

WAS A SAD JOURNEY
Harry B. Windsor Arrives Home
With His Wife's Body.
HAD AWFUL EXPERIENCE
COULD NOT SAY HOW SHOT-GUN WAS DISCHARGED.

Harry B. Windsor arrived in this city yesterday morning with the dead body of his young wife, after a sad and distressing a journey as a man ever made. The train was over four hours late, and did not arrive until after 9 o'clock, when it was due to arrive at 5:30. At the train awaiting the arrival of the bereaved husband were Mrs. Roy Mayne and George Westervelt. In compliance with the husband's wishes, Mrs. Windsor's body was taken at once to the home on Q street, and there the funeral services will be held this afternoon.

MRS. HARRY B. WINDSOR.

each had a gun to hunt as we went along. We were having such a good time, and Mrs. Windsor was wishing for her own little gun; the one we had was a heavy double-barreled, shot-gun, which we had borrowed for the occasion. Then something got out of fix with the brake on the front wagon and I went forward to help. Mr. Cairns fixed it. We were both stooping over working at the brake with our backs turned to my wagon, and Miss Gilmore was holding the team, when we heard the report of the gun, and then my horse dashed past running away.

All Happened Quickly.
"It all happened so quickly that I did not have time to think. My first impulse was to catch the horse. The thought never entered my head that my wife was hurt; even when she was thrown from my wagon I did not think she was badly hurt—she fell so easily. When I first saw the blood I thought she had scratched herself on the sagbrush; but when I ran to her and picked her up, I realized that she was dying. She died, I believe, without an instant's pain, and with a peaceful smile on her face.

"I have no idea as to how the gun was discharged. It may have been that the hammer caught in the lap-robe and in some way was discharged; but this is only an idle surmise. The horse ran up the canyon for some distance, circled around and came back right to the point of starting without having injured anything materially. Then the start was made for Coalville, and before we had gone far the wheel of the wagon broke and we were brought to a standstill. "The statement that my wife's remains were thrown out when this accident happened is a mistake; nothing of the kind happened as we were driving very slowly and carefully at the time. But the breakdown of the wagon left us in a sad predicament. We were thirty miles from Coalville. We looked in each others' faces not knowing what to do or which way to turn. My companions concluded that it would be necessary for me to take my dead wife in the seat of the single buggy with me, and in that way drive to Coalville, and the horse was very nervous and excitable.

Help Is Secured.
"While hesitating I looked down the canyon and saw two men cross the trail. Hoping that they might be able to help us, I jumped into the buggy and drove after them. Following their trail and rounding a spur of the mountain, I came upon a sheep camp with five men and boys and numerous horses and wagons. The whole company returned with me and helped us all they could. From them I got a strong covered spring wagon and a driver, and by this means we reached Coalville.

"But when we were within five miles of Coalville a violent thunderstorm came up. There was a heavy down-pour of rain and the thunder and lightning was terrifying. The rain made the clay road so slippery that we were in great danger of accidents every step we took. The horses went down a number of times, but by rare good fortune we got through. I had reason then to be thankful for the covered wagon because through it my wife was completely protected from the storm and it seems to me that I can be thankful for small things now, but I am afraid to think of what might have happened if we had not found that sheep camp.

After doing all that was possible to do for the body in Coalville, Mr. Windsor concluded to drive five miles through the country to Echo on the main line of the Union Pacific, in order to catch an earlier train into Salt Lake. The

CHILD PREVENTS HER MOTHER
FROM COMMITTING SUICIDE

A Mrs. Anderson, employed at Titcomb's Fifth East hotel, attempted suicide at 2 o'clock yesterday morning by drinking part of the contents of a two-ounce bottle of laudanum. By dashing the vial from her hands, a 12-year-old daughter prevented the mother from carrying out her attempt.

Mrs. Anderson lives at 541 South Third East, and less than a week ago she tried to kill herself, taking a quantity of the same drug in a glass of water. Prompt medical attention saved her life at that time, but she seems to have labored under a despondent spirit, which has grown more apparent each day since.

No reason is given for Mrs. Anderson's despondent condition. She claims to have taken the drug on account of severe pain.

Along after midnight yesterday morning she was seen by her little girl to raise the bottle to her lips while sitting up in bed. The young one anticipated her intention and in the twinkling of an eye had grabbed the poison from her mother's hand and thrown it out the window.

But Mrs. Anderson had managed to swallow about one-fourth of an ounce, and the child, arousing the neighborhood, the services of Dr. Geisley were quickly procured. After working three hours over the unconscious woman she recovered.

In the civil war, in which he served with distinction, he received wounds which finally resulted in the total loss of his eyesight. When this misfortune came upon the family his daughter Lou (Mrs. Windsor) took a law course at Ann Arbor, Mich., to enable her to assist her father in his law practice. In this way he used his daughter's eyes as a substitute for his own until his death some years later.

After her father's death Mrs. Windsor obtained a position in one of the departments in Washington, a position she held for some years. There she began her literary work, contributing Indian stories, sketches and legends to a number of the magazines, as well as corresponding regularly for papers. Later she was appointed a government Indian teacher, and spent two years in this work at White Rocks. She is said to have been very successful as an Indian teacher, and while in that work collected the material for many interesting Indian legends.

WAS WRITING A BOOK.
Her daring spirit, too, led her into many adventures, accounts of which would make an interesting book in themselves. At the time of her death she had collected the material for a book of stories in her favorite field of study and research. At the close of her work among the Indians Mrs. Windsor opened a kindergarten school in Park City and conducted it with success until her marriage to Mr. Windsor three years ago. Last Thanksgiving, since then she has been a resident of this city.

In this city Mrs. Windsor had grown to be very popular among all who knew and loved her. She was an active member of the Women's Literary club, and took a prominent part in all literary work. Her talent was fully recognized there, and good things were expected of her. She was also a member of the China Decorators' club, and her pretty evidences of her talent in this line. At the last exhibition of decorated china in this city her work was very much admired.

Mrs. Windsor was also a member of the Sketch club, thus showing her ambition to develop every talent she possessed. Above all she was a splendid homemaker, and took the greatest pleasure in the new home that her husband had recently purchased on Q street. She was a partner in her husband's insurance business, and often attended to his work in his absence. She was a member of the Episcopal church of Park City, but had never transferred her membership to this city, and was not a regular attendant of any church here.

The funeral services will be held in the home, 27 Q street, at 1:30 this Monday afternoon. The interment will take place at Fort Collins, Colorado.

BURGALAR LIKES CHICKEN.—A burglar with an old-fashioned fondness for chicken broke into the California Poultry company's store on Market row some time Saturday night and stole a dozen dressed chickens. The large front windows, which are protected by screens, were left partially open for ventilation, and it was discovered yesterday morning that the screen over one window had been cut or pushed in, and that a person could get through. The chickens, which had been dressed and left on ice, were gone, but the burglar was not seen. The police were notified of the matter, and are investigating it.
