

NAVAL REVIEW AT SPITHEAD

Most Magnificent Display of Naval Strength.

THE BROOKLYN A GREAT ATTRACTION

ILLUMINATIONS AT NIGHT WERE BEYOND COMPARE.

Night Dark, the Waters of the Solent Quiet, it Was All Gaily, Fantastic, Suggestive of Fairyland and the Weird of Magic.

Hyde, Isle of Wight, June 26.—The most magnificent display of naval strength ever witnessed occurred off Spithead today, the occasion being the grand naval review in honor of the completion of the 60th year of the reign of Queen Victoria.

The most modern ships present on the occasion were the Gallathea, Imperieuse and Conqueror. The fleet was composed of 156 vessels, the personnel of 45,000 officers and men.

During the past decade enormous advances have been made both in the building and construction of the ships of the royal navy, and this cannot be better exemplified than by the fact that the engine of the torpedo boat destroyer, the first of its class, was built by the Prince of Wales, in behalf of the queen, today, four only took part in the jubilee ceremony of 1887, whilst of the present, not one existed in 1887.

Isle of Wight, June 26.—The illuminations of the fleet at Spithead was one of the most charming sights of a week of delightful spectacles. The night was dark, and the waters of the Solent were quiet. It was all gaily, fantastic, suggestive of fairyland and the weird of magic.

Each maritime nation sent an admiral in his flagship to witness the review. They were followed by the British battleships, where they were favorably placed to compare their own naval architecture with that of other nations.

An interesting feature of the British fleet was the training ships, which were the first to be seen in the review ground up to the harbor named for the official inspection.

Following the precedent of former naval reviews, there was free access to the review ground up to the harbor named for the official inspection.

After luncheon on board at 2:30, the Victoria and Albert, with the principal royal yacht, the Albion, for Spithead, were followed by the yacht Irene, by the Pando, the Carthage and the Elin, an admiralty yacht with Hon. George J. Goschen, first lord of the treasury, on board.

The purpose of this naval exhibition was not to be overlooked, however, and the might of Britain, its ever-prepared strength, and its resources, were shown to the starting thousands.

A signal rocket leaped from the Renown, and now there was provided an exhibition of what it would be like if, leaving the harbor, the fleet of battleships and cruisers should engage at night.

A royal salute of 60 guns was fired from every ship capable of firing it. Great guns opened fire, and the muzzles of each gun opened in a prolonged roar, rising and falling in intensity as more or less of them fired together. It was truly a sight to behold.

The British warships, moored opposite the British line, joined the cannonade, and to the superstitious there was the deep-throated rumble of the guns, a note of defiance, a resolute answer, gun for gun. Yet all was in honor of Victoria.

On the occasion of the visit of the Italian squadron to Spithead in 1885, when they were welcomed by a fleet of English ships, the electric searchlights formed one of the prettiest features of the fest.

The naval guests include Rear Admiral H. H. Fox Pomeroy and his wife, Sir K. G. Vice-Admiral H. R. H. the duke of Genoa, Rear Admiral Miller, U. S. N., and other distinguished flag officers.

Banquets, balls, garden parties, dockyard visits and athletic sports will be included in the programme which it is supposed will fill the week subsequent to the review.

International exhibitions have become common occurrences, and the Spithead review of 1887 may be regarded as a great international naval exhibition from which, doubtless, the seamen and constructors of the various nations will carry away much valuable information.

The waters of the Solent have previously witnessed many magnificent reviews of the naval forces of England. On April 25, 1867, the close of the Crimean war, a great review was held there when there were columns of screw line-up battleships—at that period the latest development of naval power—of screw frigates and corvettes, a fleet of side-wheel vessels, and of "floating batteries" of the Merrimack type, while four squadrons of 100 gunboats brought up the total number of ships to 243.

This fleet carried 3,002 guns and was of 30,671 horse-power. Admiral Sir George S. Pomeroy was in chief command of this fleet, which was reviewed by her majesty on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert.

The changes in naval architecture which have taken place during the last few years have swept away all these wooden vessels, the classes to which they belong no longer exist, the sole remaining vessel which still takes the name and retains the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, which today fits the standard of the Prince of Wales at the naval review. Probably a more beautiful vessel of her class has never been launched, and the present announcement that the model of a new steel yacht to replace her has been submitted to the queen was not read without regret.

Table listing ship names and their respective classes, such as Cruisers, Second-class, and various other vessels.

During the past decade enormous advances have been made both in the building and construction of the ships of the royal navy, and this cannot be better exemplified than by the fact that the engine of the torpedo boat destroyer, the first of its class, was built by the Prince of Wales, in behalf of the queen, today, four only took part in the jubilee ceremony of 1887, whilst of the present, not one existed in 1887.

GHOSLY SHIPS.

The illuminations of the fleet at Spithead was one of the most charming sights of a week of delightful spectacles. The night was dark, and the waters of the Solent were quiet.

A signal rocket leaped from the Renown, and now there was provided an exhibition of what it would be like if, leaving the harbor, the fleet of battleships and cruisers should engage at night.

A royal salute of 60 guns was fired from every ship capable of firing it. Great guns opened fire, and the muzzles of each gun opened in a prolonged roar, rising and falling in intensity as more or less of them fired together.

The British warships, moored opposite the British line, joined the cannonade, and to the superstitious there was the deep-throated rumble of the guns, a note of defiance, a resolute answer, gun for gun.

On the occasion of the visit of the Italian squadron to Spithead in 1885, when they were welcomed by a fleet of English ships, the electric searchlights formed one of the prettiest features of the fest.

The naval guests include Rear Admiral H. H. Fox Pomeroy and his wife, Sir K. G. Vice-Admiral H. R. H. the duke of Genoa, Rear Admiral Miller, U. S. N., and other distinguished flag officers.

Banquets, balls, garden parties, dockyard visits and athletic sports will be included in the programme which it is supposed will fill the week subsequent to the review.

International exhibitions have become common occurrences, and the Spithead review of 1887 may be regarded as a great international naval exhibition from which, doubtless, the seamen and constructors of the various nations will carry away much valuable information.

The waters of the Solent have previously witnessed many magnificent reviews of the naval forces of England. On April 25, 1867, the close of the Crimean war, a great review was held there when there were columns of screw line-up battleships—at that period the latest development of naval power—of screw frigates and corvettes, a fleet of side-wheel vessels, and of "floating batteries" of the Merrimack type, while four squadrons of 100 gunboats brought up the total number of ships to 243.

This fleet carried 3,002 guns and was of 30,671 horse-power. Admiral Sir George S. Pomeroy was in chief command of this fleet, which was reviewed by her majesty on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert.

The changes in naval architecture which have taken place during the last few years have swept away all these wooden vessels, the classes to which they belong no longer exist, the sole remaining vessel which still takes the name and retains the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, which today fits the standard of the Prince of Wales at the naval review.

Probably a more beautiful vessel of her class has never been launched, and the present announcement that the model of a new steel yacht to replace her has been submitted to the queen was not read without regret.

The illuminations of the fleet at Spithead was one of the most charming sights of a week of delightful spectacles. The night was dark, and the waters of the Solent were quiet.

A signal rocket leaped from the Renown, and now there was provided an exhibition of what it would be like if, leaving the harbor, the fleet of battleships and cruisers should engage at night.

A royal salute of 60 guns was fired from every ship capable of firing it. Great guns opened fire, and the muzzles of each gun opened in a prolonged roar, rising and falling in intensity as more or less of them fired together.

The British warships, moored opposite the British line, joined the cannonade, and to the superstitious there was the deep-throated rumble of the guns, a note of defiance, a resolute answer, gun for gun.

On the occasion of the visit of the Italian squadron to Spithead in 1885, when they were welcomed by a fleet of English ships, the electric searchlights formed one of the prettiest features of the fest.

The naval guests include Rear Admiral H. H. Fox Pomeroy and his wife, Sir K. G. Vice-Admiral H. R. H. the duke of Genoa, Rear Admiral Miller, U. S. N., and other distinguished flag officers.

Banquets, balls, garden parties, dockyard visits and athletic sports will be included in the programme which it is supposed will fill the week subsequent to the review.

International exhibitions have become common occurrences, and the Spithead review of 1887 may be regarded as a great international naval exhibition from which, doubtless, the seamen and constructors of the various nations will carry away much valuable information.

Table listing ship names and their respective classes, such as Cruisers, Second-class, and various other vessels.

During the past decade enormous advances have been made both in the building and construction of the ships of the royal navy, and this cannot be better exemplified than by the fact that the engine of the torpedo boat destroyer, the first of its class, was built by the Prince of Wales, in behalf of the queen, today, four only took part in the jubilee ceremony of 1887, whilst of the present, not one existed in 1887.

Isle of Wight, June 26.—The illuminations of the fleet at Spithead was one of the most charming sights of a week of delightful spectacles. The night was dark, and the waters of the Solent were quiet.

A signal rocket leaped from the Renown, and now there was provided an exhibition of what it would be like if, leaving the harbor, the fleet of battleships and cruisers should engage at night.

A royal salute of 60 guns was fired from every ship capable of firing it. Great guns opened fire, and the muzzles of each gun opened in a prolonged roar, rising and falling in intensity as more or less of them fired together.

The British warships, moored opposite the British line, joined the cannonade, and to the superstitious there was the deep-throated rumble of the guns, a note of defiance, a resolute answer, gun for gun.

On the occasion of the visit of the Italian squadron to Spithead in 1885, when they were welcomed by a fleet of English ships, the electric searchlights formed one of the prettiest features of the fest.

The naval guests include Rear Admiral H. H. Fox Pomeroy and his wife, Sir K. G. Vice-Admiral H. R. H. the duke of Genoa, Rear Admiral Miller, U. S. N., and other distinguished flag officers.

Banquets, balls, garden parties, dockyard visits and athletic sports will be included in the programme which it is supposed will fill the week subsequent to the review.

International exhibitions have become common occurrences, and the Spithead review of 1887 may be regarded as a great international naval exhibition from which, doubtless, the seamen and constructors of the various nations will carry away much valuable information.

The waters of the Solent have previously witnessed many magnificent reviews of the naval forces of England. On April 25, 1867, the close of the Crimean war, a great review was held there when there were columns of screw line-up battleships—at that period the latest development of naval power—of screw frigates and corvettes, a fleet of side-wheel vessels, and of "floating batteries" of the Merrimack type, while four squadrons of 100 gunboats brought up the total number of ships to 243.

This fleet carried 3,002 guns and was of 30,671 horse-power. Admiral Sir George S. Pomeroy was in chief command of this fleet, which was reviewed by her majesty on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert.

The changes in naval architecture which have taken place during the last few years have swept away all these wooden vessels, the classes to which they belong no longer exist, the sole remaining vessel which still takes the name and retains the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, which today fits the standard of the Prince of Wales at the naval review.

Probably a more beautiful vessel of her class has never been launched, and the present announcement that the model of a new steel yacht to replace her has been submitted to the queen was not read without regret.

The illuminations of the fleet at Spithead was one of the most charming sights of a week of delightful spectacles. The night was dark, and the waters of the Solent were quiet.

A signal rocket leaped from the Renown, and now there was provided an exhibition of what it would be like if, leaving the harbor, the fleet of battleships and cruisers should engage at night.

A royal salute of 60 guns was fired from every ship capable of firing it. Great guns opened fire, and the muzzles of each gun opened in a prolonged roar, rising and falling in intensity as more or less of them fired together.

The British warships, moored opposite the British line, joined the cannonade, and to the superstitious there was the deep-throated rumble of the guns, a note of defiance, a resolute answer, gun for gun.

On the occasion of the visit of the Italian squadron to Spithead in 1885, when they were welcomed by a fleet of English ships, the electric searchlights formed one of the prettiest features of the fest.

The naval guests include Rear Admiral H. H. Fox Pomeroy and his wife, Sir K. G. Vice-Admiral H. R. H. the duke of Genoa, Rear Admiral Miller, U. S. N., and other distinguished flag officers.

Banquets, balls, garden parties, dockyard visits and athletic sports will be included in the programme which it is supposed will fill the week subsequent to the review.

International exhibitions have become common occurrences, and the Spithead review of 1887 may be regarded as a great international naval exhibition from which, doubtless, the seamen and constructors of the various nations will carry away much valuable information.

The waters of the Solent have previously witnessed many magnificent reviews of the naval forces of England. On April 25, 1867, the close of the Crimean war, a great review was held there when there were columns of screw line-up battleships—at that period the latest development of naval power—of screw frigates and corvettes, a fleet of side-wheel vessels, and of "floating batteries" of the Merrimack type, while four squadrons of 100 gunboats brought up the total number of ships to 243.

This fleet carried 3,002 guns and was of 30,671 horse-power. Admiral Sir George S. Pomeroy was in chief command of this fleet, which was reviewed by her majesty on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert.

The changes in naval architecture which have taken place during the last few years have swept away all these wooden vessels, the classes to which they belong no longer exist, the sole remaining vessel which still takes the name and retains the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, which today fits the standard of the Prince of Wales at the naval review.

AN ABRUPT AND STARTLING HALT

Senator Pettigrew Stricken in the Midst of a Vehement Speech.

HAS PARALYSIS OF THE VOCAL CHORDS

AVE-LIKE FEELING LEADS TO AN EARLY ADJOURNMENT.

"If to Be a Protectionist Means to Vote a Duty of 700 Per Cent on Silk, Then I Am a Protectionist Only in Spots; If, to Be a Protectionist, a Man Must Vote for a Duty on Sugar, Purely and Absolutely for the Benefit of a Gigantic and Corrupt Trust, Then Am I a Protectionist Only in Spots."

Washington, June 26.—An abrupt and startling halt in the tariff debate occurred in the senate at 2:30 today when in the midst of a passionate speech, Senator Pettigrew, silver Republican of South Dakota, was stricken with paralysis of the vocal chord, which brought his vehement speech to a close with a sentence half uttered.

Although he took his seat unaided, his associates, by a unanimous vote, were quickly by his side, and he was brought to his feet, and taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

The senate adjourned at 3 o'clock, the speaker being unable to take the passage through the bill, the purpose being to dispose of the tariff bill.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

Mr. Pettigrew's illness was very sudden, and he was unable to utter a word. He was taken to his room, where he was attended by his friends.

THE REICHSTAG HAS ADJOURNED

Prussian Diet, However, Will Hold on Till July.

CABINET CHANGES ARE IMPENDING

NO ONE SEEMS TO BE PARTICULARLY ANXIOUS FOR OFFICE.

Meeting of Emperor William and King Leopold of Belgium at Kiel is Said to Be Not Entirely Devoid of Political Significance.

Berlin, June 26.—The reichstag has adjourned for the summer, but the Prussian diet will remain in session until late in July.

The cabinet committee of the upper house of the diet passed the association bill on Friday in the mutilated form adopted by the lower house, but with an addition to the effect that associations in which there are anarchistic or social democratic movements, or movements aiming to overthrow the existing government, or to separate part of the territory of the state from the whole, coming to light in a manner dangerous to public security, especially the carrying out of the act, shall be dissolved by the police.

The diet is almost certain to pass the bill in this form, which is more consonant with the wishes of the government, which desires a measure repressing all opposition meetings and all opposition agitation, but there is no chance of its reaching the emperor's signature in its amended form.

It is interesting to note the cropping out of the deep-seated animosity between the two bodies in the reichstag, and the fact that the Prussian diet, the Conservative leader, referred, amid applause, to the "misguided, blinded majority of the reichstag, and speaker of the Prussian diet, who is acting in kind, Herr Richter, the Radical leader, spoke in scathing terms of the "aimless permanent cabinet crisis."

Los Angeles, Cal., June 26.—Mayor Sawyer has appointed the following delegates to the gold mining convention to be held in Denver July 7, 8 and 9:

F. Garbutt, H. W. Russell, E. W. Edmondson, J. D. Stockdale, O. P. Pusey, D. E. Lane, E. A. Forrester, E. M. Wade, E. L. Doherty, H. J. Fleishman and J. H. Stumacher.

Will See Denver Today and Glenwood Tomorrow.

Denver, June 26.—Forty-eight Montanans and Utah editors arrived here at a late hour tonight, over the Rio Grande, to attend the convention tomorrow morning a trolley ride arranged by a local committee of newspaper men will be taken including the most interesting portions of the city, and after dinner a mixed programme of entertainment will be carried out. At 8 o'clock tomorrow night the editors will start for the trip to the mountains at Greenwood Springs on Monday.

WOODFORD'S APPOINTMENT.

Report General That it Means Much to Spain.

Havana, June 26.—La Lucha, commenting upon the appointment of General Woodford as minister to Spain, says that the general carried with him some important documents from President McKinley, and that the appointment has caused a certain amount of excitement, as indicating the possibility of direct or indirect intervention in Cuba upon the part of the United States.

The editorial attack of the Imperialist of Madrid upon the con of General Fitzhugh Lee, the United States consul general in Madrid, is being followed with being implicated in the premature publication of his father's report of the results of the investigation into the case of the Spanish minister, and that they have both declined. Now it is asserted that Herr von Bismarck, successor of the German minister, and that Dr. von Bismarck, retaining a government appointment, is negotiating for the position of president of one of the largest of the German banks, at three times his present salary, just as Herr Bismarck, who a few days ago resigned the presidency of the imperial insurance institutions, becomes chief of one of the largest of the insurance institutions at four times the salary he was getting. In private conversation Prince Hohenzollern, the imperial minister, is reported to have been being tried in the fall.

The meeting of Emperor William and King Leopold of Belgium at Kiel is not the only political event of the week. They will discuss the Congo and other African problems touching both Germany and Belgium, such as the slave trade in the Congo basin, the Congo empire to personally attend the Brussels exposition. By rejecting the invitation of the Hamburg senate to attend the international show, and by avoiding the Hamburg territory, the emperor and king are avoiding the possibility of a personal attack upon the emperor by the Hamburg senate.

The Socialists are to hold a convention at Hamburg on Oct. 3, the principal point for discussion being the Prussian diet election. The Socialists are to hold a convention at Hamburg on Oct. 3, the principal point for discussion being the Prussian diet election.

At the war academy of Potsdam, two of the oldest pupils have fought a severe duel with the knowledge and approval of their superiors. Both were severely wounded about the head, and one of them will probably die.

Mr. John H. Jackson, secretary of the United States consular office at Kiel, is reported to have been in Berlin, where he was previously in Berlin, where he was previously in Berlin, where he was previously in Berlin.

LASSITER GOING AWAY.

Has Asked to be Relieved From Duty With the U. S. G. U.

Lieutenant Lassiter, of the Sixteenth Infantry, who has been on duty with the National Guard since its formation, has asked to be relieved from duty and be returned to his regiment. Lieutenant Lassiter expects a promotion to captain not later than August 8, and wishes to be relieved from duty with the National Guard. In this connection it may be said that the efficiency of the regiment of the National Guard is a matter of great concern to the public and military authorities, and that the members of the organization, in this city and elsewhere, who have profited by the labor, will be very sorry to see of this change. In connection with the matter of Lassiter's resignation, it is expected that Lieutenant Lassiter, a brother of Governor Wells, will be relieved from duty with the National Guard, and that Lassiter will announce his preference in that direction.

Los Angeles Delegates.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 26.—Mayor Sawyer has appointed the following delegates to the gold mining convention to be held in Denver July 7, 8 and 9:

No. 10

CURES

Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach, Squemishness, Heart-Burn, Water-Brush, Rising of Food, Bitter Taste, Flatulence, Billousness, Gout, Constipation, Jaundice, Liver Spots, Bad Complexion, Conted Tongue, Offensive Breath.

You have tried "77" for Grip and Colds, now try No. 10 for Dyspepsia.

Use SPECIFIC No. 4 for Teething, Colic, Craying, Wakefulness of Infants.

All druggists, or sent for 25c, 50c, or $1. MEDICAL BOOK.—Dr. Humphrey's Homoeopathic Manual of all Diseases, 1000 pages, 10c. Sold by the publishers, J. C. Williams and John Stearns, New York.

Lassiter expects a promotion to captain not later than August 8, and wishes to be relieved from duty with the National Guard. In this connection it may be said that the efficiency of the regiment of the National Guard is a matter of great concern to the public and military authorities, and that the members of the organization, in this city and elsewhere, who have profited by the labor, will be very sorry to see of this change. In connection with the matter of Lassiter's resignation, it is expected that Lieutenant Lassiter, a brother of Governor Wells, will be relieved from duty with the National Guard, and that Lassiter will announce his preference in that direction.

Los Angeles Delegates.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 26.—Mayor Sawyer has appointed the following delegates to the gold mining convention to be held in Denver July 7, 8 and 9:

F. Garbutt, H. W. Russell, E. W. Edmondson, J. D. Stockdale, O. P. Pusey, D. E. Lane, E. A. Forrester, E. M. Wade, E. L. Doherty, H. J. Fleishman and J. H. Stumacher.

Will See Denver Today and Glenwood Tomorrow.

Denver, June 26.—Forty-eight Montanans and Utah editors arrived here at a late hour tonight, over the Rio Grande, to attend the convention tomorrow morning a trolley ride arranged by a local committee of newspaper men will be taken including the most interesting portions of the city, and after dinner a mixed programme of entertainment will be carried out. At 8 o'clock tomorrow night the editors will start for the trip to the mountains at Greenwood Springs on Monday.

WOODFORD'S APPOINTMENT.

Report General That it Means Much to Spain.

Havana, June 26.—La Lucha, commenting upon the appointment of General Woodford as minister to Spain, says that the general carried with him some important documents from President McKinley, and that the appointment has caused a certain amount of excitement, as indicating the possibility of direct or indirect intervention in Cuba upon the part of the United States.

The editorial attack of the Imperialist of Madrid upon the con of General Fitzhugh Lee, the United States consul general in Madrid, is being followed with being implicated in the premature publication of his father's report of the results of the investigation into the case of the Spanish minister, and that they have both declined. Now it is asserted that Herr von Bismarck, successor of the German minister, and that Dr. von Bismarck, retaining a government appointment, is negotiating for the position of president of one of the largest of the German banks, at three times his present salary, just as Herr Bismarck, who a few days ago resigned the presidency of the imperial insurance institutions, becomes chief of one of the largest of the insurance institutions at four times the salary he was getting. In private conversation Prince Hohenzollern, the imperial minister, is reported to have been being tried in the fall.

The meeting of Emperor William and King Leopold of Belgium at Kiel is not the only political event of the week. They will discuss the Congo and other African problems touching both Germany and Belgium, such as the slave trade in the Congo basin, the Congo empire to personally attend the Brussels exposition. By rejecting the invitation of the Hamburg senate to attend the international show, and by avoiding the Hamburg territory, the emperor and king are avoiding the possibility of a personal attack upon the emperor by the Hamburg senate.

The Socialists are to hold a convention at Hamburg on Oct. 3, the principal point for discussion being the Prussian diet election. The Socialists are to hold a convention at Hamburg on Oct. 3, the principal point for discussion being the Prussian diet election.

At the war academy of Potsdam, two of the oldest pupils have fought a severe duel with the knowledge and approval of their superiors. Both were severely wounded about the head, and one of them will probably die.

Mr. John H. Jackson, secretary of the United States consular office at Kiel, is reported to have been in Berlin, where he was previously in Berlin, where he was previously in Berlin, where he was previously in Berlin.

LASSITER GOING AWAY.

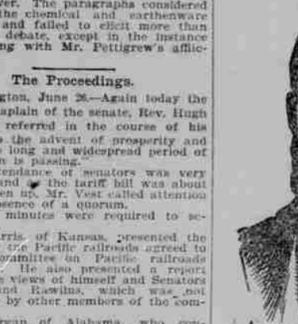

Has Asked to be Relieved From Duty With the U. S. G. U.

Lieutenant Lassiter, of the Sixteenth Infantry, who has been on duty with the National Guard since its formation, has asked to be relieved from duty and be returned to his regiment. Lieutenant Lassiter expects a promotion to captain not later than August 8, and wishes to be relieved from duty with the National Guard. In this connection it may be said that the efficiency of the regiment of the National Guard is a matter of great concern to the public and military authorities, and that the members of the organization, in this city and elsewhere, who have profited by the labor, will be very sorry to see of this change. In connection with the matter of Lassiter's resignation, it is expected that Lieutenant Lassiter, a brother of Governor Wells, will be relieved from duty with the National Guard, and that Lassiter will announce his preference in that direction.

Los Angeles Delegates.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 26.—Mayor Sawyer has appointed the following delegates to the gold mining convention to be held in Denver July 7, 8 and 9:

F. Garbutt, H. W. Russell, E. W. Edmondson, J. D. Stockdale, O. P. Pusey, D. E. Lane, E. A. Forrester, E. M. Wade, E. L. Doherty, H. J. Fleishman and J. H. Stumacher.

Senator Pettigrew.

