CONGRESSMAN ROBERTS MAKES HIS DEFENSE

Arrived in Salt Lake Yesterday Afternoon and Issues an Address.

Tells People of His Home State About His Fight in Washington—Is Not Out of Politics Here.

Ex-Congressman B. H. Roberts arrived in Salt Lake at 3:30 yesterday afternoon over the Oregon Short Line. His coming was practically unannounced and only a few people were at the station when the train came in.

Mr. Roberts went at once to the office of James H. Moyle, chairman of the state Democratic committee, and held a conference with him.

WARRANT OF ARREST.

Paper Served on Mr. Roberts By Sheriff Howells.

About 7 o'clock in the evening, when of assistance, I tender my heartfelt thanks, and to the people of Utah who did me the honor to elect me to the office so exalted and honorable, as to be their representative, I also tender my thanks, though the sphere of usefulness thus opened to me had to be so unceremoniously closed.

Relative to those who have criticized the course I have taken in my defense, I have at this time, nothing to say. What ever had been the method of my procedure, it would not have met with universal approval; that is, there would still have been some who would have played the role of carping critics, and doubtless there are fewer such that can raise up and condemn the policy I pursued than would have existed had I taken any other course.

Very respectfully yours, B. H. ROBERTS.

Mr. Roberts was again in J. H. Moyle's office, Sheriff Howells served the warrant upon him for his arrest for unlawful cohabitation. This is the old warrant issued last summer.

Both testified that they had been engaged to make affidavits against Mr. Clark; that they were paid for them, and that the affidavits were false. Both had been in Helena during the sitting of the legislature as Mr. Clark's friends, and both had their expenses paid there.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The senate committee on privileges and elections gave almost the entire day to hearing the testimony of Ben Hill and L. L. Wright in his investigation of the charges against Senator Clark of Montana. They were called by the defense, although they had come to Washington at the instance of the memorialists.

QUAY'S CHANCES SLIM

Regarded as Less Than They Were a Month Ago.

SEAT IN SENATE FAR OFF

ELECTION IN CALIFORNIA AFFECTS HIS CASE.

Apostle Smith and His Delegation Unable to Help the Pennsylvania Man—Bishop Clawson's Opinion Regarding the Successor to Roberts.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The election of a senator from California, which is now deemed certain, is regarded here as decidedly lessening the chances of the ex-senator Quay in his contest for his seat.

Quay's chances of being seated are now regarded as less than they were a month ago, and this, notwithstanding the strong efforts that have been made in many quarters to aid his cause.

It does not appear on the surface that Apostle Smith and his delegation were able to do anything effective in aid of Quay's aspirations.

Many inquiries are made in the house as to the possible successor to Representative Roberts in congress. It is generally believed in the house that a Democrat will be successful, although Bishop Clawson assured several gentlemen with whom he was in conference that the state would send a non-Mormon Republican from Utah to the house.

Senator Shoup of Idaho this evening expressed in plain terms his abhorrence of the killing of Governor Goebel.

"I regard it as simply a wanton, brutal murder," he said, "and I am sure I express the sentiment of every Republican in Washington when I say it. Of course I do not believe that the Republican authorities of Kentucky were in any way connected with it, but it will have much bearing on the result of the present controversy in that state."

"I am very glad the president refused to order troops to Kentucky, and for myself I can say that I know of no possible circumstances under which a governor can dissolve a legislature which is in session, and whose term of office has not expired."

Governor Taylor should have taken his case to the courts, and in that event he would have the sympathy of the people."

Senator Rawlins this afternoon recommended to the war department the appointment of Dr. Huff as a dentist in the Philippines.

WORK OF ASSASSIN ENDS IN GOV. GOEBEL'S DEATH

Kentucky Plunged Into Grief While an Ominous Cloud Hovers Over the City of Frankfort.

Beckham Takes Oath of Office—Civil War Expected Monday Unless Taylor Backs Down.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 3.—The bullet fired by an unknown assassin last Tuesday morning, ended the life of William Goebel at 6:45 o'clock this evening. The only persons present at the death bed were Mr. Goebel's sister, Mrs. Braunacker, and his brother, Arthur Goebel of Cincinnati, who have been in constant attendance at Mr. Goebel's bedside, and Dr. McCormack.

Justus Goebel, another brother who has been hurrying from Arizona as a vain hope of reaching his dying brother in time for some token of recognition, arrived forty minutes too late. Oxygen was frequently administered the dying man during the afternoon in an effort to keep him alive until his brother's arrival, but in vain.

For, by the cruel irony of fate, the train on which Justus sort oxygen was given in an endeavor to keep the dying man alive, if possible, until the arrival of his brother, Justus Goebel, from Arizona, who was due shortly after 6 o'clock.

This treatment resulted in an improvement, but the rally was so slight and slow that to the weary watchers at the bedside it was apparent that the end was near. The assassin's bullet since Dr. Tallafiero of the Methodist church of Frankfort was sent for. He came at once.

Softly entering the death chamber Dr. Tallafiero crossed over to where Mr. Goebel lay gasping for breath, and kneeling at the side of the bed, prayed earnestly. With tears streaming down his face, Mrs. Braunacker and Arthur Goebel knelt at the bedside also. Then Dr. Tallafiero arose, and opening his Bible, read a few selected verses from the Epistle to St. James. As the words of the apostle were read by the divine, the dying man stirred slightly. Quickly leaning over his brother, Arthur Goebel said:

"Will, Dr. Tallafiero is here."

No response came from the dying man, but as Arthur Goebel leaned over him, looking anxiously for some sign of recognition, a look of intelligence came into the half closed eyes, and it was apparent that Mr. Goebel understood what was said to him.

Prayed For Dying Man. Shortly after this Dr. Tallafiero left the room and, descending the stairs entered the ladies' reception room, where, at the request of several ladies, wives of legislators, he held brief services. Then the divine again went to Mr. Goebel's bedside, and about five minutes afterwards took his departure. Shortly after 4 o'clock the dying man was again given oxygen, and again a slight rally resulted, but it was only temporary.

At 6:10 p. m. Dr. Hume left the dying man's bedside and reported to the throngs of anxious watchers in the corridors of the hotel that death was a matter of but a few moments time. The oxygen treatment was used constantly in a desperate effort to keep Mr. Goebel alive until Justus Goebel's arrival, but no effect was made to across the uncomprehending man.

As Dr. Hume departed from the room the afflicted brother and sister turned to Dr. McCormack and requested that they be left entirely alone with their brother, whose end was fast approaching.

The physicians silently withdrew, closed the door softly behind them upon the grief-stricken brother and sister. Silently they knelt at his bedside, their eyes fastened upon the half open eyelids of the unconscious man, while the life that had been battling so valiantly against the assassin's bullet since last Tuesday morning flickered out.

Death Comes at Last. Death claimed its victim, and the brother and sister, bowed by sorrow whose pangs were intensified by their knowledge that a few miles away, hurrying to them, was their brother, Justus, who would arrive too late, and lie down upon the deathbed alone with their dead. Not a sound emanated from the room to apprise the anxious watchers in the hotel corridor without that Mr. Goebel had passed away.

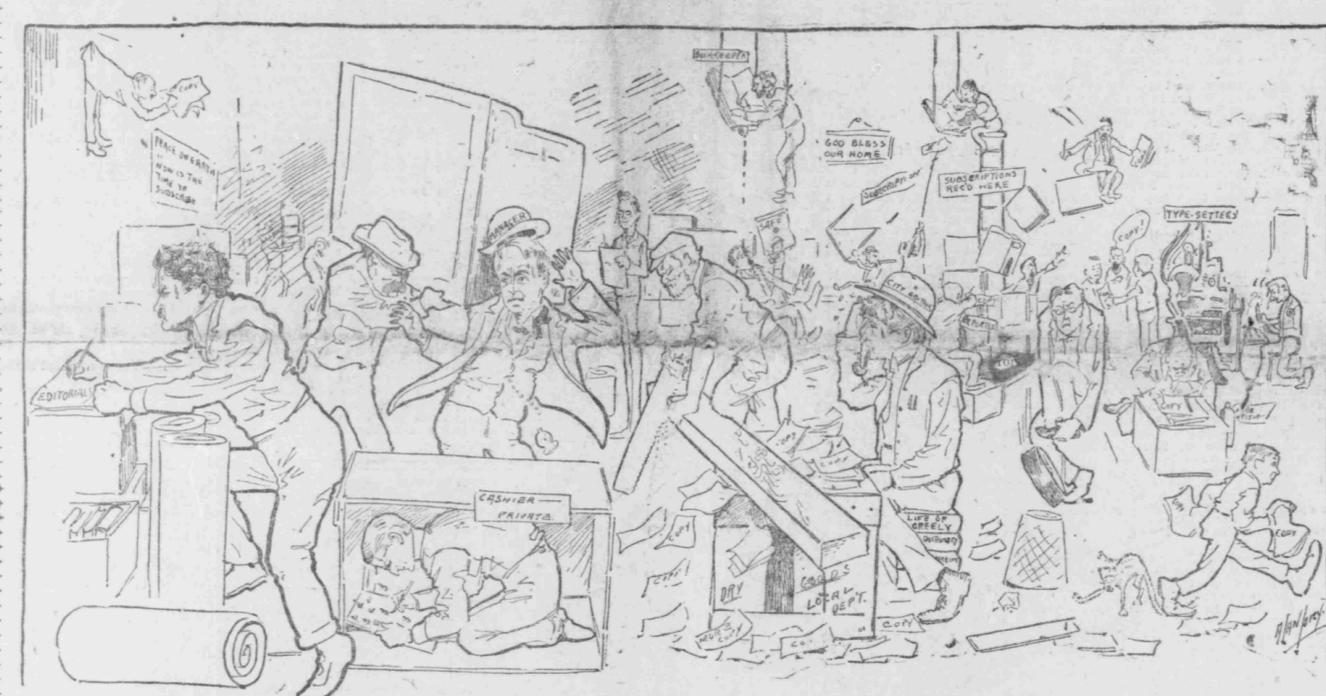

The stricken brother and sister were left undisturbed while the two physicians outside the door anxiously looked at their watches as the minutes fled by, fearing the truth yet wondering at the long silence.

Finally at 7:20 o'clock the train bearing Justus Goebel pulled into Frankfort. At the station to meet him were Urey Woodson, Samuel J. Shackelford, clerk of the court of appeals, and Mayor Isaacson. They met Mr. Goebel at the cars.

"Is he dead, tell me, is he dead?" were the first words he uttered. "He is not dead," was the assurance given him by the friends who had no inkling of the truth.

The party entered a carriage and five minutes later, at 7:25 o'clock, arrived at the capital hotel, with tears streaming from his eyes, Mr. Goebel was conducted to the chamber where his brother lay. The rap at the door was answered by Arthur Goebel, who silently drew his brother upstairs and again closed the door. Five minutes later Arthur Goebel again opened the door and motioned to the two physicians.
