

TARIFF BILL IS STILL UNCERTAIN

No Agreement For a Final Vote Yet Reached.

ALLISON IS GETTING ANXIOUS

TEST OF ENDURANCE SEEMS TO BE IN SIGHT.

In Some Respects the Senate Made Good Progress Yesterday, Disposing of Two Amendments—Teller Expected to Be Derived—Teller Arranges to Wood Alcohol Trust, Which Has Its Tentacles Upon the Body of the People.

Washington, July 5.—Senator Allison, in charge of the tariff bill announced shortly before the adjournment of the senate tonight that no agreement had been reached for a final vote on the tariff bill, he would ask the senate to remain in session tomorrow night, at least until the bill was reported from the committee table to the senate. This promises a test of endurance, unless the opposition to the bill gives way.

Mr. Allison's statement was made after the vote on the tariff bill. In some respects the senate made good progress today, disposing of two amendments, that placing a stamp tax on the manufacture of stock by the commission, and without the formality of a vote, while the Spooner amendment, proposing a tariff investigation, was withdrawn after a protracted struggle.

The stamp amendment agreed to, fixes the following rates: Bonds, certificates or securities of indebtedness issued after Sept. 15, 1897, by any association, company or corporation on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 5 cents; and on each original issue, whether an organization or reorganization of certificates of stock by any such association, company or corporation, on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 2 cents. Exemptions from the stamp taxes are made in the case of certain utility and national bonds and the stocks and bonds of co-operative building associations.

MAINTLE OF MONTANA. Late in the day several other amendments from individual senators were voted on. One by Mr. McKim of Montana, reducing the internal revenue tax on distilled spirits to 70 cents per gallon, was defeated—23 to 31.

An amendment by Mr. Mills of Texas, proposing a tax of 5 per cent on manufactured products, the proceeds to go toward reducing the bonded debt, was rejected—19 to 38. Also an amendment by Mr. Mills granting 20 per cent reduction in duties to those countries admitting gold and silver to their mints at the rate of 16 to 1—yeas, 26; nays, 21.

On this vote one Republican, Mr. Carter, voted with the Democrats, Populists and Silver Republicans in the affirmative, and one Democrat, Mr. Caffery, and one voted with the Republicans in the negative.

Mr. Mills moved to amend paragraph 23-D by striking out "books of all kinds," his purpose being to place books on the free list—rejected, 18 to 23.

An effort by Mr. Mills to have the 18th admitted free was defeated. The 19th paragraph was inserted in the free list.

"Waivers for agricultural use, or for covering or holding pharmaceutical preparations." A local discussion ensued as to the legality of the provision that un-stamped bonds, etc., shall be utterly void and shall not be used in evidence.

The stamp amendment, as a whole, was finally agreed to in a viva voce vote, no call for an aye and nay vote being made.

The "No" response was light and came from the Democratic side of the chamber.

TARIFF INQUIRY.

Mr. Allison proposed the amendment heretofore offered by Mr. Spooner for a tariff inquiry by three members of the board of commissioners.

Mr. Teller took occasion in this connection to criticize the committee for first transforming the house bill and then going back in substance to the house rates, and he asked to know what amount of revenue the bill would yield, and he said he would be glad to have the chairman, Mr. Allison, throw sunlight on the matter.

This brought Mr. Allison to his feet for the first definite statement as to the revenue expected to be derived. He said he had not the time to call any expert to make exact calculations on the amount of revenue a tariff bill would yield. It had never been done and never would be done.

But from the best information available, he proceeded Mr. Allison, "I believe this bill will yield $175,000,000 to $180,000,000 the first year; that is, from July 1, 1897, to July 1, 1898.

He said the schedules had been gone over at every stage as successive changes were made, and he felt that this estimate could be safely made. It applied only to the first year, after which there would be a much larger yield of revenue.

"How much the second year?" queried Mr. W. H. Clegg.

"It depends," answered Mr. Allison. "But I will say something over $200,000,000."

"How much over the present law?" asked Mr. Stewart of Nevada.

"About $60,000,000," replied Mr. Allison. "But it will depend upon the condition of our industries. It is not possible to make more than a general estimate."

Mr. Vest remarked that the average value of the bill would be much higher than that of the existing law. The McKinley ad valorem being 45 per cent, the existing law 35 per cent, while the estimate on the house bill was 57 per cent.

Mr. Allison said the average ad valorem of the bill in its final form would be in the neighborhood of 50 per cent.

Mr. Teller of Colorado again got the floor at this point. He criticized the estimate of the amount of revenue the bill would produce, which had been offered by the committee, and referred to the admission that means must be found outside of the bill as it came from the house to supply the deficit. He spoke of the various provisions the finance committee had advanced and abandoned. The beer tax, he said, would not have cost the consumer a single cent. It would have been borne by the beer manufacturers, who had been prosperous throughout the years of industrial stagnation.

"But" continued Mr. Teller, "a great relief was coming in one of the states of the United States where a large portion of the voting population did not believe in a tax on beer, so it was sacrificed."

TELLER'S ARGUMENT. Mr. Teller argued that there were other methods of raising revenue without laying inordinate taxes on the necessities of life. He said he had once been greatly impressed with a remark of Mr. Allison to the effect that he had

ALCOHOL TRUST ARRANGED.

Mr. Lindsey of Kentucky followed with a severe arraignment of the wood alcohol trust, which he said was costing millions a year by the duty of $2.50 per gallon on its product on the one hand, and the high internal revenue tax on the other. He said it did not have to pay on the one hand, and the high internal revenue tax on the other.

Mr. Allen criticized the amendment as designed to provide a partisan tariff which would be relied upon to make a jug-handle republic.

Mr. Spooner defended his amendment, which, he said, Mr. Allen had either not read or had completely misunderstood. He said the amendment was not a partisan tariff, but a measure to make a jug-handle republic.

Mr. White of California thought the proposed amendment would be unwise. He thought the amendment was a declaration of the failure of the bill.

Mr. Caffery criticized the methods of making up the commission.

Mr. Allen contended that the Populist party, which, he said, was growing rapidly, should have representation on a tariff commission.

Mr. Morgan contended that the commission amendment on the ground that congress had no right to delegate its powers. He drifted into a general discussion of the bill.

Mr. Allison briefly answered the criticism of the Spooner amendment, and then said that in view of the opposition to the amendment, he would withdraw it.

Two Peasants Have an Adventure Over a Glass of Milk.

A funny story of the King of Belgium is given by the administrator of the English mission, during one of his walks abroad, stopped at a small farm-house—where the people were Flemish—and asked for a glass of milk. While waiting for the milk, he conversed with his companions in the English tongue.

As he was in the act of drinking the milk, the woman, not knowing the king, said that he was a good-looking fellow, and he was a good-looking fellow.

A local discussion ensued as to the legality of the provision that un-stamped bonds, etc., shall be utterly void and shall not be used in evidence.

The stamp amendment, as a whole, was finally agreed to in a viva voce vote, no call for an aye and nay vote being made.

"Red-Headed Sucker" and "Mullet-Headed Buzzard" Who Had Sold the Populist Party of Tennessee Every Time He Could, Expressions Call Out a Very Lively Fight—One Man Raps the Other With a Cane.

Nashville, Tenn., July 5.—The national conference of the people's party met here today. The conference was called to order by Milton Parks, of Texas, who said this was a conference of men who believe in the principles enunciated at Omaha and St. Louis—in Populist straight.

J. S. Bradley of Texas, was elected temporary chairman by acclamation. He said he wanted to see plain, unmistakable declarations that all one could expect from a Populist was a man of making them effective. He trusted there would be no recriminations.

The conference took a recess of 20 minutes, and meetings of the state and local committees were held. When the conference was again called to order, there were about 600 delegates present.

The committee on credentials was announced and a motion made to call the roll for the naming of the committee on resolutions and permanent organization.

A motion to adjourn until 1 o'clock was carried.

The afternoon session of the Populist conference was called to order at 1:30 o'clock and ex-Governor John P. Buchanan delivered an address of welcome.

The report of the committee on credentials showed that 50 delegates with proper credentials were present as follows:

Alabama, 28; Arkansas, 14; Florida, 12; Georgia, 25; Illinois, 24; Indiana, 12; Iowa, 4; Kansas, 2; Kentucky, 9; Louisiana, 15; Michigan, 12; Minnesota, 10; Missouri, 12; Montana, 2; Nebraska, 2; New Hampshire, 1; North Carolina, 2; Ohio, 12; Rhode Island, 1; Tennessee, 13; Texas, 30; Washington, 1; West Virginia, 1; Wisconsin, 10.

The temporary organization was made permanent.

A committee on resolutions, consisting of one member from each state, was elected.

Alabama, W. H. Howard; Arkansas, W. S. Morgan; Florida, F. H. Lytle; Georgia, W. L. Peck; Illinois, J. H. Carter; Indiana, N. H. Moore; Iowa, J. O. Bebee; Kentucky, A. H. Cardin; Louisiana, A. A. Gunby; Michigan, James E. McBride; Minnesota, Isaac

McDonald; Missouri, W. P. Hatfield; Nebraska, J. P. Dines; Montana, W. M. Holden; New Hampshire, J. J. Streeter; North Carolina, G. B. Rogers; Ohio, J. S. Harris; Rhode Island, J. N. Arnold; Tennessee, A. L. Sims; Texas, Harry Tracy; Washington, F. N. May; West Virginia, J. W. Shull; Wisconsin, Robert C. Johnson.

During the afternoon a number of brief speeches were made by delegates, and several resolutions were submitted.

The grand stand performance of the afternoon was given by Lindsey of Nashville and John H. McDowell of Union City, Tenn.

In talk on Tennessee Populism, McDowell referred to Lindsey, whose whippers were very red, as a red-headed devil.

McDowell could not stand that, and he mounted the speaker's desk and rapped the red-headed devil with a cane. Lindsey struck him and the two men clinched. They were separated, however, before any serious damage was done. It seemed that the two have been on bad terms for many years.

The majority of the delegates are opposed to fusion, but some lively times were had when the general committee on resolutions reported tomorrow.
