

DEATH OF T. NYSTRÖM
Well Known Citizen Suddenly Stricken Down.
WAS AN OLD RESIDENT
CAME TO UTAH FORTY YEARS AGO.

Peter T. Nyström, the well-known liquor dealer, died suddenly early yesterday morning at his home, 180 E. 2nd street, apparently, and in the evening when he went home he did not complain, but at 4:15 yesterday morning he was taken sick. Dr. Beer was called in, but the old gentleman was beyond medical aid, and shortly before 6 his spirit took flight. Dr. Beer attributed the cause of death to intestinal obstruction.

Mr. Nyström was widely and popularly known. His geniality made him friends almost without number, and his generosity was such that no appeal for aid for the distressed ever went unanswered. His friendship was courted by all. Now that he is gone, they will grieve with the family in grieving over his sudden demise.

Mr. Nyström came to Utah in the early '60s, after having successfully fulfilled a mission of six years in his native land. Since coming to Utah he has been a prominent figure in the business. That he was unimpaired in the fact that on Saturday he was preparing to leave for the southern part of the state today to embark in another business.

Mr. Nyström leaves a widow and two sons, City Recorder Joseph O. Nyström and Theodore Nyström, manager of the Utah Trust, Wagon & Machine Company branch house at Montpelier, Idaho.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday at 2 o'clock from the Twenty-third ward mortuary, under the auspices of the A. O. U. W. and of Myrtle Lodge No. 1, Knights of Pythias, of which order the deceased was a member.

THOMAS TAYLOR BURIED.
Impressive Services Held In Fourteenth Ward Meeting House.

The funeral of Thomas Taylor, who died suddenly in Los Angeles a week ago last Friday, was held at the Fourteenth ward meeting house yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The body was viewed at Taylor's undertaking parlors from 11:30 to 12:30 by the family and friends, and was then followed by them to the meeting house. There the services were opened with a prayer by Bishop George H. Taylor of the ward, after which the beautiful duet, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," was rendered by Fred Butler and Miss Edna Day.

Bishop George Taylor then paid tribute to the deceased in a short talk, in which he spoke of the successful character of the deceased, his successful labors as a missionary in England and his faithful services while bishop of the Fourteenth ward.

Bishop O. E. Whitney then arose and read a message from St. John, describing his vision on the Isle of Patmos, in which he saw the future of the world and saw the dead pass in judgment before him. Bishop Whitney then spoke of the life of the deceased and his character, as seen by those who were associated with him. He said that Mr. Taylor had been kind and generous.

Deceased had by his nature commanded the respect of all those who came in contact with him, and his indomitable energy had caused the success of many undertakings that seemed almost hopeless. Summing it all up in a few words, the speaker said: "Emulate the virtues of Thomas Taylor, and you will lead a good and noble life."

After Bishop Whitney's address a beautiful solo was rendered by John Robinson.

The body of the deceased was followed to its last resting place in the city cemetery by a large cortege. The grave was dedicated by Bishop Romney. The services were conducted in a most impressive manner.

The pall bearers were: W. J. Lynch, Fred A. Schlade, Frank Carthey, John Cutler, Charles Nelson and W. Wilson.

ANDREW CAHOON'S FUNERAL.
Hundreds of the Pioneer's Friends Attended.

The body of Andrew Cahoon, the veteran who died on Thursday, was laid to rest yesterday afternoon under simple impressive funeral rites in the garden of Murray. The services were held at the home of the deceased. Neighbors and friends by the hundreds came to the funeral. The body was placed in the man whom they had loved to admire because of his many sterling qualities, and to offer condolences to the mourning family. The funeral was a most impressive affair.

As it is typical of the man, the funeral of Andrew Cahoon, the eulogies were spoken by old-time friends of differing views on religious belief. The speakers were Henry P. Spencer, Joseph E. Taylor, Chauncey M. West, Henry W. Lawrence and Warren Foster.

The funeral cortege from the home to the cemetery was more than a mile in length. Six of the sons of the respected old settler served as pallbearers, namely: W. J. Dale, John P. Albert, E. Reynolds, D. P. and Joseph C. Cahoon.

Captain Barstow's Funeral.
The funeral services over the remains of the late Capt. H. E. Barstow will be held at 12:30 o'clock at the parlors of O'Donnell's undertaking parlors, located at Mount Olivet cemetery. Friends invited.

NELSON BEATS LAWSON.
Defeats Gus In Fifteen-Mile Motor-Paced Race.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 16.—Johnny Nelson this afternoon defeated Gus Lawson in the fifteen mile motor paced race which was held at the Los Angeles track. Nelson won by a margin of fifteen seconds from the driver of the time. The time Nelson held the former world's record of 25:12.

Smallpox Reports.
Six new cases of smallpox were reported to the health department yesterday. The names of the victims were ever vaccinated. The first case was Herbert E. Cutler, son of John C. Cutler, residing at 363 South West Temple street. The second case was reported in the five-month-old child of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Foster, at 614 South West Temple street. The third case reported was that of a boy, William M. Anderson, aged 41, residing at 443 South West Temple street. The fourth case was reported from the family of Hugh Watson, at 341 South Fourth West street. The fifth case was reported from the family of Mrs. J. W. Smith, at 1111 South Fourth West street.

Two Kansas Calamities.
A news-epitome, for which thirty women fought for three hours, and friendships of decades were shattered in the process, was the result of a contest for the honor of getting up the most elaborate Thanksgiving dinner belongs to a North Atchison woman.

Teacher—Did you ever read "The Stories of Willie—No, but I know all of Pop's stories."

SAMPSON-SCHLEY
OUTSIDE'S NEXT ACTOR
WANTS NO POLITICIAN
BELIEVED THAT M'CORNICK
WOULD SUIT HIM.

Representative South of Rich Describes the Man.

Nearly all the Republican members-elect of the lower house of the legislature have received an interesting communication from E. H. South, a new member from Rich county. Although Mr. South has no desire to pose as a humorist, doubtless many who read his epistle to the Philistine will be overcome by a desire to smile. Representative South is reported, with some reliability, to be in the McCormick column on account of his close business relations with George A. Snow, an ardent supporter of the well-known banker.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

SHANGHAIED.
By P. Y. BLACK.

"Say," said Rod Noble, "look at that! It's the boss—him Heckles!"

"Come off," said his fellow adventurer. "You say! Heckles was only in the book; he didn't live—really."

The likeness, however, between Heckles of "The Boy Commodore" and the red-faced, clean-shaven, portly man in blue pea-jacket and sea-boots who approached was so remarkable that even Frank Noble doubted for a moment if Heckles himself (the man who stood by the boy commodore, don't you know, when these two quelled the mutiny, and sailed the prize $500,000 miles by their own selves in the teeth of a hurricane) was not now present in the flesh. So earnest and admiration-primed were the stares of the lads that the man relaxed his pace when he noticed them and finally crossed the narrow street by the river. His shrewd, rather humorous eyes surveyed the cousins swiftly and comprehensively.

"Morning, shipmates," said he. "Back from school for Thanksgiving, hey? Taking a look at the shipping, hey? My eyes, if you two ain't clipper-built! Clean in every line. 'Bout 17 or 18, ain't you?"

"No," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

The man looked at the well set youngsters so cordially and with such pleasing approval that the boys had courage to explain what they wanted down by the ships.

"Please, sir," said Rod, "can you tell us where they engage sailors?"

"Ho! what to go to sea? Now that's my style. It's the finest life for a boy you can live. But if there's anything you want to see all my life, and look at me. Healthy, wise and as to wealth—why, boys, there's money to burn for the right kind of sailor. What's your name?"

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

"No, sir," said Rod. "We're 15—both of us. We're cousins."

WANTS NO POLITICIAN
BELIEVED THAT M'CORNICK
WOULD SUIT HIM.

Representative South of Rich Describes the Man.

Nearly all the Republican members-elect of the lower house of the legislature have received an interesting communication from E. H. South, a new member from Rich county. Although Mr. South has no desire to pose as a humorist, doubtless many who read his epistle to the Philistine will be overcome by a desire to smile. Representative South is reported, with some reliability, to be in the McCormick column on account of his close business relations with George A. Snow, an ardent supporter of the well-known banker.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

WANTS NO POLITICIAN
BELIEVED THAT M'CORNICK
WOULD SUIT HIM.

Representative South of Rich Describes the Man.

Nearly all the Republican members-elect of the lower house of the legislature have received an interesting communication from E. H. South, a new member from Rich county. Although Mr. South has no desire to pose as a humorist, doubtless many who read his epistle to the Philistine will be overcome by a desire to smile. Representative South is reported, with some reliability, to be in the McCormick column on account of his close business relations with George A. Snow, an ardent supporter of the well-known banker.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.

Mr. South starts his communication by asking support from the member-elect of Rich county for a candidate for senatorial office. He goes on to say that he is a Democrat, but that he is a Republican in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions. He says that he is a Republican in his political opinions, but that he is a Democrat in his political opinions.