

DISCREPANCIES ARE APPARENT

Senator Cahoon Investigates the Murray Incorporation Muddle.

HE ADMITS ERRORS EXIST CITY ATTORNEY VAN COTT OF THE SAME OPINION.

Those who took occasion yesterday to visit the office of County Recorder Walter J. Meeks and carefully examine the records and map on the Murray incorporation, left the office satisfied in their own minds that the claim set forth in Friday's Herald that the description of the city limits in the petition does not coincide with the map of the limits on file is correct.

Among those who examined the records were State Senator James Cahoon of Murray and H. S. Sanders, principal of the Taylorville school. Both Senator Cahoon and Mr. Sanders said the position taken by The Herald as regards the map and description not tallying was correct.

Missing Map Still Missing. Mr. Sanders was one of the committee appointed to see that the original map of the proposed city was filed with the county commissioners. He stated yesterday that M. A. Williams, editor of the Murray Leader, member of the committee, delivered the map, which has since disappeared, to James Anderson, as chairman of the board of county commissioners, in the presence of Harker and Horne, the other two commissioners of the old board.

Chairman Anderson yesterday admitted receiving the map, but said it was taken from him later by a deputa-tion of five citizens of Murray, who said the map was inaccurate and they desired to change it. That was the last he saw of it.

In a letter to The Herald, Ray Van Cott, the city attorney for Murray, denies that he stated Friday that if the incorporation of Murray were tested in the courts, the incorporation would not hold.

At the conclusion of an examination lasting about three hours, during which time the map and the petition were gone over time and again, Attorney Van Cott made the assertion in the presence of The Herald reporter, County Recorder Walter Meeks, Deputy Recorder John May and Clerk Moore that the article in The Herald was correct.

Discrepancies Are Glaring. To the same gentlemen he admitted that the description in the petition of the boundaries of the city, and the outline of the same on the map filed with the petition, did not correspond, that if one was correct, the other was incorrect.

Attorney Van Cott even went so far as to state that he would the next day look up the law to ascertain if it were not possible to amend the map or description to make them comply with the law, which says they must agree, and thereby save the time and trouble and cost of reincorporating should the matter be pressed.

Attorney Van Cott did make the assertion that he felt confident that the discrepancies were so glaring that if the whole matter were brought to the attention of a court the incorporation would be declared null and void for those reasons.

Just before he left the recorder's office he said he hoped that the matter would not be pressed any further, as he had his doubts as to the outcome; that he, as city attorney for Murray, most certainly would not take the matter into court, and hoped that no one who had been opposed to the incorporation of Murray would do it.

Didn't Want to Be Blamed. After Attorney Van Cott had admitted that the report of The Herald was correct, he went over the petition of the citizens asking for incorporation and pointed out a number of mistakes in it. He did this to show The Herald representative that the mistakes and errors which now exist in the files were made before he and Attorney Marks were brought to rectify the errors of the citizens of Murray.

It was not until Attorney Van Cott had satisfied himself that The Herald article was correct, and that some one would get the blame for the whole matter, that he cleared his hands of the errors. He said to The Herald representative that he did not want the citizens of Salt Lake to gather the impression that he, as city attorney for Murray, had made the mistakes which invalidate the charter of the city.

As city attorney for Murray, Attorney Van Cott declined to make a statement for publication, saying it would not look well for him to do anything as an attorney and a private individual, he said in the presence of the above four mentioned persons that The Herald's contentions were correct, and asked that his position be made clear as he did not want any of the blame to fall upon him.

PLANS IRRIGATION EXHIBIT

Ambitious Project Under Consideration For St. Louis and Ogden.

An irrigation exhibit for the St. Louis fair—actual reproduction of reservoirs, dams, weirs, ditches, gates, together with actual flowing waters and growing crops and trees—all under the auspices of the state of Utah, is being planned by leading members of both houses of the legislature. Senator F. J. Kiesel of Ogden is promoting the idea. The former member of the upper house is chairman of the executive committee of the National Irrigation congress, and it is in that capacity that he is pushing the project.

To have the exhibit made up this year and placed on the public square in Ogden so it can be viewed by the members of the irrigation congress next fall, is the present idea of the promoters. After the congress it is planned to take the big model to St. Louis and install it in time for the opening of the great exposition.

Not only is the exhibit to have the affair a presentation of the irrigation process in all its up-to-date details, but of Utah resources as well. Locks and gates made of iron instead of timber, the marble to be taken from all the quarries of the state, have been suggested. The estimated cost of the exhibit is $100,000. The promoters are trying to get two-thirds or three-fourths of that amount from the legislature.

Senator McKay of Weber county, chairman of the senate committee on irrigation, has declared himself as heartily favoring the idea.

"A model irrigation system, condensed into a small area all the engineering and practical features of irrigation, would be a fine object lesson," said he yesterday. "Exhibited here in Utah it would show our people just what these great reservoirs are that are projected by the national government. At St. Louis it would make one of the most interesting exhibits. The people from all parts of the country would learn more about irrigation from such a model than they could from years of reading what little information on the subject is published in the eastern newspapers and magazines."

ALL OVER THE WORLD THE PEOPLE KNOW AND USE PE-RU-NA FOR CATARRH

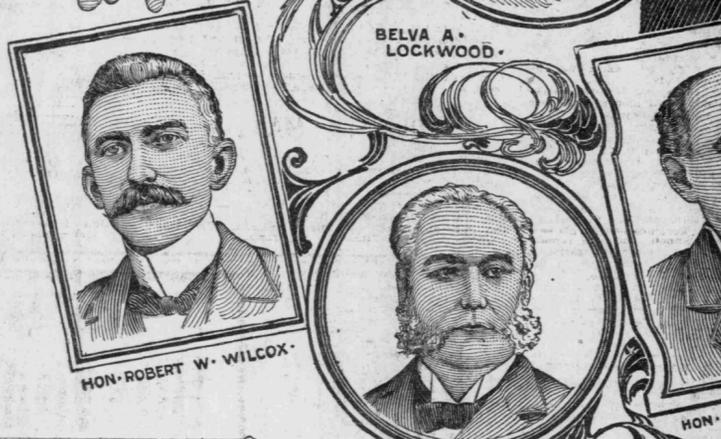

The Phenomenal Success of Dr. Hartman, A Doctor of National Reputation. A Medicine of World-Wide Fame. Congressman, Governors, Consuls And Other National Celebrities.

DR. HARTMAN SENDS HIS CONGRATULATIONS to that vast multitude of former patients scattered throughout the length and breadth of the United States and Canada. Thousands of these patients have visited him at his magnificent sanitarium at Columbus, Ohio. Thousands upon thousands have never seen the Doctor's face, but know him as their benefactor through the ministrations of his world famous remedy, Peruna.

A multitude so great that its exact number will never be known have been raised from beds of sickness or rescued from some chronic malady which kept them half sick and half well—have been rescued by Dr. Hartman's remedy, assisted by free advice and friendly counsel.

To all these former patients, and to all those under treatment at present, Dr. Hartman sends hearty greeting, sincerely hoping that the good cheer of perfect health will be the lot of every one.

He wishes you all the splendid health and bodily vigor which he himself has enjoyed throughout a long and useful life, and still continues to enjoy.

Health is the adjustment of the physical body to its physical environment. The human body is continually attacked by a changeable climate. Today it is warm, tomorrow it is hot, next day it is cold, and the next wet, and so on. Each day brings some new vicissitudes of climates. The skin protects the outside of the body from these changes. Frequent bathing and vigorous exercise keep the skin able to protect us from without. The mucous membranes protect the body from within. Every organ, every passage, every cavity is lined with mucous membranes. Mucous membrane lines the nose and facial cavities. Mucous membrane lines the throat and air passages. Mucous membrane lines the lungs and air cells. Mucous membrane lines the liver, the bowels, the kidneys, the pelvic organs, the urinary passages. To keep these mucous membranes in working order, so that they will always be able to protect the body from within, Peruna is absolutely necessary. No other remedy can be substituted. Peruna makes clean, strong mucous membranes. With an active and elastic skin to protect the body from without; with healthy, pink mucous membrane free from catarrh to protect the body from within, these two things always bring good health. It is these two things that have secured for Dr. Hartman the phenomenal good health for which he has always been noted. Reckless Exposure. In perhaps no other particular are the masses of the people so recklessly neglectful of their own interests as in the matter of catching cold. Not only do the great majority fail to properly provide themselves with sufficiently warm clothing, but when a slight cough hawking or running at the nose warns them a cold has been contracted, little or no attention is paid to it. There are, comparatively, so few people who regard a cold as of sufficient consequence to require prompt and efficient medical treatment that not only is the death rate of the northern States increased one-half percent, but our land is swarming with invalids and half-sick people as a direct consequence of neglected colds. It would seem that the love of life and the delights of perfect health would be sufficient inducements to any one to carefully guard them without any warnings or argument from the medical profession. Who has not seen the victim of consumption struggling for life in the fatal grasp of its last stages? The unnatural brightness of their glassy, anxious eyes, the hectic flush of their shriveled cheeks, the dilated nostrils and deep-seated, rattling cough, the panting breath and fluttering heart, the frightfully emaciated form, the hopelessness of the patient and the hopelessness of the attendants—all make a pathetic picture which is far too common.

Mrs. Minnie Lee Collins, Grandniece of the Late President James B. Polk. This direct Descendant of the historic President Polk Says some interesting things concerning Peruna, the National Catarrh Remedy. "For several years I experienced a severe attack of female trouble. The best physicians prescribed for me, but without avail. Two years ago I began to take Peruna at the advice of a friend. I noticed a perceptible improvement at once. After taking several bottles I was cured. "I hold Peruna in high esteem and am always ready to say a good word for it."—Minnie Lee Collins, 912 High Street, Nashville, Tenn. This is the same old story told by a thousand women in a thousand different ways. Female trouble; doctors fail to cure; Peruna as a last resort, a happy relief from a dreary servitude to aches, pains and a complication of physical anguish that can never be described. Peruna is a wonder worker in female diseases, and yet the explanation of it is simple. Catarrh is the cause of these troubles. Peruna cures the catarrh. The cause being removed, the symptoms disappear. Women cured by Peruna all tell the same story. Pains all gone. Dragging sensations gone. Quivers and throbbings and trembling and dizziness and nausea and the irregularities and painful periods—all gone. Now they have health.

THE HARTMAN SANITARIUM, COLUMBUS, OHIO. THE HOME OF PERUNA. PHYSICIAN HEAL THYSELF. A Doctor Who Takes His Own Remedy—The Secret of a Long Life and Vigorous Health. Dr. Hartman, in speaking of his long and busy career, made use of the following language: "For a number of years my professional duties compelled me to be much on the road, traveling long distances by rail, night and day, exposed to all kinds of vicissitudes, sleeping and eating in different hotels continually, and through it all I have preserved myself from any derangement of the body resulting from catching cold. "This could not have been done without Peruna. At the slightest evidence of a cold a few doses of Peruna invariably checked it. If I found myself hawking or frequently blowing my nose, instead of letting it go, as the average man would do, I always took Peruna for a few days, and at no time in my extensive travels have I been obliged to stop a day on account of my health." There are three roads which lead from health to consumption. Over one of these roads pass all of that great multitude of people who die every year of consumption. Each route begins with health and happiness and ends with disease and death. First road:—A slight cold—neglected—settles in the head—throat—catarrh—extends to the lungs—consumption—death. Second road:—A slight cold—neglected—settles in the lungs—cough—gradually growing worse—consumption—death. Third road:—A cold—neglected—settles in the throat—hoarseness—short breath—consumption—death. "I am assured and satisfied that your Peruna is a great catarrh cure and friends whom I know well have used it with great benefit. I feel that I can recommend it to those who suffer from that disorder." A. H. COPFROTH. HON. JUDSON W. LYONS, Register of the United States Treasury, in a letter from Washington, D. C., says: "I find Peruna to be an excellent remedy for the catarrhal affections of spring and summer, and those who suffer from depression from the heat of the summer will find no remedy the equal of Peruna." JUDSON W. LYONS. SENATOR M. C. BUTLER, ex-Governor of South Carolina, writes from Washington, D. C., the following: "I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period, and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, and besides a great tonic." M. C. BUTLER. If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis. Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

I had about made up my mind that no medicine could help me, when one of your booklets was brought to my office. I read it in a leisure hour, and then decided to give Peruna a trial, and found that I had at last secured the right medicine for me. For two months I used it faithfully, and felt so well! I was a young man once more. Although in the seventies, I feel better and more active than I did thirty years ago." CONGRESSMAN D. F. WILBUR, care of J. A. Turnidge, No. 29 K street, N. SCHAFFER, No. 436 Pope avenue, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I wrote to you for advice for my daughter Alice, who is now 4 years old. She has been a puny, sickly, ailing child almost ever since she was born. I was always doctoring until we commenced to use Peruna. Thank God for your good advice and Peruna! She soon grew strong and well. Peruna is a wonderful tonic—the best medicine I ever used." "I was also in a wretched condition when I wrote you. I had catarrh of
