CO-OPERATIVE COMMUNITIES.

THE LAST BULLETIN ISSUED BY THE DEPARTMENT of labor contains the conclusions reached by the Rev. Alexander Kent in his report on the co-operative communities of the United States.

Mr. Kent's researches show that, with a few exceptions, communistic, socialist and co-operative communities have an average life of not more than two years. Those that do not fail by the way early in their career are usually forced to modify considerably the scheme on which they were founded.

Although on the whole attempts at co-operative efforts usually fail, those communities that are the most successful, Mr. Kent finds, accumulate more property per capita than the same class of men average outside. It is also remarkable that in no society of this sort has survived for more than ten years in the popular government.

WYOMING'S NEW PUBLICATION.

THE LAST WYOMING LEGISLATURE, with a businesslike desire to take advantage of the awakening of interest throughout the country in the resources of the west, authorized the compilation and publication of a pamphlet which should give in concise form an account of the principal industries and interests of the state.

The pamphlet, which is neatly bound in paper, contains 150 pages of carefully compiled statistics and information regarding the state, a map of Wyoming and a series of half-tones portraying the scenery and different phases of industrial life of the commonwealth.

Utah is in need of just such a work as this for distribution among the thousands of visitors that come into the state every year.

SERVANT GIRLS' PLATFORM.

THE CHICAGO SERVANT GIRLS who have got together and formed a union under the imposing title of "Workingwomen of America," have announced in a general way the demands they intend to make on their employers.

They start out by fixing an ironclad wage scale on a sliding basis. It begins with a maximum of $3 a week for inexperienced help, and runs up to $7 a week for experienced cooks and housekeepers.

It will readily be admitted that these are very mild demands. Nothing is said about the number of children that a family shall be allowed to have. There is not a word about bed-making by the occupants, irrespective of social rank and station.

The platform should commend itself to all right-minded housewives, and there can be no doubt that within a short time every residence in Chicago capable of supporting a servant will gladly become a union shop.

NEWSPAPERS PRINTED WITHOUT INK.

NEWSPAPERS AND BOOKS printed without the use of a particle of printer's ink are among the possibilities of the twentieth century which are now promised. Electricity is the agent which is to work this revolution.

"His chief invention consists in an 'electrographic' paper, whose composition is a secret. This new paper, which is easily decomposed under the action of an electric current, will not cost more than common paper, we are assured; besides this it will have to receive no glaze as is necessary for ink.

The advantages of a college training are emphasized by the case of a young man at Greenview, Conn., who was about to enter Yale. He has been convicted of stopping strangers, using abusive language and demanding money.

In giving the officers permission to sing on their beats at night the Chicago chief of police should have made an exception to "Rock Me to Sleep." The late citizens might take the blue-clad vocalist at his word if they happened to be any rocks handy.

The Herald acknowledges the receipt of an invitation to the ninth annual encampment and campfire of the Utah Indian War Veterans' association, which will be held at American Fork lake resort on Aug. 27, 28 and 29.

The agricultural population will be at a loss to understand why that smelter employee should waste so much time tunneling after gold bricks when they can be purchased so reasonably from the regular dealers.

Sixty thousand dollars seems like a stiff price for a seat on the New York stock exchange, but it must be remembered that the occupant is not expected to get up and hang on to a strap every time a lad comes in.

It is rather remarkable that the organ of the suburbs should have decided without reservation that William Jennings Bryan and not Brigham Young was responsible for the steel strike.

If we get Mr. McAllister's meaning correctly, he is of the opinion that any man who keeps a beer bottle in his refrigerator has no right to demand the enforcement of the law.

Adjutant General Corbin and the sultan of Jolo have exchanged presents, but, luckily (for the good people of Jolo), they didn't exchange jobs.

The report that Turks have been burning Bulgarians, indicates that the subjects of the sultan are no more civilized than the weather man.

It does not necessarily follow that a community of interests is for the interest of the community.

The heathen Chinese may not be as peculiar as he used to be, but he is still queerer.

Children and Parents

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX Writes on Love and Obedience.

DEAR MADAM: (Copyright, 1901, by W. R. Hearst.) You are interested in hearing in substance: Children, you are justified in disrespecting your parents if they are not lovable; married persons, separation from your parents is not congenial. Perhaps the doctrine is more nearly this: There is no duty of love where the object is unlovable.

This unmitigated doctrine is incontestably the ruin of many a family and home. It is a vital wrong, which I believe to be revolting in its results to one who writes of kindness as the soul of righteousness.

Heaven save us from our "interpreters!" Since I began this column I have grown to fully understand the cause of three-fourths of the world's failures. They are due to the indirect mental methods of people.

Any reader of fair intelligence who could read my printed words in the essays above referred to need not have required an explanation from me of their meaning.

Who does, not only incorrectly interprets, but incorrectly quotes. I said, "Children cannot respect what is not respectable, nor love what is unlovable. If parents desire the respect and love of their children let them make their lives such as will inspire these emotions!"

I repeat every word with emphasis. It is not this doctrine which will "destroy homes." It is the parents, who, because they are parents, consider that they are privileged to be selfish, brutal, mercenary, evil tempered, jealous and inconsiderate, and yet demand love, respect, obedience and devotion.

I believe the failure of China to progress as a nation in humanitarianism, and its adherence to customs and practices which belong to the dark ages is greatly due to its parental "worship" of its ancestors.

The Chinese child is educated from infancy in that idea, and of course it becomes a part of his mentality. Ahead of Principle, Justice, Right, Reason and Honor comes this "worship" of a blood relationship who might be wholly unworthy and deserving of capital punishment. It is an enormous blot in the pathway of progress.

It ought to be annihilated. Thank God, America will not be hindered in its onward march by any such muddy traditions. If I had a father who was truly worthy, I would not be his child. I would be his neighbor.

A young girl wrote me not long ago that her mother received men and drank stimulants with them during her father's absence. She was 14 years of age, and her mother had refused to tell her father. The young girl felt instinctively that the conduct of her mother was not right, and begged me to tell her what to do.

I advised her to say to her mother that she should be obliged to leave a home where she was getting such an example. If she would rather remain under such an influence, the mere fact that this woman brought her daughter into the world is not sufficient reason why the daughter should reverence, love and obey such a mother.

Regarding my advice to married people, it is this, and always has been, and ever will be: Use every effort to make marriage a success. Be considerate, patient, amiable and forgiving; yield small points and avoid argument.

Use every effort to make marriage a success. Be considerate, patient, amiable and forgiving; yield small points and avoid argument. Study your wife or husband with loving eyes and heart, and make happiness in the home your leading aim.
