MONTANA FIELD WORK WAS VERY POOR.

Ogden Hit Sporer Freely and Hard, While Beck with Allowed But Six Hits and These Well Scattered—Ogden's Field Work Was Clean—On Local Fields Today.

(Special Correspondence)
Ogden, Sept. 1.—Today's ball game with the Billings nine was almost the reverse of the game yesterday. The Montana boys could get only three runs to twelve for the Ogdens. This was partly due to the better work of the home nine and partly to a deterioration in the play of the visitors. Their pitcher, Sporer, threw a much weaker game than McNeeley and was battered freely by the Ogden hitters.

FOOTING THE BILLS

Volunteer Celebration Committees Allow Accounts.
BALANCE CAUSES DEBATE
SUGGESTIONS MADE AS TO ITS DISPOSAL.

Some Members Want One Thing and Some Another—Effort Will Be Made to Find Out What the Contributors Would Like Done With the Money—Will Have $3,000.

The executive committee of the volunteer celebration held a meeting in Governor Wells' office at the joint building yesterday. Chairman Morris of the finance committee was detained at home on account of illness, but Deputy Treasurer Bateman was on hand to represent him.

Many Bills Approved.
Bills to the amount of $4,568.24 were approved and ordered paid. The items were sub-divided as follows:

Transportation $2,276 75
Entertainment 99 99
Programs 25 00
Decorations 1,633 50

Other bills, which have not yet been presented will be estimated, making a total of $1,000. If this figure should prove correct there will be a balance of about $3,568. There was considerable informal discussion as to what should be done with this amount.

Theodore Bruback was of the opinion that the money should be distributed pro rata among the subscribers to the fund. His proposition to this effect met with no sympathy from the committee. The sentiment was general that the citizens who had made donations do so without any idea of getting anything back.

A large majority of the committee would prefer to see their money put into something that would be a tangible evidence of the appreciation in which the state holds its volunteers. A suggestion that met with considerable favor was that the cash be used in taking care of Utah volunteers who were new in regular organizations, and who will be coming back from time to time.

Red Cross Idea.
Another idea was to turn the balance over to the Red Cross society for distribution among destitute families. If there be any volunteers who gave up their lives for their country. It was said that the Red Cross would cheerfully undertake this work and that the money went where it would do the most good.

Jerrold R. Letcher proposed, and was favorably received, that the money plus a nucleus for a monument fund or a fund with which to erect a handsome memorial arch in some suitable place in memory of the boys living and dead. This, he argued, would prove an inspiration to the rising generation and teach them a daily lesson of patriotism. None of the suggestions was put in such form that it could be voted on. The committee will endeavor in some way to ascertain the wishes of the subscribers to the fund before taking any action. It is possible that each subscriber will be mailed a request for his or her idea as to the best method of using the money.

Another meeting of the committee has been called for next Thursday at which time it is believed some definite action will be taken.

The meeting authorized Chairman Barnes of the committee on decorations to make a list of the names of the boys who were killed in the original expedition. It is possible that each subscriber will be mailed a request for his or her idea as to the best method of using the money.

At a special meeting of the board of county commissioners held yesterday, County Clerk Dunbar submitted his monthly statement, showing the receipts of his office for August. The figures were as follows:

District court receipts $48 55
Marriage licenses 127 50
Incorporations 213 80
Probate matters 125 00
Merchants' licenses 182 50
Miscellaneous 8 00
Total $1,244.60

The report was referred to the county auditor.

Commissioner Woolley brought up the question of abolishing the office of county fruit tree inspector. He gave it as his opinion that the people had too much of this office, and that the discussion did not result in any action.

Mrs. Jennie B. Whipple, matron of the county infirmary, submitted a report for August. It showed that there were seventy-nine inmates July 31. During August fifteen were admitted, twelve were discharged, and seven died, leaving the total Sept. 1 seventy-five. The report went to the pauper committee.

G. B. Blakely and Mayo Lee Perry, candidates for election in districts 10 and 11, respectively, tendered their resignations, which were accepted.

The petition of the mother of Herman Bestwin, a child who died at the county hospital, was denied, and the claim of Mrs. Bishop, 83 years old, for an allowance was referred to Chairman Rawlins.

All bids for calculating and tinting the county's end of the joint building were rejected, and the board engaged Joseph Pitt to do the work under its supervision, a suite at a time.

The payroll was approved and ordered paid tomorrow in order that the county employees may have the wherewithal to celebrate Labor day on Monday.

RABBI LOEWENSTEIN'S LECTURE

SPOKE ENTERTAININGLY ON THE SPIRIT OF JUDAISM.
Interesting Services at the Synagogue Last Evening—New Rabbi Made a Favorable Impression.

Rabbi Gustave H. Loewenstein, who has been engaged by the congregation of Bnai Israel to take charge of the Synagogue during the holidays, delivered his initial sermon before the members of the congregation last night. The synagogue was well filled and the young rabbi made a most favorable impression. He came here from Houston, Tex., where he has had charge of a synagogue. Rabbi Loewenstein possesses a pleasing delivery and speaks with a clear and intelligent force. There is a certain earnestness in what he says that holds the attention and interest of his auditors. He uses little or no gestures, but speaks straight to his subject in a plain, simple manner. Last night was the regular weekly service, and it was conducted by Rabbi Loewenstein.

"Judaism" was the subject that Rabbi Loewenstein chose for his sermon last night. He took as his text the following: "A continuous fire shall ye kindle upon the altar, that shall never be quenched." He substantiated his remarks with the wide field and teachings of Judaism in its connection with the religion of the Hebrew church. He said that the Jewish faith had kept through all the ages against all oppressions, and that one of the reasons why the Jews as a race had never disappeared was because they were faithful to the spirit of Judaism. "As long," continued the rabbi, "as we keep this spirit in our veins, and live up to it, we shall never die as a race and our religion shall never pass away."

He then took up the passing away of the priests and sacrifices of the old Jewish church, and showed how, when a nation gave up one form of worship, it was necessary for them to take up another. He next placed great emphasis upon the fact that it was incumbent upon the Jew to live up to the spirit as well as the letter of their religion. He said that there were some who read their prayers three times a day, and yet who were a long way from their religion. Prayer, he said, should not be looked upon as compulsory, but should be with a long view to the good of the soul. The rabbi declared that home prayers existed in name only, being generally superstitious used to escape the duties of congregational duties. This he meant to apply to those people who remain at home and never attend services.
