady rushed about frantically calling for her daughter by name. Someone told her that she was safe, whereupon she jumped, danced, screamed, then rushed to the coachman to tell him to drive home and fell in a dead swoon.

A third imagined in her frenzy that she recognized her daughter's dress, and hysterically called upon her husband to bring her back. He was told that the child from going to the bazaar. Cabinet ministers, ambassadors, noblemen and members of the highest social and financial circles were seen in the streets with the lowest and the poorest, anxiously inquiring for their missing relatives.

About 30 were saved by Pere Amboise and Father L'Herminier, who helped them over the wall with the ladder to the roof of the building. The staff of the Hotel Du Palais lent valuable assistance and saved 150 persons around the Palais de L'Industrie.

The bazaar, where while the hotel employees were carrying away the bodies they saw three persons burned to death.

PICKING UP THE REMAINS. Policemen have been directed by the prefect of police to pick out the portions of remains and to wrap them in pieces of cloth to be transferred in ambulances to the Daladier to be buried. The remains present a horrible spectacle of limbs burned and twisted. On all sides can be seen stretchers piled high with charred corpses, skulls split open and brains exuding. Just behind a heap of corpses lies alone the body of a woman. The face is downward, the hair is down, the brain exposed and from the empty sockets of the eyes the brains are slowly exuding. The arms and legs are burned off.

A little further off is the body of a man whose face is entirely blackened and the head missing. It is a ghastly sight.

The building was constructed about 200 feet long by 150 feet wide, and constructed almost entirely of wood. Except for the crowd of people are gathering around the scene of the fire at 7:30 p. m.

Among them are a large number of historical scenes and the indications are that among the dead are a number of the French aristocracy.

Twenty corpses and a number of seriously injured are now in the right wing of the Palais de L'Industrie.

Admiral Bernard, the minister of marine, arrived upon the scene shortly after 7 o'clock. Further details just obtained show that before the firemen could arrive the roof of the bazaar crashed in carrying numbers of those who had been unable to make their way across from the building.

Very soon after the alarm was given assistance hurried to the burning bazaar and effected a rescue of many of the firemen and policemen. Although a general alarm was sent out with reasonable promptness, the whole directed the operations of the firemen could not be so successful.

THE ROOF FALLS. The roof and almost the whole building collapsed, falling upon the unfortunate people, many of whom are supposed to have previously succumbed to suffocation.

In spite of the efforts of the firemen some time elapsed before the charred bodies could be pulled from the smoke, and burning masses of debris covering the spot which but a short time before had been the scene of so much agony.

The prefect, M. Lepine, was one of the first officials to reach the scene, and immediately ordered the recovery of the bodies and distributed the injured among the various houses in the vicinity. In the meanwhile the patients died on the burning ruins.

As the work progressed and the inquiries became more numerous, and possibly it was seen that the death toll would be much higher than at first estimated.

Among the injured are the Duchesse de la Torre, Princess Kotchoubin, the comtesse de Arville, and Mesdames de Arville, the Comtesse de Flores, Eugene, Chalomet, Rocamier and St. Didier.

Among the missing.

The missing who are supposed to be dead, include General Meunier, the Marchioness de Galigne, the Duchesse de Arville, the Comtesse de Flores, St. Pierrel, the Marchioness de Flores, the Viscountess Honol Holstein, Baroness Mackan, wife of the leader of the Protestants in the chamber of deputies and Madame Morlaing, her son and two daughters. SOLO SMITH IS GIVEN THE FIGHT

He and Flaherty Fight to the Limit in New York.

BOTH OF THEM FRESH AT THE END

THESE TWO MEN HAD NEVER MET BEFORE.

Both, However, Had Met Dixon—Smith Goes to His Knees Several Times in Order to Avoid Flaherty's Rushes—Flaherty Was Surely the Aggressor in the Last Round—Turf Events and Baseball Games of Yesterday.

New York, May 4.—Solo Smith of Los Angeles, Cal., and Martin Flaherty of Lowell, Mass., met tonight in a 25-round glove contest at 122 pounds before the Broadway Athletic club.

Both fought to the limit and each of them was ready and willing to continue to the end of the 25th round, but the referee decided in favor of the western man, although Smith had dropped to his knees frequently during the bout to avoid Flaherty's rushes. These two men had never met before, but each had met George Dixon. Flaherty in his three meetings with Dixon secured a draw each time, while Smith was defeated in his only contest with Dixon.

In the 20th round Smith led with a wild left swing, but Flaherty dodged and clinched and Smith went to the floor on one knee. Twice in the 21st round Smith dropped to his knees to avoid Flaherty's rushes. The second time Flaherty fell on top of him. In the 22d he slugged, clinched and wrestled. Smith was rushed to the ropes.

A little later he knelt again to avoid a rush. In the 23d Flaherty dazed Smith with a stiff left jab on the mouth, but failed to follow up his advantage. He rushed Smith to the ropes, where they clinched. Smith again sought the floor to save himself, but the 24th Flaherty uppercut with a left on the face and rushed Smith to the ropes, where Solo again went to his knees. Solo jabbed a left on the head twice. Martin swung a left on the face and rushed Smith around. They rushed into several clinches and Martin jabbed a left on the mouth and then on the wind, and the Californian grunted.

The 25th round was the last and saw Flaherty the aggressor, Smith dodging and clinching.

Busy Time For Boxers. San Francisco, May 4.—This will be a busy month for the boxers, as no less than three local clubs have arranged entertainments in the field. The Olympic club is first in the field with an entertainment on May 13. Joe Gans and Mike Leonard will furnish one of the bouts, and one past performance should put up an interesting contest.

Max Baker, the Chicagoan, and big Jim Jeffries, hailed by some as the coming champion, will also figure on the Olympic club's programme. It is probable that this will be the star contest on all the coast.

McKeever, the Philadelphia writer weight, who is to box George Green before the National club towards the latter part of the month, is on his way here from Chicago. The date of this match has not been fixed, but it is understood that McKeever has requested Frank P. Slavin to fight under the California Athletic club's auspices on May 24. The man he is to be pitted against is known as "Thunderbolt" and is a local fighter.

NEW TARIFF BILL IS SUBMITTED

Greatly to the Surprise of the Congressmen.

EVERYBODY HAD LOOKED FOR DELAY

IT IS RADICALLY DIFFERENT FROM DINGLEY'S BILL.

Practically Amounts to Another Measure—Many of the Most Important Schedules Have Been Rewritten Entirely—Will Probably Be About Six Weeks' Debate on It—Will Be Called Up May 18.

Washington, May 4.—The tariff bill was reported to the senate today to the surprise of senators and the public.

"When the senate finance committee met today the idea prevailed that the bill would be held in committee for two days.

All the members of the committee were present. The Democrats examined the bill for nearly an hour, making running comments on it.

They announced that they were against the bill as a whole. They soon understood that Senator Jones of Nevada was going to vote with the Republicans, and realized that there was no possibility of changing the bill. They had no desire to make any factious opposition and when a motion was made by the Republicans to report the bill at once the vote was taken promptly. All the Republicans, with Senator Jones of Nevada, voted for the motion and all the Democrats voted against it. The vote standing 6 to 5. Late in the day Senator Aldrich announced that he would call up the bill on Tuesday, May 18.

The Republican members of the committee said there is no statement to be made now as to the effect of the bill, the amount of revenue to be raised by it, or the reductions. When the bill is taken up, the effect of leaving the present law standing and avoid discussion to a great extent.

"It will raise revenue enough," was the comment of Senator Allison, and it was asserted by Senator Aldrich. They estimated, however, that the increased revenue to be raised from beer would be $11,000,000, and from tea $10,000,000.

Senator Jones of Arkansas, the Democratic tariff leader, said that he expected there would be about six weeks' debate on the bill.

Several sections in the last part of the Dingley bill which re-enacted the tariff law, are stricken out. This will have the effect of leaving the present law standing and avoid discussion to a great extent.

The new bill is radically different from the Dingley bill, practically amounting to another measure. Many important schedules were rewritten entirely.

The Bill. Washington, May 4.—The tariff
