

WASHINGTON MEN TO LEAVE TODAY

Correspondents Spend Long Day on Train and in Town.

SERIOUS WORK AND FUN WILL ATTEND CONGRESS SESSIONS IN OGDEN.

The Washington correspondents put in their second day in Utah by visiting Utah lake, Salt Lake, the Tabernacle, the "Burgomaster" performance at the Salt Lake theatre and the Commercial club in the evening, where they were served with refreshments and were guests of honor at an informal entertainment.

The day's proceedings were brought to a close by the affair at the Commercial club, under the joint auspices of the Commercial and Press clubs. The visitors went directly from the theatre to the Commercial club rooms, where many members of the two clubs and invited guests had gathered to meet the newspaper men from the east. After an hour spent in informal conversation, Secretary Fisher Harris of the Commercial club was introduced as master of ceremonies. For his time-honored custom, Mr. Harris vigorously roared all present and lived to regret it before the visiting newspaper men and others got through with him. Following his first address, Mr. Harris introduced E. S. Young, who entertained the guests with two of his clever impersonations. A. W. Dunn of the Associated Press made a brief response to the welcoming address and introduced J. D. Whelpley of the visiting party, who made a good talk and told two good stories. Two selections by Frank H. Hordford, Mr. Hordford occupied about five minutes with one of the cleverest satirical speeches heard in these woods for many a long day. He was followed by Judge C. C. Goodwin in one of his best talks, consisting of wit and wisdom mixed in the proper proportions. Judge Goodwin was followed by Charles Kent with a magnificent and humorous speech being demanded. Mr. Kent was accompanied by Squire Coop of Ogden.

An Imitation of Harris. Argus Nicholson was ostentatiously introduced by the master of ceremonies who expected to announce that Mr. Nicholson would give an imitation of Southern. It was framed otherwise, however, and Mr. Nicholson gave a nervously correct imitation of Mr. Harris' speech of acceptance of the chairmanship of a Democratic convention, to the confusion and merriment of the audience and the delight of all others. Mr. Nicholson gave the Southern imitation as an encore. Senator Smoot followed with one of the serious talks of the evening, occupying five minutes in telling of Utah's past, present and future. It was the first opportunity many had of hearing the junior senator, and he acquitted himself admirably. E. C. Snyder, one of the Washington party, followed with a speech of thanks on behalf of his party, and a tenor solo by George D. Peyer closed the programme.

Made an Early Start. The day began with 8 o'clock breakfast at the Commercial club from whence the visitors proceeded to their special train on the San Pedro, leaving at 9:30 as scheduled. General J. M. Gillette was in charge of the party while State Engineer Doremus and Messrs. Fellows and Swendsen of the geological survey accompanied the party. The Utah lake reservoir project and answer questions as to the irrigation systems and reclamation possibilities of the undertaking. Senator Kearns and local newspaper men were also passengers. The first stop was at the point of the main overlooking the southern end of the Utah lake and commanding Jordan Narrows. Here the experts in charge gave an outline of the reservoir scheme after which the train was taken through to Provo, where the expedition found a pleasant surprise awaiting them.

It had been the intention to return to Salt Lake immediately in order to meet engagements, but Senator Smoot, Mayor Taylor, Commissioner of Publics, President Farrer of the city council, had improvised a reception and met the train with carriages. The correspondents were driven to the Elks club for a brief study of practical irrigation and were taken thence for a drive around the city for a view of the Brigham Young academy and the State Mental hospital.

Mr. Smoot Makes a Speech. At the hospital the carriages lined up around the circular driveway and Senator Smoot made a noble speech expressing his regret that the newspaper men could not have spent more time in Provo. He said he not only wanted them to stay, but he hoped to entertain them in his home and have them meet Mrs. Smoot—the only Mrs. Smoot—the added with a smile that caught the boys of the party. From the hospital the procession took its way to the train and at the request of the Washington men the route took them past Senator Smoot's home, where Mrs. Smoot came out long enough to shake hands with the visitors and express her regret that they could not stop.

Returning, the train came over the Rio Grande Western, running at slow speed through Jordan Narrows, where the party might see the canal system radiating from the lake. The newspaper men were much interested in the reservoir and canal systems and expressed their appreciation of the opportunity for the study of irrigation at first hand that had been afforded them by the trip.

An Hour at Saltair. At 2:30 in the afternoon the party took a train for Saltair and put in an hour at the pavilion. Two or three members of the party, just by way of getting new experience, rolled up their trousers and waded into the salty wet bit, and stated that no harmful effects followed. Others watched the wading, shouting full and accurate messages of advice of the daring adventurers. The big pavilion made quite a number of members of the party expressing regret that the infirmities of age and high living had rendered it impossible for them to enjoy the capture of a dromedary, wait or two on the polished floor. All hands expressed themselves as delighted with the place, which was just what one might expect from a place where people who were being shown around by painstaking and patriotic committees. At 4:30 the party returned to the city.

and went at once to the tabernacle where a fine musical feast was given in their honor. Miss Emma Ramsey captivated them with a song, sung only as Miss Ramsey can sing. Professor McClellan's organ numbers were a revelation to the visitors, who had no conception of the possibilities of the great organ in the hands of a master until they had heard it. Professor McClellan gave three numbers, the final one, "Tanhauser Overture," awakening the wildest enthusiasm. The vast extent of the building was duly commented on and, following the recital, the party returned to their cars to prepare for the dinner at the Commercial club.

Amusements.

"The Burgomaster," in all the glory of its catchy melodies, its handsome settings and handsome costumes, packed the Salt Lake theatre to the limit of its capacity last night. There wasn't a seat that didn't have an occupant, from the orchestra to the ceiling, and on every floor interested spectators and listeners were standing.

Really there is more to see than to hear in "The Burgomaster," although it is worth all the time it takes to hear it, and then a little time. Opinions will vary on the point as to whether the company that presented the same opera here last year is better or worse than the company that presented it in Ogden last year, but in others it is same, but this year, as last, "The Burgomaster" furnishes a heating measure of amusement.

The chief comedy part, Peter Stuyvesant, burgomaster of New Amsterdam being after his long time was in the hands of the actor, L. E. Figgman. Mr. Figgman hasn't much voice, doesn't present, but he has the faculty of making people laugh and in that lies the chief value of his performance. The chief actor, Louis von Kill, secretary to the burgomaster, was extremely clever, and every new comedy scene he is entitled to favorable mention.

The opera is splendidly staged and the company is one of the best ever taken out of New York. When it is said that about forty changes of costume are made, some understanding of the amount of work done by the performers is possible; and every new comedy scene is "fetched" better than the preceding one. The girls are in the main, very smart in attire, which is saying a good deal, too, which is saying a good deal, too, which is saying a good deal, too.

The Burgomaster will be repeated tomorrow night, at 7:30, and again tomorrow night. The Royal Italian band will fill an engagement of one concert only at the Salt Lake theatre on Thursday evening. The seat sale opens this morning at the box office. An audience by far too small and one that was not well represented at the tabernacle last evening, and a programme of rare excellence was presented, not alone in the solo numbers by the singer herself, but also in the selection of songs. Miss Perry was surprised and delighted her listeners with the marked improvement in her singing, which was evidenced not only in the quality of her voice as in her manner and in the selection of songs, but also in the quality of her voice as in her manner and in the selection of songs. Her first number consisted of three little ballads, all simple and light, but all rendered with a quality of voice which was a marked improvement in her singing. The next number was a song of a more serious nature, and although she was heard to good advantage in the first selection, but made an unfortunate choice for an encore in the favorite of the Apollo quartette, which was compared with the almost perfect rendition by that body of singers. The choir was subject to the usual criticism—the numbers were the same as ever and a few poor voices marred the whole.

ROBINSON GIVES LIE TO SHARP

Accused During Cemetery Irregularity Discussion.

MATTER IS SMOOTHED OVER

COUNCIL IS TO LOOK INTO THE CHARGES MADE.

The lie was passed on the floor of the city council chamber last evening. The scene was enacted while Councilman Daveler had the floor and was talking on the adoption or rejection of the committee report on the recent cemetery investigation. During the course of his remarks he said, in substance: "As Mr. Sharp has stated, this trouble is caused by petty jealousies of political henchmen of Mr. Robinson." "I pronounce that a lie," said Councilman Robinson, rising to his feet in a passion and looking daggers at both Councilmen Sharp and Daveler. The latter did not take the accusation to himself, as was made apparent by his demeanor, because he was simply reiterating what Councilman Sharp had said in a speech he had made earlier in the evening.

Matters Smoothed Over.

Councilman Sharp did not feel it incumbent upon himself to make reply to Councilman Robinson, for it was evident to him and to many others that he had been, to a certain extent, misunderstood. So the matter was smoothed over after a sharp exchange of rhetorical pleasantries between the accused, the accuser and Councilman Daveler. The whole trouble grew out of the report of the cemetery committee on its investigation into the alleged irregularities which are said to have existed in that department. According to Councilman Robinson and President Cottrell, the report is in the nature of a whitewash, and their views were, to a certain extent, coincided with by Councilman Peterson.

Report of the Committee.

Your committee on cemetery, beg leave to report as follows: In the matter of resolution by Councilman Robinson in relation to alleged conditions of the affairs at the City cemetery, we find a condition existing among employees, caused by allowing lots to be sold by those employed in city work, and that a large number of the lots were sold to the employees of the City cemetery, while in the employ of the City cemetery, and that the same employees were also employed in the city and fix a maximum price for same, say $200.00.

Second—We find a condition of insubordination existing among certain persons employed in the cemetery, and that the same persons were also employed in the city and fix a maximum price for same, say $200.00.

Third—in the matter of the sodding of lots, we find that it has been the custom many years past for all employees to sod the work on the cemetery, and that a large number of the lots were sold to the employees of the City cemetery, while in the employ of the City cemetery, and that the same employees were also employed in the city and fix a maximum price for same, say $200.00.

Fourth—in the matter of the sodding of lots, we find that it has been the custom many years past for all employees to sod the work on the cemetery, and that a large number of the lots were sold to the employees of the City cemetery, while in the employ of the City cemetery, and that the same employees were also employed in the city and fix a maximum price for same, say $200.00.

Fifth—in the matter of the sodding of lots, we find that it has been the custom many years past for all employees to sod the work on the cemetery, and that a large number of the lots were sold to the employees of the City cemetery, while in the employ of the City cemetery, and that the same employees were also employed in the city and fix a maximum price for same, say $200.00.

Sixth—in the matter of the sodding of lots, we find that it has been the custom many years past for all employees to sod the work on the cemetery, and that a large number of the lots were sold to the employees of the City cemetery, while in the employ of the City cemetery, and that the same employees were also employed in the city and fix a maximum price for same, say $200.00.

CARNIVAL A BIG HIT

Large Crowds Attend Opening Performances at Salt Palace and Enjoy the Shows.

The Southern Carnival company opened its many doors at the Salt Palace last night to a large and enthusiastic crowd when one stops to figure on the various icy blasts and divers chilly waves that swept Salt Lake after dark time. The novelty of a "summer carnival" held in the balmy open air of a bleak but cheerful Alaskan atmosphere was too hard for the city to resist, and the result being a surprisingly large attendance.

The carnival is nothing more or less than a full grown Midway, with a superior line of exhibitions to offer, to say nothing of the spiceries, sometimes known as barbers. They certainly have the real thing in the spicery line, and they are about half the show at any time. According to the leather-lunged gentleman who handled the southern breezes for the "electric theatre," that famous exhibition had "The Burgomaster" canceled and backed off the boards when it came to an evening of the great goddess, "Truth," as his companion in noise, the usual pretty young women invade the dangerous precincts of a number of villainous leopards, bears, hyenas and other laughing stock, and their round and pit them through a lot of humiliating stunts as though they were a lot of weak puny men. All this was followed by a hair-raising performance by Signor Gitoool, to "Hug Hug" around the cage, or "Will he get out of the door in time to escape the will of the wind, in fact, somewhat eager glances of the overtaxed she lioness among the municipal administration. Furthermore, we young committee, have received a report from the city auditor to the effect that he has regularly inspected the books of the cemetery department, and that all monies justly due to the city from the regular sources of revenue, so far as shown by the books, have been deposited in the city treasury.

These conditions are caused by and are the natural outgrowth of the present system in the cemetery department and will be rectified by the new order, and all future petty differences and rivalries will be eliminated thereby. We recommend that the city section be hereby instructed to see that all monies derived from the sodding and plating of lots done by the employees on city time be collected and turned into the city treasury, and report of same made to this council. Respectfully submitted, JOHN N. SHARP, JR., J. S. DAVELER, HENRY ARNOLD.

After Councilman Sharp had moved the adoption of the report, Councilman Robinson took the floor in opposition to it. He said it was not a fair or just report, and he entered his protest against its adoption by saying that the report does not show any insubordination on the part of any cemetery employees. He thought it would be a shame and a disgrace to give the section, through the committee, to discharge the men who had appeared before the committee and told the truth. He said they had not preferred any charges, and he thought they had done their own way under the conditions as they existed then.

The councilman said it was not the men working in the cemetery who were responsible for the investigation, but outsiders. The clerk interfered with men on the outside, he continued, and out of self-protection they had entered the charges. The speaker took the position that the report was not clear enough to show that he did not want any whitewashing done at his expense or the city, either.

Said it Was Jealousy. Councilman Sharp replied to Councilman Robinson by saying that he expected the report to be a fair one, and after reading a certain article appearing in last Saturday's paper, which he accused the councilman from the Fifth ward of being responsible for.

It was at this juncture that Councilman Sharp said he thought the whole matter was caused by personal jealousy, and that political henchmen of Councilman Robinson played a most important part. He went on to say that the committee had done the best it could.

Councilman Daveler defended the committee's report, and brought forth the lie accusation from Councilman Robinson. President Cottrell said that inasmuch as the men had given receipts for flowers and sodding upon the cemetery, if they did not turn the money into the city treasury they were liable to criminal charges, and he accused Councilman Sharp of being afraid to present the matter to the bottom, which accusation was instantly resented by the councilman on the southern end of the chamber.

Then it was decided to probe the alleged irregularities in committee of the whole. Councilman Sharp moved the adoption of the report, and Councilman Robinson entered a protest. The result of the hour and a half spirited debate following was that the whole matter was smoothed over after a sharp exchange of rhetorical pleasantries between the accused, the accuser and Councilman Daveler.

The whole trouble grew out of the report of the cemetery committee on its investigation into the alleged irregularities which are said to have existed in that department. According to Councilman Robinson and President Cottrell, the report is in the nature of a whitewash, and their views were, to a certain extent, coincided with by Councilman Peterson.

Further, we find a condition of insubordination existing among certain persons employed in the cemetery, and that the same persons were also employed in the city and fix a maximum price for same, say $200.00.
